VICE PRESIDENT MORTON says he will accept a renomination, and the party cannot do any better than to give it to him. He has made an efficient officer, and he is strong in the state that will probably decide the election.

THE democrats can't dodge the free wool bill now for they have passed it by a solid party vote, and it will cost their party many thousands of votes in localities it cannot afford to spare them. They can't dodge that question even if they do dodge free silver.

SOME of the democratic papers of New York are asking a question that they think is a stunner and thinks no one can answer. Here is the question: "If Cleveland can't carry New York, who can?" We will answer it by not only naming a man who can, but one who will carry that state this fall and his name is Harrison.

EVERY republican who desires the party to win in November should feel that a certain amount of responsibility rests on him as an individual, and he should ask himself this question: "how can I do something for the party?" Let us suggest a plan: If you can think of a neighbor who has republican elements in his makeup and is not taking a good republican paper, see him at once and get him to subscribe for one. Of course we would desire him to take the HERALD, as every citizen should have his county paper in the home, but if he does not want it, insist that he take some other; but seem near to him until he is taking a paper of his own and one that he pays for himself. The campaign paper sent free has but little influence and is not the proper way. We ask the republicans of Cass county to do their whole duty in this matter. Don't put it off, but attend to it now. Send in names for the HERALD; you cannot devote a little time to a better purpose than assisting in the circulation of your home paper. Cass county is its field of labor; it is not a state paper; its duty is to stay at home and work for the interests of the republican party and the financial prosperity of all in the field allotted it.

IF IT WASN'T FOR THE FACTS.

Reviewing the trade of the United States in textile manufacture during the first three months of this year, the Dry Goods Economist says, quoting the great firm of A. Van Bergen & Co.:

Collections have been in better shape, and business all around has been better to do. Bankruptcies have been fewer than in 1891. The action of the tariff has increased the manufacture in America of low price worsted goods. As a proof, one of our mills is building a new factory at Camden, Maine, and another is increasing its production by extension of plant. Domestic dress goods have sold much better.

This report is sadly out of keeping with the democratic predictions of the inability of the American people to buy clothing because of "higher protection on account of the tariff."

But let us continue to quote from the great organ of the American dry goods trade:

Another agent, who represents a well known dress goods mill, reports trade as good as in 1891.

Credits are much better and bankruptcies fewer. Prices are lower than in 1891, with the prospects that during the next six months they will be further reduced.

"Prices lower than in 1891, with prospects of further reduction during the next six months." And this in the pages of a trade journal whose editorial opinions ever have been unfriendly to the McKinley bill!

But let us continue to quote: Frederick W. Hayne, of Lawrence & Co., reports the condition of the cotton goods market in excellent shape, an increase in the sale of goods of better qualities and wearing features. The volume of business has been larger than during the corresponding quarter of last year. Credits are in a much improved condition. The change in the financial condition of to-day, as compared with a year ago, is a most noticeable feature, and the prosperity in the west has added largely to the increased business.

Everybody remembers that the democratic and free trade press said that the McKinley bill was framed to fatten the east upon the flesh of the west. But after eighteen months' operation of the bill it appears that it is "the prosperity of the west" that is the noticeable feature.

But let us make one more quotation: This points to a still greater trade later on in the year. The west is developing to a wonderful extent, and the distributions are being made from western and southern centers that previously were made from New York. The tendency of the manufacturing industries is to better qualities of goods, better styles and more originality.

Of late, finding it useless to report the old falsehood about "higher prices," the free trade and democratic press has been busy in saying that prices are kept from rising by lowering the quality of the goods sold, but the trade organs tell us that the demand everywhere throughout the United States is for better qualities than ever before were offered.

If it wasn't for the facts, how admirable would free trade theories be—Chicago Inter Ocean.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago Ill.

D. A. DORSEY

Will give us a talk on the Anderson raid which consisted of 24 men who went down in the very heart of the rebellion at Big Shanty, Georgia, captured an engine and several cars and made their escape. It is one of the most thrilling incidents of the war. Money spent to hear Comrade Dorsey will be well spent. COMRADE DORSEY is no humbug as he was one of the 24 raiders called by the rebels "the engine thieves"

RIEY BLOCK

EVERY lady who inspected our stock of Hats, Bonnets, Ribbons, flower and Millinery goods in general, were both delighted and surprised. Delighted because never in the history of Plattsmouth was there such a superb display of Millinery goods; and surprised to find they could purchase goods for so much less money than heretofore, but we believe in the old saying that seeing is believing.

This week we propose to make things hum in the Ribbon line by offering
