"Do I believe in signs and luck, and superstitions and all that blooming non-Act on a new priciple -regulating sense? Of course not," said fat and jolly the liver, stomach and bowels Henry Thornburgh at Hurst's hotel to a group of philosophers. "I have some sort of respect for the people whose superstition is a rel ion. The Egyptians, who worshiped the dog and cat and even the crocodile; the Romans, who put their faith in divination and oracles and magical powers of analets; the Greeks, who leffied bees and ant a even the mysteries and absurditios of astrology and alchemy called Mr. Blowhard a liar, Tomm? all have my sympathies and at least re-

"But the horrors of the dreadful figure 13 and the fears some people have of making one of that number; the refusal to start a journey or undertaking on Friday; all sorts of ghosts and spectral warnings, with second sight, etc., have my supreme contempt. I have known men to slundder upon seeing two magples at the same time; a friend of mine left my table not long ago because one of my children spilled some salt while moving his plate; one of the firm in our house would rather suffer fine and imprisonment than to put on his left shoe first when he gets up in the morning. And in most respects these people are all sensible people.

A decade had elspsed.

In that period vast changes had been wrought, women were admitted to all fields of human endeavor and the avocations formerly considered to belong to the sterner sex exclusively were open to

In a quiet resort, somewhat removed from the busiest thoroughfare, one man chanced to ask another for a chew of tobacco. Thence the conversation turned by easy stages upon the evils of the day.

The man with a look of settled despair in his dark brown eyes was subdued in his address

-"it's getting so a fellow without a wife has just about got to starve." "Yes.

"It's a shame the way the women have crowded us out of business." "True."

Both remained in silent meditation for a moment. "But then"-

The look of settled despair was somewhat less pronounced for a moment. "we should be grateful that Providence has left us pre-eminent in one calling. Thank heaven, they can't compete with us in dressmaking."

It was a comforting thought, to be sure. - Detroit Tribune.

Among the Roses.

Bags full of roses, baskets heavy with roses, carts laden with roses; roses, roses, die.

There is roseleaf jam to eat-very fresh and sweet it is-and there is rose leaf sirup to drink. Every vase and vessel is full of roses; they drop on you Everbody has at times failed to do from unexpected places; great bunches of bright pink heads lying on the ground admonish you as you walk; you can make a bed of them if you will; go to the granary-rosary, i suppose it should be called-and there you will find as soft and sweet a couch as was ever laid in the "Arabian Nights" for eastern princes to dream upon.

This is how it came about that I saw such a multiplicity of roses. We ful filled a long cherished scheme and went to Kezanlik, the Valley of Roses, in the Balkans, once the famouse rose garden of Turkey.-Blackwood's Magazine.

The Ibos on the Niger.

Ivory anklets, often very heavy, are only worn by the Ibo women of wealth and importance, but the metal anklets worn by others may be many pounds in weight, and some of them wear huge brass plates, perhaps a foot in diameter, which, once fixed to the ankles, are never removed. The men wear a single strip of cotton cloth, but those who come much in contact with the Europeans are now learning to wear trousers. Their weapons are flintlocks, bows and spears -the latter both for hurling and thrust-

The huts are built of mud and matting and are quadrangular in shape. The center is an open courtyard, at one end of which is the apartment of the head of the house, while the wives and family are accommodated in other rooms on the right and left of the courtyard. There is no furniture or ornament, and but a few household utensils and weapons.-All the Year Round.

More Than He Bargained For.

"When I used to travel about the country lecturing," said a retired temperance talker, "I carried with me as a frightful e cample a man with a brilliant red nose, and during my remarks I would call upon him for testimony. On one occasion we struck a small town where we had an audience of about a handred people. I was making fine headway with my lecture, and at the proper time I glanced over the crowd and said, "Will the gentleman with the red nose please rise to his feet?" Of course my man got up, but before he could do so thirty-seven men had risen slowly to their feet, and I don't think I was ever more embarrassed in my life."-Toledo Blade.

Here is a conversation I overheard the other day in a Ninth avenue train. It be gan at Eighty-first street and was just a mile long. An intelligent looking middle aged man sat next the door. "I want to get out to Eighteenth street," he said to the guard. "No station on Ninth avenue. Four teenth street's yer nearest station."

"Why, isn't there a station at Eighteenth "Not on this road. One on the Sixth avenue road." "I thought the stations were at the same streets on all the roads?" 'No, sir.'

"What's the best station for me to get out at?" "Fourteenth street." "Isn't there a station at Twenty-third street?"

"Yes, str." "Why can't I get out there!"

"You can, but it's a block farther from Eighteenth." "Well, I can get out at Eighteenth street by taking the Sixth avenue road, can't I?' "Yes, sir; change at Fifty-ninth street." "Can I get on a Sixth avenue train there?" "Yes, sir."

"But it would be nearer for me to go down Ninth avenue, wouldn't it?" "Yes, sir, and get out at Fourteenth."

And so it kept on, and yet those guards are expected to always be polite!-New Movable Drops in Diamonds, It has long been known that diamonds, especially the class known as "rose diamonds," are likely to explode if subjected only to what would seem a very ordinary degree of heat, such as strong rays from the sun, etc. It is now believed that the Yards and Office 404 South Third Street. pansion of certain volatile liquids inclosed in cavities near the center of these precious stones, A great many diamonds, even though cut, mounted and worn as gems of perfection, are still in an unfinished condition-that is, the liquid drop from which the stone is being formed has not as yet deposited all of its "pure crystals of carbon." These movable drops may occasionally be en with the naked eve. When this is the case a strong microscope will give the drop the appearance of a bub ble in the fluid of a carpenter's level. It is also highly probable that besides the liquid mentioned these cavities may contain gases under great tension. This being the case, one may readily comprehend how a very small amount of heat would cause the liquid and gas to expand to such a de gree that the diamond would give way with all the characteristics of a miniature explosion .- St. Louis Republic.

Curiosities in Language.

It is curious to note at so late a period as 1580 the prothesis of "n" to which a word beginning with a vowel was subject when it was preceded by a participle ending in "n;" hence "In England," pronounced "In Ningland." Such oddities as "a nele"— "an cel"-may thus be explained by supposing not that the "n" of the article has shifted its position to the substantive, but that it has simply dropped away from its double. We may conclude also that "Goodby," the present representative of "God boui" (Anglice "God b'wee"), was unknown to London ears in 1589; a Frenchman would not have failed to tell us if he had heard anybody saying "Goude bai." Some persons think that the two forms have different etymologies, but it is more probable that the older form corrupted into the later when the pronunciation of "b'wee" was found troublesome and the etymology was lost sight of. Such cor ruption would be facilitated by confusion with the expressions "good day," "good night;" hence the change of "God" to "good," which puzzles so many.-Notes and Queries.

A Great Need in Every Great City.

I have heard it said a thousand times that in this busy city of New York no one who really wants work need go idle long; but in the best season, when work and wages are most pientiful, that is only half true. The work may be there and at the same time thousands may be going around looking very hard for it, yet fail to find it. They do not know where to look, and there is no one to tell them. Perhaps they o not know enough of our language to ask and be understood. Some agency is needed INTEREST ALLOWED ON TIME DEPOSITS to bring the work and those who own it together under auspices that would inspire confidence on both sides.

I think that some great central labor bureau conducted by a thoroughly responsi-ble organization that could appeal to the community with the certainty not only of enlisting the aid of employers, but also of reaching the unemployed, would be one of the greatest boons that could be conferred upon the poor .- Jacob A. Rils in Forum.
