The pall, or "precipice," can be reached by a long drive from Honolulu. When two ladies who had traveled much and were accustomed to hearing French spoken in foreign countries were told that the pali was one of the places to be visited they translated the word "palace." they were invited to the latter place to a piles, constipation Unequaled for men, women and children. An hour or more had elapsed, the roadway was steep and rough, and the rain was still falling. The ladies in their anxi ety had forgotten their French, and cried out in honest English; "Where is the palace?"

"Palace!" quoth the driver; 'tis not the palace at all; it's the pali, an there it is!" After this there was nothing to be done but to turn about and retrace their steps but they were forced to descend in the mire and rain while the driver turned the carriage. Wet and bedragglad, they ar rived at the palace just as the guests were departing, and next morning found that their adventure had become town talk.-Youth's Companion.

An Interesting Patent.

Of the many people who think they know a good deal about the confederate government only a few are aware of the fact that the confederacy was supplied with a pat ent office, and that it issued patents in just about the same style as that practiced by the United States. How many inventions received such protection as could be thrown around by the power which ruled the south for four years may never be known, but it is certain that at least fifteen received official recognition, for on a wall in the office of Mr. James L. Norris is an original document which assured John L. Jones, of Tally-Ho, N. C., that for fourteen years from the 26th day of August, 1861, he should have "the full and exclusive right and liberty of making constructing, using and vending to other to be used" a new and useful improvement in carriage wheels.

This was the fifteenth patent issued by the confederacy. It was signed by Judah P. Benjamin, attorney general, and countersigned by Rufus R. Rhodes, commissioner of patents. Mr. Rhodes was United States commissioner of patents prior to the war. Accompanying the parchment, which is properly sealed, and which cost Mr. Jones the sum of forty dollars, are the customary specifications and drawings. The penmanship displayed in the specifications is extremely beautiful, while the drawings, which are in india ink on linea tracing, could hardly be improved on. The whole forms a most interesting and valuable souvenir .- Washington Star.

The Oldest Known Inscription

In the palace of the Louvre, Paris, in that position set apart for Hebrew antiquities may be seen the famous "Pillar of King Mesa." It is fashioned from pure black basalt, measures 40 inches in height, 28 in width and 14 inches in thickness, For 2,800 years this famous historical "stela" remained in one position in the "country of the Moabites," on the shores of the Dear sea, at the spot, as is supposed, where the frontier of their territory joined with that of the tribe of Reuben. It bears upon its faces the very oldest inscriptions that have yet been deciphered, characters, words and sentences that were "graved thereon" at a time contemporaneous with the Bible, 900 years before the birth of the Saviour.

One remarkable thing in connection with this antique pillar and its history is the fact that it was not buried in the sands, as most well preserved ancient relics have been, but remained standing erect in the full light of the day for twenty-eight centuries. The first news of the whereabouts of this ancient pillar was communicated population of 1,008,576 people, as the to M. Clermont-Ganneau, one of the French consuls at Jerusalem, in 1870. The great historical value of the find may be judged from the fact that many of the inscriptions supply facts that have been wholly omitted from the Biblical accounts of the wars between King Mesa and the Israelites.-St. Louis Republic

An Odious English Monopoly.

It has been said by Macaulay that some of the most odious of the patents of monopoly passed the great seal while it was in charge of Lord Bacon, including that granted to Sir Giles Monpesson and to Sir Francis Mitchell (immortalized by Mas-singer as Sir Giles Overreach and Justice Greedy) for the exclusive manufacture of gold and silver lace. This patent is characterized by the historian as the most dis graceful in our history, not only because it covered spurious manufacture and fraudulent dealing, but also because the patentees were armed with unprecedented and scandalous powers, which enabled them to invade the sanctity of homes and to arrest persons alleged to be interlopers in the trade.

The shameful manner in which such powers could be exercised can be well imagined. Bacon was not only a party to the granting of this patent, but also a strong supporter of the patentees and a protector of their rights when these were assailed. -All the Year Round.

The Student's Prayer.

There was long ago a Divinity hall preided over by a most amiable and dignified professor. On certain days the senior tudents opened the proceedings of the day with prayer. One morning a raw youti from a remote region performed this duty and it was a memorable occasion. None who were present can forget how the venerable professor turned and gazed on the intutored lad, who prayed for him as fol ws: "Lord, have mercy on our professor or he is weak and ignorant. Strengthen is feeble hands, confirm his tottering knees, and grant that he may go out and in before us like the he goat before the flock."-"Twenty-five Years of St. An

A& awful example of the risks to be encountered by those who play chess with adversaries of uncertain temper is recorded in the "Annals of the Four Masters." Had Stolen the Stock. The arrest of H. M. Connell promises to develop into a lively sensation among cattlemen, and may bring about a shaking up in Northwest Nebraska. On Wednesday Connell brought 140 head of cattle and turned them over to Burke & Frazier, commission men at the South Omaha stock yards under the name of Patrick Mulcahy. The commission firm paid Connell $800 on accounts and he disappeared. In a little while the firm discovered that Connell was not Mulcahy, but that the latter was after his cattle. Search was made for Connell and he was found at the Reid hotel in the company of a woman whom he introduced as his wife. She proved to be Mrs. Elwood, wife of a ranchman living not far from O'Neill, in Holt county. When arrested Connell had $520 on his person. Subsequently $220 was recovered from the woman.

Today Connell confessed that he stole the cattle at the instance of the woman, and further stated that she had in her valise when they left $10,344 secured on a mortgage covering 540 head of cattle belonging to Mulcahy. Connell drew up the mortgage and secured the money from a bank at O'Neill. Mrs. Elwood was not arrested at the time Connell was taken in, as her connection with the crime was not suspected, but the officers are now looking for her. Connell will be given a hearing and some interesting disclosures are looked for. He was until quite recently a teamster employed in South Omaha at a salary of $7 per week.

Nothing is more sinned against today than the use of scents, writes Mrs. Burton Harrison in the December Ladies Home Journal. To the many people to whon any strong odor is distressing, the present reign of scent bags in the garments of women who frequent public conveyance is intolerable. It is only the faintest suggestion of a refined perfume that should ever be allowed to hang even for a moment about the belongings of a well-bred girl; and even such a casual use of the merest whiff of the dainty and impalable essence should be rare ; to wear any redolence upon her person in sachets is unpardonable.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price, 50c. and $1. Trial size free.
