Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the formation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have no much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In a recent letter to the manufacturers Mr. W. P. Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, Rushford, N. Y., says: "It may be a pleasure to you to know the high esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines are held by the people of your own state, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years since, and before leaving home wrote me, asking if they were sold here, stating that if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds and croup; Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learned that they are articles of great worth and merit, and unequalled by any other. THE NEWS' LEAFLET NO. 17

(Cut this out and put it in your pocket for reference.)

Some attention was given in the last leaflet to the charge that the act of 1873 was surreptitiously passed.

It may be interesting also to see whether its enactment proved disastrous to the country in any way.

A good way to test this is to see how the condition of the country in 1880 compared with that of 1870, since one-half of the years between 1870 and 1880 passed without the coinage of any standard silver dollars, and there were coined but 53,000,000 of them during the entire decade.

In 1870 the total money of the country amounted to $722,808,401. In 1880 the total money of the country amounted to $1,206,929,197, an increase of 60 per cent. Does that look as though the country was ruined by the crime of 1873?

In 1870 the money of the country amounted to $18.73 for each individual; in 1880 it amounted to $24.04 for each individual, or per capita, as it is called. Thus the amount of money in the country increased much faster than the population during that fatal decade in which the "crime" was committed, and the country was kept for five long years without the coinage of a single standard dollar. Does that look as though the people suffered for currency because of the "crime of 1873"?

In 1870 the wealth of the country amounted to $870 for each individual. Does that look as though the country had suffered during that terrible decade in which such a crime against its prosperity had been committed?

In 1870 the amount of money paid as wages by the manufacturers of the United States amounted to $775,000,000; in 1880 it amounted to $948,000,000. In 1870 the number of people finding employment in the manufacturing establishments of the country was 2,054,000; in 1880 they amounted to 2,570,000, a gain of over a million dollars in the decade. Does that look as though there had been a scarcity of money in that "dark decade" in which we were without the light of free coinage of silver?

In 1870 the average wages of labor stood at 67 in gold, taking the rate paid in 1860 as the unit of 100. In 1880 they stood at 143 upon the same unit, or basis of calculation, thus showing a marked increase in wages during that decade of no free coinage. Does this look as though the "crime" of that period had affected the country or the people disadvantageously?

In 1870 the average gold price of commodities of life stood at 119 compared with a unit of 100 in 1860; in 1880 they stood at 103, compared with the same unit, thus showing a marked fall in the cost of living while the cost had been meantime marked increase in the wages earned. Does this look as though the years in which no standard dollars had been coined had been especially disastrous?

A comparison of 1870 with 1880 would produce much more startling contrasts, but 1880 has been chosen for the comparison because the years 1870 and 1880 are the beginning and the end of a decade in which it is claimed that a great financial crime was committed, and retained as an absolute pall over the country until within twenty-two months of the end of that decade.

Think it over. Remember that the suspension of free coinage occurred only about two years after the census of 1870 and that it has never been resumed. Then remember that the wealth of the country jumped from $780 per capita in 1870 to $1,039 in 1880 in the absence of free coinage. Remember that labor will earn more gold today than it did in 1870, despite the constant assertion that gold has appreciated since the suspension of the free coinage of silver. Remember, too, that the dollars thus earned will buy much more than they would at that time. Remember that the country was never so prosperous as it was four years ago when the people were persuaded to vote for free trade. Then consider whether it is free silver plus free trade that you want for the next four years.

WHEAT has gone up 13 cents per bushel since the 1st of September and silver has fallen 3 cents per ounce, but that is not all. Millions on top of millions of gold has been received at New York from England in payment for the ship loads of wheat which has been purchased for the Liverpool market. How do the Bryan logicians like that condition of affairs; wheat going up and silver going down is a fatal blow below the belt of Mr. Bryan's hobby which he hoped to ride upon into the white house. The man who don't think, as well as the man who does, can understand a plain statement of fact.

A MAN named Porter has finally been found with the temerity to run for governor of New York on a democratic free silver ticket. Porter seems very like his friend Bryan in one respect, that is he looks upon the candidacy for a high office as being such a big thing, and so much above what he is accustomed to that he does not hesitate to accept a nomination, although defeat is certain.

We Must Have a Sugar Factory.

The following from the Norfolk Journal illustrates what the sugar factory is doing for their people in times of depression:

"The sugar factory began slicing beets yesterday morning and the first sugar, it is expected, will be secured sometime today. From now on till the last beet goes through there will be no cessation and there are enough beets in sight to keep the great mill going night and day until the first of March. There has never been a season when harvest has been pushed so rapidly as this year, and this is undoubtedly due to a fear on the part of the beet raisers that the conditions of last year may again occur. There is, however, no fear of this, as the facts show that the crop has reached the stage of ripeness in a natural way and the percentage of purity is running extremely high in consequence of that condition. In this fact all Norfolk rejoices. A greater proportion of the beets needed by the factory has been grown in this vicinity this year than ever before, and when the crop is delivered there will have been well up to $150,000 distributed through the community for beets alone. While this is being done something like $200,000 will be paid out to the labor employed in the factory, and these two sums will put new life into the business channels of Norfolk, regardless of the conditions that surround other farm crops. Norfolk is just now a great big object lesson of industry that gives employment to local labor and uses a raw material that can be produced on local soil and shows what it will do for a community."

Break Jail at Nebraska City.

Sometime between one o'clock and daylight yesterday morning John D. Hunt and Henry Wolfner, who were in jail awaiting trial for selling mortgaged property and daylight burglary, tried out a big rock under the window of their cell and ransomed their escape.

Sheff Haisberg's father, who acts as jailer, said that he made the rounds at midnight, but discovered nothing wrong. He saw from under the door escaped by the rear window of the cell, but he did not see them until they were about thirty minutes to elude their escape. They took a sill of the window was removed by using a spring under the ledge window casing. On this window there is no outside casing and the men raised the window and walked out.—Nebraska City Press.
