ONE cent postage would be proper and the republicans should put it in their platform again this year as they did in 1888.

SINCE the passage of the McKinley tariff law our exports have been constantly increasing, while those of England been steadily decreasing.

A DISPATCH from Swanson announces that a number of the largest tin plate factories in Wales will move to America. Such facts as this must be very trying to the gifted Bryan.

AT Elwood, Ind., next week the most extensive tin plate plant in the country will be started. The owners expect to turn out 2,500 boxes of tin plate per week, and they expect to employ 500 tin plate makers.

ON Sunday last 2,259 immigrants landed in New York, and the aggregate of arrivals during the preceding week was 10,240. These figures present a forcible argument in favor of a law for the restriction of immigration.

THE empress of Russia will present to her father, the king of Denmark, six beautiful white Arabian horses of great value on the occasion of his golden wedding anniversary. The empress goes back to the idea of royal presents. The Arabian horse has ever been one of the luxuries that could not always be purchased with money.

LAST Saturday 300 men began rolling steel sheets and converting them into bright tin plate at Baltimore. The free traders who still believe that all the tin plate used in this country is made in Wales should address letters of inquiry to Senator Gorman. The Maryland senator is a democrat and a tariff reformer, but he has always been loyal to the business interests of his own state and city. He could give the tin plate liars some pointers about the danger to democrats of bringing tin plate into the campaign again this year.

WE do not want it. It costs too much. Every "cheap coat" represents a certain amount of misery and suffering. The merchant who buys "cheap" clothes for himself or family decreases the purchasing power of his own customers.

THE manufacturer who buys only "cheap" raw material and necessities of life would lessen the market for his own goods.

Nor is there any inconsistency in decrying "cheapness" and at the same time favoring low prices.

There is a reasonable limit that is desirable, but to go beyond which is suicidal.

The laborer and capitalist should each have a reasonable return for his labor and risk. Each is dependent on the other.

The wonderful progress and prosperity of the United States is due to its splendid home market, the purchasing power of which depends on high wages.

The making of "cheap" things means starvation wages and no purchasing power.

Nothing is cheap when we have nothing with which to buy.

Producers of one article are consumers of another and to cripple one is to equally affect the other. We must have good, fair prices if we would keep up our standard of wages.

The free traders' cry for "cheapness" is a delusion. The "cheap loaf" becomes stale for want of a buyer.

We have no use for "cheapness" in this country of high wages, good living, comfortable homes, happy firesides and general prosperity.

In China they have more simple pure cheapness than anywhere else in the world. It might be a good thing to ship a few shiploads of our American apostles of cheapness over there. It would be a sure cure for their mania.—American Economist.

THE PURE FOOD BILL.

There has lately been a strenuous assault upon the Paddock pure food bill, which has passed the senate, has been reported favorably in the house, and to which consideration will undoubtedly be given soon. The bill, says the Sioux City Journal, as its name implies, is a measure which was introduced by Senator Paddock of Nebraska. Practically the same measure was introduced by him in the last congress and passed the senate. But because of the acrimony and filibustering occasioned by the Conger lard bill it did not come up for consideration in the house.

It has been violently denounced especially by some democratic papers, headed by the New York World. It has been characterized as absurd, as subversive of the right of the state and as dangerously paternal, and these charges have been garnished with abusive epithets.

There has been increasing complaint in this country that the government was too neglectful of the adulteration of food and generally in care for the public health, that all kinds of deleterious adulterations were sold in vast quantities to the people, and that a system of public inspection was necessary.

Now the Paddock food bill is designed to be a response to this very complaint. The intention of its provisions is to attempt to remedy swindling in foods, beverages and medicines. The bill provides for a system of inspection of these articles entering into interstate commerce. It organizes, under the jurisdiction of the department of agriculture, a section called the food section of the chemical division. Chemical experts and inspectors are to be employed. Articles which come within the provisions of the bill, and which are transported from state to state, are to be submitted, upon demand of the proper authorities, to analysis. Penalties are prescribed in case a manufacturer declines to furnish samples, and also in case adulterations are discovered.—Lincoln Call.

