In Hawarden Castlo. The Rev. Henry Drew was an amiabia and congenial guide to the many objects of engrossing interest in Hawarden castle. Before leaving the drawing room I had feasted my eyes on many relics and souvenirs of the life still in such wonderful preservation. The room is a large lightsome one, looking on to the grounds. Every nook and corner of it has some token of love or admiration from worshipers of the great man who inhabits this retreat. These were from all quarters-India, Italy, Ireland, America and England.

Here is a huge embossed silver cylinder, containing tapestry from India, and there lying alongside a great book of photographs stamped "Roma," is an immense beautifully bound album containing nothing but the names of Italian students. The bright face of Lord Rosebery looks out on you from a large silver frame surmounted with the letter "R." while the ascetic countenance of John Morley is not absent. - Pall Mall Gazetta.

Theft Revealed by a Dream.

Mrs. Cornelia M. Thomas, of St. Paul, is under arrest charged with having stolen $1,000 from her sister, Mrs. Mary D. Phillips, of Seattle, Wash. The circumstances preceding the arrest are peculiar. Mrs. Phillips was in St. Paul recently. She returned to Seattle and while en route dreamed that Cornelia Thomas had abstracted $1,000 of $2,400 which she had in the lining of her dress. A search revealed the amount $1,000 short. Mrs. Phillips returned at once to St. Paul. Mrs. Thomas was searched and part of the stolen money found on her. The stolen bills were sewed into a belt worn next to her skin by Mrs. Thomas.—Minneapolis Journal.

"I took entire charge of the stardirection for father," said he in a chat the other day, "and so relieved him of all anxiety on that score. I had the most difficulty in getting proper handling of the temple scene in 'Samson,' where Samson pulls the shrine of Diana down upon the heads of the people. I superintended this and got everything into working shape, but did not have father rehearse the failing in of the temple.

"I knew that the mechanical effect would take care of itself, so far as he was concerned, and merely placed a dummy there so as to arrange that none of the debris should fall so as to hit Samson. The effect of this tumbling in of the scenery was rather terrifying. It was the 'supers' whom I expected to give me the most trouble. Of osurse I wished them, representing the worshipers in the temple, to make a regular stampede, but I did not rehearse them for it.

"Well, when we played 'Samson' the first night I secured just the result I wanted. You ought to have seen those supers run off the stage! They thought the whole house was tumbling in on them. The way they went off that stage was a caution. At least they tried to go, but in their terror they tumbled all over one another in a heap. It produced a magnificent terror effect, and the audience probably thought it had all been rehearsed to perfection. But the supers knew better."

"How did they act the next night?" "They didn't act at all. They were so terrified that they never came back. I expected that and had a new lot ready. The most astounded man of all was probably father. When the whole temple tumbled down upon him, he was perfectly bewildered, and as soon as the curtain was down he turned to me and energetically exclaimed, 'Sacramento! but do you want to kill me?' When cautious investigation showed him that no piece of scenery could fall on him, he accepted the situation philo sophically."-Minneapolis Tribune.

The Trade of Burglury.

The Tals of the Telephone.

The first telephone that was ever used was not electrical, nor was it a scientific instrument in any sense of the term. A little more than 50 years ago the employees of a large manufactory beguiled their leisure hours by kite flying. Kites large and small went up daily, and the strife was to see who could get the largest. The twine which held them was the thread spun and twisted by the ladies of the village.

One day to the tale of the largest kite was attached a kitten, sewed in a canvas bag, with a netting over the mouth to give it air. When the kite was at its greatest height-200 feet or more-the mewing could be string. To the clearness of the atmosphere was attributed the hearing others may know of the Balm .- J' of the kitten's voice. This is the first W. Mathewson, (lawyer).
