WORKING AT "THE LOWEST WAGES AND PROFITS."

The great error with most American students in considering the tariff from the standpoint of history is that they do not go back far enough. For the last thirty years the question has not been debated by the free traders in the bold and outspoken fashion of the earlier days when they stood in little fear of the votes of workingmen, and were free to declare openly their determination to cheapen labor and reduce wages by lowering the tariff. By going back to 1832 and applying the methods of historic study to the great tariff debate of that year, the author of "The Tariff Riddle" has succeeded in clearing up a great amount of confusion, and making the issue between free trade and protection no riddle at all.

The anti protectionist storm which broke in 1832 had been gathering head for many years, just as the southern free traders grew more and more determined not to pay the cost of a high wage, free-labor system at the north. Thus in the "Exposition" adopted by the legislature of South Carolina in 1828 as its solemn remonstrance and protest against protection, no secret was made of the fact that the south wanted the tariff lowered for the express purpose of reducing northern wages and profits. On the contrary, in stating the effect of a low tariff on the north and south, respectfully, the legislature of South Carolina said: "It would compel them [northern producers] to contend with the rest of the world in our market in free and open competition, the effects of which would have been a reduction of prices to the lowest point, thereby enabling us to exchange the product of our labor most advantageously—giving little and receiving much, while on the other hand, in order to meet European competition they [northern capitalists and workmen] would have been compelled to work at the lowest wages and profits."

As is shown in "The Tariff Riddle," this seductive idea of the cotton planter, "giving little and receiving much," while northern workingmen were to be "compelled to work at the lowest wages and profits," has been at the bottom of southern opposition to the tariff for more than three-score years. At one time it was openly and frankly admitted that such was the object of "tariff reform." It would be ruinous in these days of universal suffrage and a preponderance of strength in the north to disclose the whole truth and declare that the purpose of a low tariff is to cut down northern wages and profits. The real purpose has to be kept veiled nowadays, but there has been no real change in the policies of the cotton south. Now, as ever, it demands a revenue tariff, and for the same purpose as in 1828, viz., to effect a reduction of northern wages. Generations come and go, but the doctrine of the southern free traders remains the same. If the democratic convention which meets in Chicago could have the full courage of its convictions it would frankly and fearlessly adopt the citation made above as its tariff plank.

THE COST OF A DEMOCRATIC SPEECH.

A whole day of last week was consumed by the house trying to correct a democratic speech; a speech never made on the floor of the house, but lugged into the record under the permission "to print." Even then it did not succeed in accomplishing the feat. The cost of time consumed in this abortive proceeding was something more than $5,000. Inefficient stupidity, thy name is—democracy!

"BOIES or bust" is the democratic slogan in Iowa, and it is quite likely it will.

THE resignation of Secretary Blaine was received with general surprise and more or less regret, and it changes the aspect of things entirely, for there can be no question about the fact that he was the first choice of the party for the presidential nomination in the beginning. He could have secured it by simply saying that he would accept it. No other name than his would have been presented to the convention under any circumstances. But he gave official notice that he was not a candidate, and emphasized his declination at a later date by saying that he could not accept the office if he should be nominated and elected. It is difficult to believe that he was insincere when he thus practically took himself out of the contest and left the way free for other aspirants, particularly the present admirable incumbent of the position; and the conclusion follows that he has been induced to change his mind at this late day by a pressure which he did not expect and which he does not think he can afford to disregard, for party as well as personal reasons. This may cause a fight in the convention which may result in the defeat of both Harrison and Blaine, but it makes no difference who is nominated, whether it be Harrison, Blaine, Sherman, Allison or McKinley, all are good men and can beat any man the democrats put up at Chicago.

AN EPITAPH.

I dreamed that one had died in a strange place
Near no accustomed land,
And they had nailed the boards above her face,
The pensants of that land,
And, wondering, planted by her solitude
A cypress and a yew.
I came and wrote upon a cross of wood—
"Man had no more to do—
"She was more beautiful than thy first love,
"This lady by the trees."
And gazed upon the mournful stars above
And heard the mournful breeze.
—W. B. Yeats.

A Pope with the "Evil Eye."

In the early years of his papacy, when he was adored by the Roman people. Pius IX was driving through the streets of Rome and chanced to look up to an open window, where a nurse was standing with a child. A few minutes afterward the nurse let the child drop to the pavement below and it was killed. Instead of laying the blame to the carelessness of the nurse it was laid to the malevolent influence of the evil eye, and the fancy became universal among the lower classes in Italy that the pope had the evil eye, and it lasted until his death. Travelers who knew of the belief were often amused to see people kneeling to receive the pope's blessing, and at the same time holding the fingers forked to break the maleficent power of his glance. When Pius IX gave up his liberal theories and fell back to the old accustomed methods of government there were an abundance of liberals who took it as proof positive that he was possessed of an evil spirit.—Chicago Times.

A Lawyer's Little Joke.

The humor of the legal mind is sometimes a trifle subtle. There is just now to be seen in the window of a famous second-hand book shop in the Strand a complete set of "Voltaire" in fifty volumes. The set is bound in what is technically known as "law calf." It has evidently belonged to a lawyer who hesitated to let his clients perceive that he was given to reading anything so mischievously frivolous as the philosopher of Ferney, or who could not resist his own little joke. Instead, therefore, of lettering the volume, "Voltaire," which everybody would have understood, he had them inscribed "Arouet's Reports." The joke would of course be lost upon those who happened to have forgotten that the great philosopher's proper name was Aronnet de Voltaire.—London Cor. Yorkshire (England) Post.

Just as sure as hot weather comes there will be more or less bowel complaint in this vicinity. #### Fail to do Our Duty.

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty towards themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. Herbertter, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from nervous prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remedies, declares that after three weeks' use of the Nervine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. Sold by F. G. Frick & Co. Trial bottle free. 1.

They are furnished complete with good comfortable hair mattresses, warm blankets, snow white linen curtains plenty of towels, combs, brushes etc., which secure to the occupant of a berth as much privacy as is to be had in first class sleepers. The following item, clipped from the Ft. Madison (Iowa) Democrat, contains information well worth remembering: "Mr. John Roth of this city, who met with an accident a few days ago, spraining and bruising his leg and arm quite severely, was cured by one 50-cent bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm." This remedy is without an equal for sprains and bruises and should have a place in every household. For sale by F. G. Frick & Co.

Fell Dead.

These words are very familiar to our reader, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Disease." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symptoms: Short breath, pain in side, smothering spells, swollen ankles, asthmatic breathing, weak and hungry spells, tenderness in shoulder or arm, fluttering of heart or irregular pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at F. G. Frick & Co., who also sell the New Heart Cure.

The wisdom of him who journeyeth is known by the line he selects; the judgment of the man who takes the "Burlington Route" to the cities of the east, the south, and the west, is never impeached.
