PROVIDENCE went against the democrats in Rhode Island.

The democrats who are inside have no hope of electing Bryan this year.

"LITTLE RHODEY" is No. 1 in the list of national republican victories for 1892. Next!

The democratic house is in favor of free wool. That's about as far as it will ever get.

DO THE rainbow chasers expect to find a pot of gold or a pot of silver at the end of the rainbow?

MCKINLEY, Reed, Alger, Blaine, Allison, Sherman or Harrison—any one of them can be elected if nominated. The present indications point to Harrison.

The republican convention hall at Minneapolis has been completed, and is in readiness for the nomination of the ticket that is to sweep the country next fall.

HILL brooks no foolishness in his political followers. Failure to "obey and no questions" is punishable by immediate boycott from either honor or patronage.

D. B. HILL (with an assumption of positive melancholy and a steel-like glint in the eye): "Now, if I had only been able to get into Rhode Island to assist the democrats, how different it might have been."

WHEN David Boss Hill issues his ultimatum to the democrats in convention assembled at Chicago they will immediately crawl down off the fence and vociferously declare that Senator Hill is the greatest living democrat.

The business outlook as given by Dun's and Bradstreet's reviews does not bear out Brother Sherman's Journal in the statement that poor trade and not the McKinley law is the cause of the present low prices of the necessaries of life.

The reason all the democratic presidential candidates and their friends proclaim that Cleveland is their second choice is simply that they are currying favor with His Obesity and want his votes when they leave the claimant wallowing in his own fat.

WHAT explanation or excuse have northern democrats to make for the flaunting of the "bloody shirt" in congress by Patterson of Tennessee, Bankhead of Alabama, and Turner of Georgia? What possible provocation had they? What republican said a word to provoke their action?

The game of the anti-Bryan democrats is to let the young man eloquent open his mouth and step into it this fall. That will lay him on the shelf and he will not be in the way two years from now. The only hope of the democrats carrying this district is in an off year and on a calamity platform.

The Chicago Herald has burned the bridges behind it since leaving the Cleveland democracy. It says: "It is not seriously claimed in any quarter that Mr. Cleveland can carry New York. Only madmen will profess that the democratic party can elect a president next November without New York. That is the situation in absolute simplicity." And if the Herald had stated the whole truth it would have continued "and no other candidate nominated by the democrats can carry New York this fall. This is a republican year."

The Cleveland democrat who was defeated in Indiana for the gubernatorial nomination swallowed his wrath and bitterness together and answered in the language of the man he claimed to so cordially hate, "I am a democrat." Of course he'll support the ticket. He didn't know Gray was loaded when he pulled the Cleveland trigger.

The Nebraska farmers could not be blamed for favoring a law to enhance the price of farm products 30 or 40 per cent above the market price, but why they favor such a law, in behalf of the silver kings, which cannot fail to give us a silver standard hence a fluctuating and cheap dollar, remains to be satisfactorily explained.—Beatrice Republican.

The monthly reports of the secretary of the treasury have the effect of making the bourbon calamity howlers froth at the mouth every thirty days. The growing volume of the spring trade and the prospects for good crops is maddening to the mossback leaders. Everything, including the working of the McKinley tariff law, is against them this year.

It is really too bad that William Silver Bryan should be so soon done for. His frequent repetition of that "great speech" in Connecticut and elsewhere started the Washington newspaper correspondents to poking fun at him as a twenty-four hour hero—a man with one speech for any and all occasions. Then he came to Omaha and heroically performed his "painful duty" of putting himself forward to be sat down upon for the good of the party. Then he goes back to Washington and dips his oar in Mr. Hill's Rockwell-Nyes election case and the New York senator-boss boxes his ears and orders the democrats to pay no attention to oratorical upstarts from the west who rant about courage and duty, and the democrats mind Mr. Hill as usual.

For a number of years, I have been subject to violent attacks of inflammatory rheumatism which generally lasted about two months. On the first of this month I was attacked in the knee and suffered severely for two days, when I procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it relieved me almost instantly. I therefore most cheerfully recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted everywhere.—R. D. Whitely is a very prominent man in this place and his disease was widely known as he suffered under severe pain. W. M. Houston & Co., Merchants, Martindale, N. C. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co. Druggists.

Ensor Liquor Cure.
To those seeking a rescue from liquor's curse or other evil habits brought about by morphine, tobacco etc. The Ensor Institute at South Omaha offers one of the most reliable and best places to go with the absolute certainty of a permanent cure. Write or visit the institute.

