In some manner she dropped the pipe and it was broken to pieces. She left it lay there, but in the morning when these facts were learned her life would have been dispaired of had she not been the possessor of $120, which she gave up. But they decided that for this offense some punishment must be placed upon her. For this purpose firebrands were used, from which she suffered for hours by those chunks of She almost constantly praved to God wise into strips. to relieve her from these tortures by death. After getting to their home in the Big Horn country, she was then put to daily work-such as carrying water and wood, scraping the willow bush, drying and sacking up for their smoking purposes.

I was a memper of the Sixth Iowa cavalry, and put in three long years battling with the Sioux. Sometimes we were attacked by numbers many times larger than our small band of twenty thousand Indians as we marched through the Bad Lands. Wille there others and myself saw the track of a white woman in the sand. We knew nothing of her capture by the Indians, and after we lost a few men and hundreds of horses, which mostly perished for want of water and food, and after leaving the Bad Land covered with good Indians-dead-we then camped upon the banks of the Yellowstone river. After a few days rest we resumed our way to the lower forts on the Missouri river for the in my next I will tell you of the discovery of Mrs. Kelly and the manner in which correspondence was carried on between her and Captain Fisk.

They Were Unsuccessful.

The following telegram from Elmwood appeared in the morning papers: Yesterday while the Union Lumber con pany's office force were all at dinner, some one entered the back door of the office and tried to get the contents of the cash drawer with a skele- the maker puts his lips to the orifice and ton key, but failed as they broke the blows full and hard into the bulb. REDUCING RUBBER.

HOW ARTICLES OF USE ARE MADE FROM THIS VALUABLE PRODUCT.

A Long List From Rubber Bands to Surgical Supplies-An Interesting Description of How Bulbs For Syringes and Atomizers Are Made.

Rubber is one of the most staple and aseful articles is modern use. There are but few uses to which the wonderful product cannot be put. It can be made as pliable as putty or as hard as wood, ence of over $22,000 on farm mort- and is just as adapted for use as a hairpin as for a golf ball or a waterproof jacket. Few people, however, are as familiar with the process of manufacture as with the product itself.

The larger part of our rubber goods comes from Brazil, which is the greatest rubber producing country in the 5,518 world. Here, of course, rubber workers handle their elastic material with an ease and celerity which is a revelation to the man who has wasted the greater terns in endless designs at Tucker Sispart of a forenoon trying to mend a hole | ters'. in his punctured tire. Although the larger part of rubber manufacturing is done by machinery there is still considerable done by hand. Rubber erasers contain finely powdered pumice stone or emery dust. The abrasive materials are mixed with the rubber mechanically, which is then molded into shape and vulcanized under steam heat.

One of the most interesting processes in the manufacture of rubber goods is that of bulbs. Long bulbs, such as syringes and atomizers, are made from two pieces of rubber, but round bulbs, such as pumps and balls, are made from three pieces. For cutting the rubber gine or galvanized iron patterns are soldiers. Late in the fall of '64 we had used. Considerable care is necessary a continuous fight of three days with in this, as the strength of the seam depends upon the smooth fitting of the edges. The three parts for hollow balls may, however, be cut with a die. If the bulb has a neck, small pegs of iron are first prepared by being cemented and wound with strips of rubber as a nu-

> After the rubber is cut into the proper parts it is then brushed with cement the whole length of the skived edges and thoroughly heated. The bulbmaker then takes the softened rubber, and taking a prepared peg places the neck on one piece on one side of the rubber core and another neck piece on the opposite side, then presses them firmly together, and, rolling the whole tube shaped piece between thumb and forefinger, has finished the neck of the bulb. The next process is that of knitting the edges which form the seam. This is ward the operator in his left hand, while with the thumb and forefinger of the right he pinches the edges firmly together for nearly the whole distance around.
