Sleep on Left Side.

Many persons are unable to sleep on their left side. The cause has long been a puzzle to physicians. Metropolitan papers speak with great interest of Dr. Franklin Miles, the eminent Indiana specialist in nervous and heart diseases, who has proven that this habit arises from a diseased heart. He has examined and kept on record thousands of cases. His New Heart Cure, a wonderful remedy, is sold at F. G. Fricke & Co. Thousands testify to its value as a cure for heart diseases. Mrs. Chas. Benoy, Loveland, Colo., says its effects on her were marvelous. Elegant book on heart disease free.

According to the census of 1890, Chicago takes rank, by virtue of her population of 1,098,576 people, as the eighth largest city on the globe. Most of us desire, at one time or another, to visit a city in which so many persons find homes, and when we do, we can find no better line than the "Burlington Route." Three fast and comfortable trains daily. For further information address the agent of the company at this place, or write to J. Francis, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Omaha, Nebraska.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY

Its Excuse For Being and Its Promise to the Public.

SCENES SELDOM WITNESSED.

The Convention Became a Howling Mob When the Committee Reported on Resolutions—Weaver and Field.

When the convention was assembling yesterday morning it was learned that Van Wyck's name would not be presented. He would not consent to it, and the delegation was not at all anxious to put him forward. Kansas switched back to Weaver and Georgia went out hunting for a candidate, declaring irrevocably against Gresham.

The claim that there is no north and no south in the new party doesn't apply in the Gresham fight, and not only have the southern delegates contended that Gresham cannot carry a southern state, but they have threatened freely that they would not support him themselves. And even Oregon's delegation has said with a great show of determination that if Gresham be nominated their people will vote the prohibition ticket for presidential electors.

Nothing was done yesterday morning from 10 to 12 except to make the temporary organization permanent. At the end of twenty-five minutes, as the noise was dying slowly away and the music of the martial band became audible, one of the standard bearers started around the outer aisle, bearing his banner aloft, and with one accord the others followed, while the frenzied bedlam again broke loose. Twice did the perspiring enthusiasts make the circuit of the large hall, and every one who could secure a banner of any sort, a cartoon or a flag, joined in the wild parade. Among those bearing standards were a number of women, while no less than twenty-five of the many women who have seats in the convention and take up their half of the time devoted to discussion, marched, shouted and gesticulated with arms, heads and bodies as vigorously as did any of their masculine associates. Among them were Mrs. Leese, Mrs. Emery, Mrs. Todd and other leading women in the people's party movement.

Appeals For Order Ignored. For a time it looked as if the convention was likely to continue its demonstration indefinitely, in spite of the appeals of the chair for order. A number of the cooler heads gathered around the one-legged presiding officer and sought by every device to catch the attention of the convention, and when they at last did so the clamorous carnival of disorder had continued forty minutes. It was apparently a ruse of the Greshamites to work the convention to a pitch of excitement bordering on madness, in order to spring the nomination of their hero in the midst of the enthusiasm, for as soon as order had been restored, Taubeneck, chairman of the national committee, secured at once the recognition of the chair to read a telegram from Houser, candidate for lieutenant-governor in Indiana. It said:

Gresham Will Not Decline. "I have just seen Gresham. If unanimous he will not decline." Afterwards the convention received the following from Gresham: "CHICAGO, July 4.—J. B. Weaver, Ignatius Donnelly, Ben Terrill, J. W. Hayes: I have just returned and find your dispatch of the first. I must stand by my dispatch to Mr. Orr of the second. Accept my grateful acknowledgements. [Signed] W. Q. GRESHAM."

The roll of states was then called for the presentation of candidates for the presidency and when Alabama was called, a delegate arose and nominated Gen. Weaver, of Iowa. When Colorado was reached Senator Kyle, of South Dakota, was placed in nomination. A ballot was then taken, which resulted as follows:

Weaver.....	965
Kyle.....	25
Scatterings.....	3
Total.....	1,213

The roll of states was immediately called for nominations for vice president. The names of Ben Terrell of Texas and J. C. Field, an ex-Confederate general, were presented and Field was nominated on the first ballot.

At 3 a. m. the convention adjourned sine die.

Mr. Van Pelt, editor of the Craig, Mo., Meteor, went to a drug store at Hillsdale, Iowa, and asked the physician in attendance to give him a dose of something for cholera morbus and looseness of the bowels. He says: "I felt so much better the next morning that I concluded to call on the physician and get him to fix me up a supply of the medicine. I was surprised when he handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He said he prescribed it regularly in his practice and found it the best he could get or prepare. I can testify to its efficiency in my case at all events." For sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.

Limestone Caves in Burma.

The question has been raised whether the numerous limestone caves in British Burma have been explored for archaeological remains. The Rev. F. Mason pointed out the probability of an examination of the stalagmite floors of these caves yielding important archaeological discoveries in 1872. Many of the caves were known to have been used by the Buddhists of former generations, as Buddhist idols were found in them, and it is probable they were inhabited by men in the early time.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Pleasures of Being a Barber. Barbering has been a very genteel art, and it might be fine yet. The fee is so small there is no excuse for doing a credit business, and there is no bore of bookkeeping. The chink drops in fast, and "Next!" is a merry cry.

And what a luxury it is to have a man fumble your face and head. The barber's nimble, strong fingers rouses your somnolent wits. It is delicious to be kneaded, combed, brushed, bathed, curried, spruced up.—National Barber.

Ex-President White's Collection.

It is not generally known, we think, that Andrew D. White, formerly president of Cornell university, has a remarkable collection of posters, including a number of the original incendiary placards and bills put up in the streets of Paris during the frightful period of the French revolution.—Chicago News.

