A BABY IN THE SNOW.

A STRANGE CHRISTMAS EXPERIENCE OF A TRACKWALKER.

A Railroad Man's Story of a Cold, Stormy Night Over Twenty Years Ago, When the Snow was Piled in Banks Along the Railroad Track—A Christmas Gift.

Every time I think of Christmas I think of the year 1872," said an old track-walker. "That's more than twenty years ago, isn't it? Twenty years is a good long stretch. Lots can happen to a man in twenty years. He could get rich and spend it all and get rich again in that space of time and still have lots of time to spare. But I haven't. I've just staid poor right along.

But as I was saying, speaking of Christmas always reminds me of 1872. I was trackwalking then for the Vandall line on a section between Terre Haute and Farrington, in the state of Indiana.

"After they did get by my section the snow was banked up seven or eight feet deep in some places by the side of the track. It was so cold that I wrapped coffee sacks around my feet before starting out, just to keep them from a frost bite.

"As I was stamping along thinking like this, away off ahead of me I saw a spark. It's the St. Louis express," I said to myself, and she'll be rumbling over me at about sixty miles an hour.

"The man gave a cry of horror that rang out high above the clamor of the wheels and the rattle of the rails and the creaking of the coaches. Something shot down just past my head and landed in the snowdrift beside me. I shut my eyes, but still saw the woman with the bundle and the man with outstretched, pleading arms.

"I distrust the intelligence of any person whom I see handling a book, disrespectful," a lady declared the other day. "A good book is one of the best of friends, and deserves good treatment—not merely that one should not strain its back or crease its pages, but to be treated with delicacy, consideration and respect.

"I never do say it, but I am far from certain if it would not be a justifiable impoliteness if I did."—Youth's Companion.

Some Family Talk. "This is a hard family to live with!" pointed the piano. "Miss Susie pounds me every day for an hour or two!"

"Well, at least you don't have to work," exclaimed the clock. "My hands are never idle; they keep them moving every minute and second."

"Talk about work!" cried the table; "why, almost everything is put on me."

"I wouldn't mind work," observed the lamp, "but I'm sensitive, and it isn't pleasant when you're quite bright to be turned down once or twice every evening."

"Sensitive!" sneered the mirror. "Think of the ugly faces often turned on me!"

"And think also," said the carpet, "how the children jump on me; still I'm not worn out yet."

"You may all talk till you're tired, yet you must admit that not one of you is so fat upon as I am!" finished the chair decisively.—Harper's Young People.

Things to Avoid. Sleeping in badly ventilated rooms, wearing at night the underclothing which is worn through the day, late hours, loss of sleep, greasy food and irregularity of meals, all tend to weaken the system to such an extent as to render it quite incapable of resisting the changes in the weather or any exposure to disease.—Good House-keeping.

SMOKED FOR OVER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco. Has been popular with smokers everywhere for over twenty-five years. It is just as good now as ever.

Its FLAVOR, FRAGRANCE and PURITY have contributed largely to the growing popularity which pipe smoking enjoys. Pipe smoking is growing in favor because finer, sweeter and better tobacco can be had in this form and at much less cost than in cigars.

DOWN O' THE THISTLE.

In airy wings in sunny August days Show sails the thistle down; Through quivering seas of shimmering golden haze

White leaped in drifts of summer, fallen snow Whole argosies lie wrecked the hedge below

But when the trade winds sweep with desolate cry, Fast, fast, the thistle down, Sped by the mad blast, wildly flutters high

The harvest of the winds thus reaped in haste— Is swiftly sown in fields remote and waste That fringe the dusty roads, whose bounds are traced

By ragged ranks of crowded stalks that show But empty silvery creases, from friend or foe Kept safe by sturdy spines. The vanished seeds

The early rains shall find, as onward speeds The flying ray, till under April skies In countless hosts the purple blossoms rise.

The Waste in Coal Consumption.

It is agreeable to learn that the enormous matter in the 4,000,000 tons of coal which are used every year by the gas manufacturing companies of London is now being made a considerable source of revenue.

The tar has been a source of such revenue to the gas companies that it may be seriously stated that every year there is more coloring matter sent into the atmosphere of London than would dye all the fabrics woven by English looms within the same time.
