REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

For President
BENJAMIN HARRISON of Indiana.
For Vice-President
WHITELAW RIED of New York.

This is a republican year and there is no mistake about it.

Every old soldier and republican in Cass county should take THE HERALD this year.

MR. HARRISON has not only been good to the old soldiers, but he has been mindful of all classes of citizens.

EVERY old soldier should begin at once to work for the election of Harrison. No more effective work can be performed than securing subscribers to good republican papers.

It is estimated that the per capita wealth of the country in 1890 was about $1,000. In 1860 the amount was $514, in 1870 $780, and in 1880 $870. This is a highly prosperous country, and the longer the republican party is kept in power the greater will be the prosperity.

GOV. FLOWER says he knows Cleveland can't be elected. Three out of every four intelligent and conservative democrats in this part of the country hold the same view of the situation that New York's executive does, yet we believe Cleveland is the strongest man in his party. The fact is no democrat could win in the coming canvass.

RETRIBUTION AGAINST CANADA

The message sent by the president to congress urging retribution against Canada for her violation of the terms of the treaty of Washington will command the serious attention of the people. That compact provides, among other things, that the Welland and other canals on or near the boundary line between the two countries shall be open to the citizens of the United States on the same terms as to residents of the Dominion. On this understanding the United States made certain important concessions to the Dominion, which have been strictly regarded in letter and spirit. The proof that Canada has violated her part of the agreement seems to be clear and conclusive. There has been a discrimination against our citizens in the matter of tolls for transportation through these waterways which are injurious to our commerce, and which have inflicted serious damage on American consumers as well as shippers. The attention of the Canadian government was called to the injustice long ago, but the wrong has not yet been righted. In fact the Dominion has apparently taken the view that no wrong is being done at all, and while this idea of the case is entertained it is hopeless to look for any change in the situation on Canada's own initiative. Such being the conditions the president has acted wisely in submitting the whole matter to congress, so that that body, after due deliberation, may take such measures as it deems proper to protect the interests of American citizens.

The United States, of course, dislikes to have unpleasantness with Canada on this or any other question, but that country must be taught that it can not keep on violating its pledges to us with impunity. We have had, in the past five or six years, many evidences of Canada's unfairness, if not unfriendliness, toward us, and there is a general impression in this country that the time has come to call a halt to such conduct. The interests of our citizens and the national honor and dignity demand that our rights in this matter be scrupulously and zealously defended. The considerations which prompt us to such a course are too important and too pressing to be disregarded or overlooked any longer. This country has always endeavored to live on terms of the closest friendship with its northern neighbors. We have been anxious to extend and strengthen the commercial ties existing between us and them, and there have been occasional and sporadic manifestations on Canada's part that this feeling has been reciprocated. But below all this surface show of Canadian friendship there has always been a substratum of prejudice, jealousy and pettishness which excited distrust here and which has thus rendered all the attempts to lower the tariff barriers between the two countries vain. Perhaps Canada's double dealing toward us is partly due to the fact that she is not entirely her own master in her foreign relations, and that, in this respect, she has, in some degree, to conform to the desires of the British government; but this consideration, while it may explain her vacillation on the question of reciprocity, can not justify the violation by her of pledges which she freely made and thoroughly understood.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TALMAGE ON HORSE RACING.

At the same time I do not believe in slow driving, writes T. De Witt Talmage in the July Ladies' Home Journal. There is no more virtue in driving slow than in driving fast, any more than a freight train going ten miles an hour is better than an express train going fifty. There is a delusion abroad in the world that a thing must be necessarily good and Christian if it is slow and dull and plodding. There are very good people who seem to imagine it is humbly pious to drive a spavined, galled, glandered, spring-halted, blind, staggered jade. There is not so much virtue in a Rosinante as there is in a Bucephalus. At the pace some people drive, Elijah, with his horses of fire, would have taken three weeks to get into heaven. We want swifter horses, and swifter men, and swifter enterprises, and the church of God needs to get off its jog trot. Quick tempests, quick lightnings, quick streams, why not quick horses? In time of war the cavalry service does the most execution; and as the battles of the world are probably not all past, our Christian patriotism demands that we be interested in equal velocity. We might as well have poorer guns in our arsenals, and clumsier ships in our navy yards, than other nations, as to have under our cavalry saddles, and before our artillery, slower horses.

A Snake That Is Found in Many Places.

The common snake, which bears the scientific name of Tropidonotus natrix, is one species of a genus (Tropidonotus) which extends over Europe and North America, and from northern Asia to north Australia, there being seventeen or eighteen Indian species alone. Our common snake may serve as an example of the largest family into which serpents are divided—the family Colubridae—of which there are upward of 165 species in India alone. This family contains most of the harmless snakes, and it is also illustrated by a small snake, Coronella austriaca, which some years ago was discovered to be an inhabitant of Dorsetshire and Hampshire. The Coronella feeds exclusively on lizards, slow worms and small snakes. Though harmless, it will bite.—Quarterly Review.

The First False Hair.

In very early days, as now, the hair was sometimes thin and it had to be eked out in various ways to make believe that nature had been spendthrift to all alike. About the first description extant of woman's hair speaks of "plaited locks," known as "Gretchen braids" to us. To make these braids seem longer, silk the color of the hair was braided in. Then they they took to putting the braids in cases of silk, elongating them with all sorts of stuff till they looked like umbrellas in covers. The Chinese pigtail is a modification of this style.—Washington Star.

Punished by the Czar.

The czar of Russia knows how to brace up his military officers to their duty. A merchant of Charkoff was murdered by soldiers, and it was shown that had the officers of the regiment stationed in the town maintained proper discipline the murder might have been prevented. As a punishment for this they have been ordered to pay a yearly pension of 5,000 rubles to the widow of the murdered man.—Toledo Blade.

Not Surprised.

Neighbor (breathlessly)—Oh, Mrs. Hardluck, your little son Johnny found a dynamite bomb, and took it into a stable down town and broke it with an ax, and blew up the stable and all the buildings around it.
Mrs. Hardluck—Land sakes! I wonder what that boy will be up to next.—Good News.

Cabmen's Examinations.

Cabmen have to pass an examination in knowledge of London streets before they can obtain a license, and this is far more necessary than might be supposed, for 691 men in the year 1889 failed in the examination, and not a severe one at that, while 1,211 were passed.—London Tit-Bits.

Dinner Table Amenities.

Young Van Sprawl—I believe in being above board in all that I do.
Old De Goute—Then I wish you would stop kicking me under the table.—Kate Field's Washington.

All over your sufferings from Catarrh. That is, if you go about it in the right way.

There are plenty of wrong ways, that perhaps you've found out. They may relieve for a time, but they don't cure.

Worse yet, they may drive the disease to the lungs. You can't afford to experiment.

But there is a right way, and a sure way, that does cure. Thousands of otherwise hopeless cases have proved it. It's with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it permanently cures the worst chronic cases. Catarrhal Headache, "Cold in the Head"—everything catarrhal in its nature, is cured as if by magic.

It's a way so sure that the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy offer, in good faith, $500 for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure.

If it's sure enough for them to make the offer, it's sure enough for you to make the trial.

They risk $500. What do you risk?
