ROSEWATER FOR COMMITTEEMAN.

Nebraska's Republican State Convention Noisy, But Very Harmonious.--A Harrison Delegation Elected.-Other News Notes

At 11:45 yesterday morning Dr. Mercer, chairman of the state central committee called the convention to order. He said: Here, midway between oceans, is the focal spot around which revolve our business and political affairs. Here is the hub of the universe. What was once the center of our great desert is now the oasis of the nation. Here in the oasis is the beautiful, thriving city of Kearney, peerless among competitors, pushing ever to the front, and successful in every undertaking. It is fitting that we should meet here and compose a platform broad enough for all humanity. We meet to select the men who shall help name our nation's next president. From that nomination until next November he shall be our king and after that he shall wear the nation's crown."

As stated in yesterday's HERALD Brad Slaughter was made temporary chairman and F, D. Simmons temporary secretary. On motion the temporary organization was made permanent.

Elgutter of Omaha then threw a bomb shell into the convention. He read a lengthy resolution which asked that Hon. E. Bosewater be made a national committeeman. A Cass county man seconded the resolution on behalf of the delegation. Three or four gentleman jumped to their feet. Then half a dozen more asked recognition, and there was an exciting time far a few minutes.

Paul Schminke, by sheer force of voice and insistence, got the floor and wished on behalf of Otoe county to second the motion. He said: "I have been in this convention fighting prohibition and fighting everything. But we have to quit this fighting among ourselves and be harmonious. If Rosewater is given the state it is all right."

A Lancaster delegate moved as an amendment that the rssolution be referred to a committee. The motion was lost by a vote of 403 to 183. John Peters offered a resolution favoring the renomination of President Harrison and dieecting all candidates nominated to declare their attitude towards him. There was no opposition to the resolution.

On motion the convention proceeded to the election of delegates to the national convention. A man by the name of Orcutt placed the name of John L. Webster before the convention. Mr. Webster was called for and responded as follows:

"As I was walking on the street someone said I was wanted in the convention. I did not know what was wanted, but I came. In twenty years I have known but one party, the republican. For four years a republican executive and his able advisers have given us prosperity. The party endorse the administration, and feel it should be kept in power.

"When the delegates return from Minneapolis with the same standard bearer, victory will be ours. With the same administration as now, prosperity will be ours."

Hon. L. D. Richards was next placed in nomination by Ross Ham mond of Fremont. Mr. Richards addressed the convention as follows "It would seem that the extent of the duties of the delegates to Minneapolis would be to formulate a platform for the party, and then to attend a grand ratification meeting that should commend the administration of Benjamin Harrison and demand that he should again be put in power. Other great men there are in the party whom their friends would be glad to see made president. Chief among these is Blaine, but he has so clearly expressed his declination of the nomination or that it is useless to talk of him. The administration of Harrison has accomplished more for the material prosperity of our country than any other in our history. The party will place the seal of its approval on it by nominating Harrison and Morton, and the people will put the seal of their approval on it by electing them again. Gentleman, if elected delegate, I will vote for Harrison."

J. L. Keck of Buffalo county, Judge Cobb of Lancaster county, Col. E. D. Webster of Hitchcock county, and W. H. Needham of Knox county were placed in nomination, and each one was called upon for a short speech. They all responded in a hearty and vigorous manner.

The convention then took a short rest while some music was furnished, after which J. G. Tate was called upon for a speech. Among other things Mr. Tate said he had been shown a cap with visor and band of Black Hills tin that it was proposed to adopt for a Minneapolis convention cap. It was brought out, and he put it on. "Behold our tin," he said. "Protection should be our watchword. We have a gold, a silver and a tin plank in our platform, and they are strong enough not to break. I am glad to hear the endorsement of Harrison. Next November we shall have the greatest love feast ever known, with Harrison in the centre and Blaine by him."

Mr. Tate's speech provoked great enthusiasm throughout.