It Pays to Read the Papers.

especially your county paper, for often through this medium business chances and opportunities are presented that might otherwise entirely escape your attention. For instance, B. F. Railroad Cough Cure is the true Antidote for Throat and Lung Troubles. Fully warranted at Brown & Barrett's and O. H. Snyder's.

For a number of years, I have been subject to violent attacks of inflammatory rheumatism which generally lasted about two months. On the first of this month I was attacked in the knee and suffered severely for two days, when I prepared a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it relieved me almost instantly. I therefore most cheerfully recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted everywhere.—R. D. Whitely is a very prominent man in this place and his disease was widely known as he suffered a long severe pain. W. M. Houston & Co., Merchants, Martindale, N. C. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Messrs. Cage and Sherman, of Alexander, Texas, write us regarding a remarkable cure for rheumatism there, as follows: "The wife of Mr. Wm. Pruitt, the postmaster here, has been bed-ridden with rheumatism for several years. She could get nothing to do her any good. We sold her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and she was completely cured by its use. We refer any one to her to verify this statement." 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co., druggists

SMOKELESS POWDER IN WAR.

It Gives Many Advantages to the Side Making the Attack.

The introduction of smokeless powder has had considerable to do with a change of tactics on the field of battle. In the absence of the smoke screen on both sides, the company officers not only find it easier to work together, but can control their men and judge the effect of their fire on the enemy to a far greater degree than was formerly possible. From their point of view this increased power of control more than compensates the attack for the increased facility of concealment smokeless powder confers on the defense. It is true that the latter also profits by the same increased power of control, but they argue that from the nature of things the defense, striving only to prevent being beaten, whereas the attack fights with the determination to win, the latter is in a position to make far better use of this new powder than the former. Put in another form, it comes to this: The heavier and more accurate the fire whistling over a trench, the harder it is to make men raise their heads over it to take aim. Smokeless powder makes it easier for the attack to deliver such a fire; hence the difficulties of the defense will be increased.

Further, in the absence of smoke, men stationary on the defense cannot escape the depressing influence of the dead and wounded lying around them, but the attack leaves all these evidences of the fight behind it. So here again the advantage is on its side.

With reference to the question of the use of smokeless powders by the artillery, the general idea seems to be that it was all a gain to the side which thought more of killing its enemy than of avoiding being killed itself. It enormously facilitates the maintenance of fire discipline within the battery, permits of continuous fire even at the most rapid rate, for no smoke interferes with the laying of the guns, and above all things cheers the hearts of the men by enabling them to see the results of their fire.

As a means of concealment it is of no use at all, for even at extreme ranges of 5,000 yards and upward the flash of discharge is always distinctly visible, and at fighting ranges the flash enables one to note exactly the position of the enemy's guns. This was not always possible with the old powders, for the smoke obscured the object and prevented one's picking up an exact point to aim at.

The artillery will be far from regretting the loss of the two clouds which hung, the one in front of their own and the other in front of the enemy's guns. Smoke is a cover added to that furnished by the ground, and no one has ever been anxious for his opponent to have covers which he himself could not turn to advantage. If both are deprived of this cover victory will belong to him who, all else being equal, can most skillfully supply the deficiency.

Maneuvers will hereafter probably take place over larger areas before actual fighting begins, and something of an Indian's craft and natural keenness will be needed on the part of staff officers. Smoke has been so good a cover on many occasions that its absence will impose new conditions, and natural cover will have to be much more extensively utilized. With the vanishing poetry of the smoke battle the prose of a new era will begin, in which combat will be more like a game of chess in view of the pieces as a whole, and new dispositions of old qualities and virtues will be wanted.—Iron Age.

The wisdom of him who journeyeth is known by the line he selects; the judgment of the man who takes the "Burlington Route" to the cities of the east, the south, and the west, is never impeached.