The Principal Meal.

The principal meal of all people of all ages has been undoubtedly dinner, and the lover of old time customs will find it both interesting and entertaining to notice the various changes which have taken place in the etiquette of the dinner table.—Chicago Herald.

Everybody Uses Tobacco in India.

It is not, as among the English, that only some men smoke tobacco, but with rare exceptions in India all natives, men and women, indulge in this weed in some form or other.—Chambers' Journal.

Probably the estimate of the earth's population for the year 1891, made by a learned German statistician, is the most nearly accurate of any yet made—1,480,000,000.

The bank capital of Boston at the beginning of this century, including a branch bank of the United States, was about $2,500,000.

His Bottle Proved to Be Loaded.

A young boy named Gilson, in company with one or two other boys, was on the sewer dock and discovered several bottles in an old iron tank. In one of the bottles was a white substance. Young Gilson's curiosity was aroused. He produced a match and, lighting it, dropped it into the bottle. He held the bottle in his right hand, and no sooner had the match struck the bottom of the bottle than an explosion followed, blowing the bottle to atoms, filling Gilson's hand with the fragments of the glass and also nearly blowing the thumb off his hand.—New Haven Register.

ACTING SAVES LIVES.

COUNSEL FOR MURDERERS EMPLOY THEATRICAL METHODS.

How Lawyers Who Defend Criminals Strive to Make an Impression on the Sympathies of Jurymen—Some Notable Cases Where Lawyers Succeeded.

For years it has been generally known among lawyers that all sorts of desperate and theatrical devices are constantly resorted to in order to save the lives of accused persons. But Mr. Wellman was the first prosecutor to make the charge in open court and quote an instance to fortify his allegation.

Is the practice right or wrong? Perhaps the most moving part of Lawyer William F. Howe's elegant summing up on behalf of Annie Walden was where he besought the jurymen to consider her youth, her beauty and her helplessness.

When Francis L. Wellman, assistant district attorney, began his summing up for the prosecution, he urged the jurors not to be moved by his adversary's emotional appeals. He called Mr. Howe an actor. He said:

"If you had seen him, as I have, go behind a woman defendant and pinch her to make her scream and so arouse sympathy, you would not be so much influenced by his theatrical display."

"Whom did Mr. Howe pinch?" I asked Mr. Wellman.

"Ella Nelson," was his prompt reply. "You recall that she had shot her lover dead because he was packing his trunk and preparing to leave her. She was on trial for her life. Mr. Howe got her acquitted."

"When he had got to that part of his summing up where he called upon the jury to 'look at her,' Ella was sitting behind a table, her face toward the jury, but resting in her hands. She had been weeping for some minutes, but now she was composed.

"Look at that face!" pleaded Mr. Howe in impassioned tones. He strode rapidly behind her. Again he cried, 'Look at that face!' and as he did so he seized Ella's soft wrists in his strong hand and wrenched her arms apart. The woman screamed with pain and terror.

"That scream was enough to freeze the blood of anybody who heard it. I cannot help thinking that it had much to do with the verdict."

"I do not say that it is wrong for counsel to employ theatrical methods in defending their clients. I think it is part of the duty of the prosecuting officer to expose this sort of thing to the jury."

Frederick B. House was defending a man named Becker in the general sessions. Becker had a clothing store in Baxter street. He arranged a candle so that when it burned down to a certain point at midnight it would set fire to a lot of bagging soaked with kerosene, and so burn the store and earn Becker a big amount of insurance. Firemen quenched the flames and so saved the lives of seventy-six men, women and children who were sleeping in the tenements above the store.

"When Mr. House summed up he was in a quandary. Becker couldn't understand one word in English, therefore how could the poor devil weep at the proper moment? That little difficulty was solved all right. Becker rested his face in his hands and peeped through his interlaced fingers at his eloquent defender.

"Think, gentleman," said Mr. House, "if you send this wretched man to prison you will punish those innocent little ones." At that instant Mr. House dropped his handkerchief.

"Wow!" came a shriek from Becker. It began like the scream of a catamount. It died away in a long drawn wail and choking sobs. Becker's tears were like a shower. Mrs. Becker and the little Becker's tears were a cloudburst. Human nature couldn't stand it. Juror No. 8 was a nice old fellow, retired from business and living at home surrounded by sons and daughters and chubby grandchildren. He broke down at the second drop of Fred House's handkerchief. At the third drop of the cambrio the juror's tears gushed out beyond the railing. Answering sniffles and gasps came from two other jurors.

"It seems hard to believe, but it is a matter of record that in the face of the clear evidence against Becker the jury stood three for acquittal and nine for conviction. The tears and howls and the little Becker's saved the guilty man. And in proof of his guilt let me add that Becker was released under $2,500 bail, but he ran away, although the case was soon brought up for retrial.

"Often the question of makeup tests the counsel stage manager's ability and ingenuity. There was Alphonse Stephani, the young man who deliberately murdered Lawyer Clinton G. Reynolds for not surrendering Stephani's father's estate fast enough to be squandered. The defense was insanity.

"Perhaps you recall the Stephani who came to trial. Instead of the handsome, neatly dressed rich man's son, the jury saw a wild, unkempt creature, a Caliban in ugliness. Stephani's hair had been untouched by shears or brush for months. He had not bathed or shaved. He still wore the clothes he had on when arrested. His linen was in tatters and almost black. His outer garments were greasy and crusted with accumulations of spilled food. Stephani was a good actor. Not a word did he speak to any one. With large black eyes, as deep and mournful as Edwin Booth's, he stared closely at nothing. Leave was a
