THE democrats will not have any such time in Chicago as the republicans are having in Minneapolis. The democrats haven't anything worth fighting for.

THERE will be a meeting of the board of trade and citizens at the county judge's office this evening at 8:30 o'clock, at which every business man is requested to be present.

THE Minneapolis excitement has been a blessing to the democratic organs; they have had a chance to temporarily forget their own overwhelming sorrows. But they will yet have their opportunity.—Globe Democrat.

MANUFACTURERS are springing up all over this fair land under the protection of the McKinley law. Why not have a few in Plattsmouth? They give employment to laboring men and thereby create a market for the farmer.

WE hear a good deal in the past four or five days, from friends of the different aspirants, about the "greatest living American," but in almost every case the wrong man is mentioned. The "greatest living American" is John Sherman.

ST. PAUL evidently rejoices in the boom of her twin sister, Minneapolis, in spite of cruel outside criticism. The St. Paul Pioneer Press depicts Minneapolis as a life-sized summer girl with crowds of visitors perched on her outstretched hands, walking up her strong arms, and surveying the scene from her shapely shoulders. The caption under the picture is, "Minnie has her hands full—but she's all right."

WHO PAYS THE TARIFF?

THE HERALD quotes the low prices on goods and then asks the Journal to explain why it is that such things can be under the McKinley law. Well, every sensible man knows that competition and improved machinery is constantly tending to make all manufactured articles cheaper to the consumer and if the McKinley tax was abolished these things would all be sold for still less money, and we would all be happier. It is useless to be satisfied with half a loaf when we can just as easily have the whole one. Can't you see that, neighbor, or are you totally blind?—Journal.

THE HERALD asked who paid the tariff and the Journal failed to state. That is what we want to know, who paid the tariff, the manufacturer or the consumer?

The Journal says competition and improved machinery are what make the difference. That is what we have claimed all along. What causes this competition and improved machinery? We say it is the McKinley law, as it is called, for if it was not for our protective policy there would be no inducement for capitalists to invest their money in this country nor for the inventive genius to invent new machinery.

If it were not for our protective policy we would have no home competition and would still be paying high prices for manufactured articles and sending our gold to Europe. Supply and demand rule the prices. Remove the supply from the demand and the prices go up, up.

Protection is what we want, and we want it right at home, right here in Plattsmouth. We want a tariff put on the retail houses of Omaha so high that they can't sell goods in Plattsmouth. Better buy your goods in Plattsmouth, even if you do have to pay a little more for a while. Competition will soon bring prices down again. But buy all your goods in Omaha and you will soon ruin our fair city.

Come, Brother Sherman, preach a little tariff and less free trade and try and get a few manufactories located right here in Plattsmouth. It is all that will make this a large city. Manufactories will give employment to the laboring men and make a market for all the farmers produce at a good price.

AT BEATRICE

Yesterday's game between Beatrice and Fremont drew the largest crowd of the season. It was ladies' day, and fully 100 of the fair sex were in attendance. The game was, with few exceptions, a repetition of Wednesday's close contest the greatest exception being that yesterday Fremont was saved from a shut-out by an error. In the seventh Holmes missed a high fly of Bowman's, he scoring on a single by Purcell. The game was intensely interesting and abounded in sharp plays, which kept the audience in a fever of excitement from the beginning until the last man was out. Randall made a sensational catch in middle left field after a hard run, catching the ball while running at full speed and with outstretched arms. Holohan had ten chances and accepted them all without an error. The double plays, of which there were three, were great. The score:

The Roof in the City.

On one of the few warm evenings of the season a visitor at a friend's house was asked by the servant to "Walk up stairs, please." Somewhat surprised, the request was acceded to, and at the upper landing the hostess appeared. "I thought you would enjoy our roof garden this warm evening," she said, leading the way through the back room and assisting the caller over an improvised stile, made from two library step ladders, out on to the roof of the parlor extension.

Here the host was lounging in a hammock, smoking, and a cane settee with cushions and several comfortable wicker chairs awaited occupants. "We always want to sit out," said the hostess later, in explanation, "and the narrow, uncomfortable doorstep of our city houses offers no comfort or seclusion. Here, at least, no passerby sees us, and we greatly enjoy the added spaciousness and ease of this place."

A railing had been put about the extension and painted a dull red to match the roof; inside this ran a narrow box trench filled with earth and supplied with flowers and vines well started. Several inexpensive but useful rugs were scattered about, and with the chairs and hammock, the place was very attractive.

Not every householder, indeed, owns an extension, which are much less common in New York than in other cities, but there is always the roof. In time, undoubtedly, this valuable unoccupied space will be utilized in this way, with perhaps a solarium, or sun garden, in addition for winter use.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

The Children's Palace.

The World's fair will be wonderful if only the plans that the committees have already adopted are to be carried into effect. Those who have these matters in charge are said to be showing good taste and a picturesque and poetic sense.

The cold, dreary waters of the lagoons of Jackson park are being transformed into grand canals, and these waters are to be illuminated, and out of them the airy art palaces will lift their wings as from a new Venice, and over this bright Adriatic 100 gondolas are to pass.

The Aztec palace, the Temple of the Sun and the historic buildings that represent poetic periods of Latin America have the same charm of Oriental fancy, of Aladdin and fairyland. The visitor will find here in stone and marble the historic poetry of the Western world.

It is proposed to add to the Lakeside city a Children's palace, which shall exhibit the juvenile plays and playgrounds of all nations. The plan is to be commended not only because no such proposed exhibition of the arts of childhood has ever yet been made, but because it suggests many practical and educational methods which merit attention.

Probably the usefulness and interest of preparing an exhibition of the literature for children of all nations, books, periodicals and art work will not be overlooked.—Youth's Companion.

Ferils of Realistic Advertising.

A Manchester tradesman who attempted a little bit of "realistic" advertising has just had a rather unpleasant experience. He is the proprietor of a certain cattle food, and it occurred to him to send out two horses, one a fine, sleek, powerful animal, the other a miserably abject and depressed scarecrow of a horse. The first horse bore a placard announcing that it had been fed on Mr. Blank's condiment; the other accounted for its wretched condition by the announcement on a placard that it had not had the advantage of that special food.

Unfortunately for the advertiser, the attention of the police was very properly drawn to the wretched animal in the shafts, and they halted the owner before the magistrates on the charge of "working" the poor creature in an unfit condition, and he was fined a guinea and costs.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.
