

DRAWING BIG CROWDS.

Large Crowds Were Attending the Exposition.

STANDING ROOM AT A PREMIUM.

The Teachers, Scholars and Parents Are All Working in Harmony-- The Hall Was Packed Last Night.

One of the largest crowds that has turned out for a long time in this place turned out last night to the industrial exposition at Rockwood hall. Everybody was well pleased and none but words of praise were heard to-day.

In our survey of the exhibit yesterday morning, important things were overlooked, others passed by for want of time. Never before in the history of Plattsmouth has so much interest been taken in school work. Children, teachers and parents alike seem interested, which always marks progression.

At the west corner of the Grammar school exhibit hangs the picture of the next president and vice-president--Harrison and Reid--cut out and mounted with cereal border. How thoughtful was the little person who prepared it and how the little voice may ring in shouting for Harrison and Reid after the campaign this fall.

Callie Atwood shows himself to be a mechanic in one way and an artist in another. The wheelbarrow made by him is mechanical in every respect, and the picture drawn displays an exquisite taste of art.

Four girls were chosen from the Grammar grade to prepare charts from vegetable seeds, fruit seeds, cereals and flower seeds. The designs are various and one can get the magnificence of them only by going and taking a look for himself.

In the same exhibit is some special work in penmanship by Walt Wescott.

No one can describe the mineral palace by the Seniors. It is artistic throughout, mechanical in every way, made completely of geological materials. Great care must have been taken to prepare such a structure, and shows that the class was harmonious and worked together well.

Bugs, bees, butterflies, spiders, skeletons, star-fish, coral, sea-fans, sea-urchins, shells, were a few of the things presented by the Freshman class, a better collection of zoological specimens would be hard to find anywhere. And then, too, the drawings of animals not displayed were extraordinary fine. Some samples of penmanship by Mabel Young are well worth mention; they exhibit plainly the gradual muscular movement.

The egg collection prepared by Dick Waugh, exhibits many different kinds of eggs, and is really interesting to look at and examine.

In botany the Juniors were compelled to make a certain number of drawings using the microscope to obtain a view of parts so small to be seen with the naked eye, which were all nicely done. Besides this they made Herbariums which are well filled with choice flowers, and neatly and artistically arranged.

Miss Maggie Wright presented some clay moulding which can never be out done by pupils of the same age. A small engine was the best thing shown, which was made by a boy 8 years old. Miss Wright claims to interest her pupils by having them make something round and then gradually have apples, pears, peaches, etc., modelled. On one of the desks were two books prepared by Peter and Jacob Ickhoff, who have only been to this country three years. Judging from their work one would not think them to have ever been foreigners. Their work is above the average and clearly shows what pupils who are persistent can do.

Two pictures made by Jessie Niles pastel, were among the finest things exhibited. One could hardly tell them from oil painting unless he made close examination. The whole room was neatly decorated with flags, evergreens and wens. Paper chairs and straw hats both made of variegated colors were also a part of the decorative work.

Friday during the day the hall was crowded, but on Friday night was jammed to its utmost. The play was fully as beautiful at night as in the daytime.

Every father and mother was trying to find some work done by his or her child.

The Fourth of July executive committee and the sub-committees in joint session last evening after starting things off in the direction adjourned to meet Tuesday night.

The letter also stated that an interview was wanted very badly. The aforesaid gentleman is now making arrangements to see him personally. Let the good word go on.

AT KEARNEY.

Beatrice surprised all by easily taking the game from Kearney to-day and subjected the home team to a shut out. The Beatrice boys played like pennant winners through the entire game and hit Castone at critical points. Only three little hits were got off Slagle. One of the largest crowds of the season was present to witness the best game that has been put up on the home grounds. Fowler, for the home team and Gatewood for the visitors, played great ball at second base. Edinger's coaching was a feature.