Brought into Court.
Messrs. Cage and Sherman, of Alexander, Texas, write us regarding a remarkable cure for rheumatism there, as follows: "The wife of Mr. Wm. Pruitt, the postmaster here, has been bed-ridden with rheumatism for several years. She could get nothing to do her any good. We sold her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and she was completely cured by its use. We refer any one to her to verify this statement." 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co., druggists

Irena for the Complexion" removes Pimples, Blackheads, and all Facial Blemishes. Warranted by Brown & Barrett and O. H. Snyder.

HEARING A SHELL SCREAM.
A Hideous Sound That Tries the Nerves of the New Soldier.

The talk turned upon personal courage in a conversation I had the other day with an aid-de-camp of General Alexander Hays. The veteran, who had the name of being the most daring aid on Hays' staff, said: "You ask me how I felt when I first smelled powder, so to speak. Well, after the lapse of all these years I'm almost ashamed to tell you. I was panic stricken, scared out of my senses, my courage oozed out of me in an instant, and a small boy could have captured me without trouble. This awful experience came after I had been about a year in the army. The regiment of infantry in which I was was preparing to go into camp. We were a few miles outside of Yorktown, which was in the possession of the Confederates, but none of us, not even our officers, realized the proximity of the enemy. There were some cattle with the army, and some how or other some of my comrades and I were part of the crowd that drove the bees to the place where they were to be slaughtered.

"We formed a circle, a sort of bull ring, and fell to skylarking and firing our pistols at the cattle as they ran hither and thither. It was all laughter and shouting. Suddenly, without the slightest warning, a sound that we had never heard before rose above the clamor. It was a sort of whirring howl, lasting a few seconds only, but long enough to strike terror into our hearts. The men who had been as gay and noisy as school-boys a minute before were dumb. I don't remember how they behaved. My own affairs kept me busy. I felt as if my boots were nailed to the ground. They wouldn't move, neither would my legs—in fact I had lost control of my body. I was perfectly limp and my knees sagged out.

"That was the first strange sound, as of some hideous, deadly bird flying overhead. I hardly realized, mind you, that the enemy was shelling us. All I knew for sure was that somehow my life, which I had enjoyed so much a minute before, was in danger. I wanted to run, but my legs wouldn't obey me. Two shells passed over me before I could shake off the paralysis. Then I ran as I never ran before or since, with a professional sprinter's speed, to the shelter of the woods from which our regiment had only just emerged. A second terror seized me as I reached the first scattering trees. I had selected one, a big fellow, as my refuge, and when I reached it three other men who were crouched behind it pushed me violently away, saying there wasn't room for more. Shells were still in the air, and with terror I pursued my flight. When at last I fell exhausted upon the ground beyond the range of the enemy's artillery, I almost lost consciousness for awhile.

"Nobody was killed by those shells, but the 'Rebs' must have laughed to see us run, and laughed louder yet when our cattle ran into their lines as they did. I felt more or less uncomfortable always in going into battle afterward, but never again lost my nerve as I did at my fire baptism before Yorktown."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Why We Have Leap Years.
Why is it that there have to be leap years—that all our years are not of the same length? It arises from the fact that the year does not consist of an exact number of days. The length of the day and that of the year are the measures of the motions of the earth. The globe we live on moves in two ways. It turns itself around like a spinning top, and at the same time it goes steadily forward like a bullet shot from a gun. It turns itself once completely around in twenty-four of our hours, as shown by the clock; this amount of time we call a day. Its forward or onward motion carries it around the sun in a path that is nearly a circle; the time it takes to go completely around we call a year. The first motion gives us day and night following each other in turn (the word "day" here having now a different meaning—namely, not twenty-four hours, but the time of daylight).

The second motion gives us days (that is, periods of daylight) growing gradually longer and then gradually shorter, one end of the earth turning more toward the sun for half the time and the other end for the other half; and this brings us summer and winter and the seasons. Now the length of the year is found to be nearly 365 1/4 times the length of the day of twenty-four hours; that is, the year is 365 days long and nearly six hours more. It is these six hours that give us our leap years, and it is in the "nearly" that we find the reason for 1900 not being one of their number.—Rev. George McArthur in St. Nicholas.

Cripples at the Capital.
Strangers in the capital express much surprise at the number of cripples to be seen here, and offer various explanations of the sight. The majority of maimed citizens are office holders, who were crippled during the late war. The form in which they are mostly injured is the loss of an arm, oftener the left one, as observation shows. Many have parted with a leg, and the suppliers of substitutes in willow, cork or rubber in Washington aver that this is one of the best markets in the country for their profession. Besides these injuries received through violence, there are scores of people in the government service who are afflicted with natural deformities. They are to be found particularly in the treasury department.—Kate Field's Washington.