The roll call on delegates was asked for. Mr. Needham's name was then withdrawn, and he asked to be made an alternate. The roll call was without particular incident and the final result was evident. At its close an old man created a great uproar by asking that Rosewater be made to mount the platform and state his position. After much shouting for and against, it was announced that Rosewater was in Omaha.

The roll call resulted as follows:

John L. Webster	673
Colonel E. D. Webster	403
L. D. Richards	561
Judge Amasa Cobb	405
W. H Streeter	317
J. L. Keck	124

It was moved that Streeter, Keck and Needham be made alternates by acclamation. Jessie Gandy very adroitly amended by adding the name of G. E. Tarbox of Galloway and he went through with the rest,

Several resolutions were introduced. The First was in favor of the encouragement of the beet sugar industry which was unanimously adopted. Another resolution was also presented indorsing Sen. Paddock's course in working for agricultural classes and recommended that he be re-elected. The resolution went through without touching the high places.

After extending the citizens of Kearney a vote of thanks the convention adjourned.

"Wanted, the Earth."

The Perkins Grand was crowded from gallery to pit last night with an audience that was entertained in a most delightful manner by John Dillon and a fine support, in his new play, "Wanted, the Earth." The comedy, besides abounding in laughable situations, is peculiarly adapted to the talents of Mr. Dillon, who kept the audience in a good humor throughout the evening. The story of the comedy is that of a New Jersey farmer, Jay D. Smith, who kept summer boarders, and through contact with them became ambitious to go to the city, which he did, after selling his farm, and soon grew rich by means of speculation, changing his name to Jason De Smythe. Mr. Dillon played the part of Smith, the shrewd, plain spoken farmer, as only he can. The play contains abundant love intrigues, detective adventures, etc., with all modern improvements, including a telephone.—Springfield Republican.

Mr. Dillon will present "Wanted, the Earth" at the Waterman to-morrow night. You should not fail to see him.

BAKER'S FREAKS LOSE.

Plattsmouth Easy Winners of the First Game.

KENNEDY PLAYED A GREAT GAME.

Old Sol Was Happy--He Meets His Old Friend, Norman, and His Aggregation of Freaks--The Home Team Easy Winners.

Plattsmouth 12, Fremont 5.

When Old Sol showed his face out from behind the mass of gray clouds that had obscured his vision for the past year or so yesterday morning he was glad. Yesterday he was to meet his ancient and antique friend, Norman Baker. Well, knowing that the joy of the meeting would end Norman's career on earth, he made the acquaintance of John I. Unruh, and, securing a liberal discount off Boeck's figures, he ordered nine nice, new, spring coffins. And then he pushed away the cloud bank that threatened him with destruction and warmed up to his work. His old friend Norman got into town about 10 o'clock, and along in the afternoon when Old Sol was at his best he collected his mob of freaks and wended his way to the ball ground. That was where his old friend Sol was to queer him. Sol was on drinking terms with the local team. He said they "couldn't lose," "had a pie," etc., and he was right. He simply horsed the sad relic of departed days all over the lot.

There were not many people out to see that ball game yesterday. A small crowd witnessed a very insipid game. Kennedy was the only man that played his game, and Kennedy was strictly in it. He batted and fielded like a fiend and showed that his sobriquet of "Snapper" was well earned.

Reeves pitched excellent ball the fore part of the game, but, owing to lack of practice, let down and allowed the freaks to score five runs. Yapp took his place and was not touchable.

Robertson pitched for Fremont, and, had he been properly supported, would have made the game very interesting. He is evidently a coming pitcher, being but seventeen years old.

Our old friend Norman decorated his side of the error column with several large, luscious errors and in the seventh or eighth inning injected a large dose of face into the game and engaged in a pleasant wrangle with Mr. Long as to who had the best right to live on the earth, greatly to the edification of the multitude and his own discomfiture.

Manager Thomas M. Patterson appeared in the game for a few minutes in the seventh inning, when he dusted off the plate, and immediately thereafter Fremont made five runs.

THE HERALD regrets not being able to furnish the full score, but will remedy this by the time the season opens.
