Cleveland Was Nominated on the First Ballot.

WRANGLE OVER THE PLATFORM.

The Unterrified Were in Session All Night--Hill and Boies Were Not in the Race.

CHICAGO, June 22—Every man, spectator or delegate, who held a ticket, knew full well as he went to the wigwam this afternoon that before the session was over the battle would be on. The atmosphere was charged heavily with moisture. Men in the galleries took off their coats, and how the women maintained life none but themselves knew. The New York delegation came first into the hall and a genuine Tammany yell came from the benches immediately behind the alternates. The cry of "Hill" went up, but a sound like escaping steam shot from the floor and grew to a whistling, hissing storm. The great storm, however, subsided when Wilson thumped the desk and the session began. Rev. Thomas Green offered prayer. At the conclusion of the prayer the band rendered "America." W. W. Van Diver of Georgia moved that the convention adjourn until 11 o'clock to-morrow. The motion was lost. The announcement was received with cheers.

The Resolutions Offered.
During the time which elapsed after the calling of the convention to order, and before the committee on resolutions were ready to report, caucusing among the different delegations progressed with great activity. When the chairman announced that the committee on resolutions was ready to report, howls of approval rose from all quarters. Col. Jones, chairman of the committee, mounted the platform amid great cheers and said: "I am instructed by the committee on resolutions to present, as the report of the committee, the following resolutions and move their adoption."

Patterson of Colorado interrupted with the announcement that he represented the minority of the committee and wished to state that the minority expected to be heard before the previous question was put.

Vilas of Wisconsin then read the platform, in which the administration of Cleveland was lauded and the McKinley bill denounced. Reciprocity also received its full share of abuse. The silver question was completely straddled. "We denounce the republican legislation known as the Sherman act of 1890 as a makeshift, fraught with possibilities of danger in the future which should make all of its supporters, as well as its author, anxious for its speedy repeal. We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country and to the coinage of both gold and silver without discrimination against either metal or charge for mintage." The above is a part of "their silver plank."

Jones moved the adoption of the platform as read, but Neal of Ohio, interrupted with an amendment to the section relating to the tariff moving to strike out the section pertaining to the tariff on words preceding the denunciation of McKinley and substitute therefor the following:

"We denounce republican protection as a fraud. [Cheers.] It taxes the labor of the great majority of the American people for the benefit of the few. [Cries of "Read it Again."] We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties except for purposes of revenue only, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the government, when it is most economically administered."

Watterson Opens Up.
In pursuance of a request, the secretary read the minority report, amid applause. A demand being made for the portion to be stricken out, the secretary read the portion relating to the tariff, after which Neal addressed the convention in advocacy of his amendment. In response to a call Henry Watterson took the platform, his appearance being greeted with prolonged cheers. He had read an extract from the tariff plank of the national democratic convention of 1876, and after ward, among other things, said: "When I listened to the extraordinary essay we have heard this afternoon, I asked myself whether we were indeed a democratic convention or simply a republican convention (laughter and applause) revised by James G. Blaine or Benjamin F.

Butler, for the tariff planks we listened to are almost identical in principle with the minority report submitted to the democratic convention in 1884 by Benjamin F. Butler and voted down almost unanimously. Either you should reject this monstrosity and adopt in its place the simple, lucid and true amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio, or, if you don't want to do that, recommit the whole matter to the committee, with instructions to clarify and purge themselves." [Cries of "No, no," and "Vilas."] Vilas Comes Back.

Vilas then took the platform and when the cheers had subsided, said: "The resolution which you propose to strike out was a resolution reported to the convention of 1884, and of all the eloquent voices lifted in behalf of it, none rung with such blissful joy as that of the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky." [Long continued laughter and applause.]

Watterson handed Vilas a report of the 1884 convention and said to him: "Read that; read it well."

The best of feeling seemed to prevail between the great orators. Vilas read from the book and said: "Gentlemen, on that occasion the distinguished Kentuckian said in reference to it: 'It is an honest platform; entirely so. [Laughter and applause.] It is sound doctrine; eminently so.'" Vilas, continuing, said: "I do not propose to enter into a debate or discussion as to the particular form of words in which we declare our opposition to tariff legislation. I desire only to suggest that if it please you, take in this form words and leave that there also upon which Cleveland was elected president."

The Trouble of 1884.
Watterson replying to Vilas, said: "In 1884 the party seemed to be split wide open, and after fifty-two hours of unbroken discussion in the platform committee, the best that the moderate and conservative members of the committee, myself among the number, could obtain as a common ground to stand upon was the platform of 1884 in that convention. But since that time we have a second Morrison bill, the Mills bill, the message of the president in 1887, the great campaign of education of 1888, and, I say to myself, my God, is it possible that in 1892 we have got to go back for a tariff plank to the straddle of 1884?"

Jones took the platform and stated, on behalf of the committee on resolutions that they were ready to adopt the amendment of the gentleman from Omaha as an amendment to the tariff section.

The secretary called the roll on the amendment which was carried by a vote of 564 to 342.

After the platform had been disposed with, Chairman Wilson said the roll would be called for nominations.

When New Jersey was reached Gov. Abbot took the platform and placed Cleveland in nomination.

Dewitt of New York placed the name of Dave Hill before the convention.

When Iowa was reached John F. Duncombe placed in nomination

The snap convention and Tammany have evidently been sat down upon.

As was generally expected the democrats have repeated their doings of four years ago and have again nominated Grover Cleveland for president and it only remains now to see whether Hill will keep his word or whether he will come into line and support Cleveland.

The democrats have done just what the republicans wished them to do. They have nominated Cleveland for president. He is the weakest man they could have selected.

The democrats held a late session last night. At 3:25 this morning they nominated Cleveland on the first ballot for their candidate for president. He received 616 1/2 votes and Hill received only 112 votes.

Trouble at Nehawka. Word comes up from Nehawka to the effect that the men at work in the stone quarries of Van Court & Lenist, struck yesterday morning for a monthly pay day. The firm has been in the habit of giving time checks, payable the twentieth of the following month, which meant usually from sixty to ninety days and sometimes longer, thus compelling the men to discount from 5 to 10 per cent. The strike brought the firm to time with the cash at the last pay day and work was resumed.

He has examined and kept on record thousands of cases. His New Heart Cure, a wonderful remedy, is sold at F. G. Fricke & Co. Thousands testify to its value as a cure for heart diseases. Mrs. Chas. Benoy, Loveland, Colo., says its effects on her were marvelous. Elegant book on heart disease free.
