CHARLES HAIGHT'S VICTIM EXPIRES.

Dies From Wounds Received In a Murderous Assault.

A Coroner's Jury, After Thoroughly Investigating the Facts in the Case, Charges the Victim's Nephew With the Crime of Murder—Commencement Exercises Largely Attended.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock William Haight of Avoca, the unfortunate man who was the victim of the rage of his nephew, Charles Haight, died as a result of the wound which he received.

As near as we can get the facts, Charles Haight, a man about thirty-five years of age, was doing some carpenter work in a barber shop when his uncle, Wm. Haight, entered the shop, and with deadly aim he threw at this uncle, striking the latter on the head and crushing his skull. For two days the unfortunate victim lingered in a battle with death, but yesterday he sank rapidly and toward evening he was called to his final rest. The old gentleman, it is said, leaving a family to mourn his untimely taking off.

A coroner's inquest was held this morning, which brought in a verdict in accordance with the above facts, and recommended that Charles Haight be held to the district court on the charge of murder, without bail. The young man, who allowed his temper to govern him in the commission of the crime, is now in jail, where he will doubtless remain until the next term of court.

County Attorney Graves will file a new complaint charging him with murder, which may come up for a preliminary hearing the first of the week. The Haightes are not represented as hard citizens, but it seems the young man had a vicious temper which he never tried to restrain.

The Commencement Exercises. The Commencement exercises of the Plattsmouth high school at the Presbyterian church last evening were well attended—the large audience testifying their approval of the fine programme by frequent applause.

The opening number, an organ voluntary played with the usual taste and skill of Miss Kessler, was followed by an invocation by Dr. Baird. The second number, a vocal duet, "Love," by Misses Swearingen and Street, was rendered in such a pleasing manner as to call forth a vigorous encore, which was not responded to, much to the disappointment of their friends.

Miss Kauble's beautifully performed solo on the violin was followed by Hill Wescott's valedictory address, delivered in such a graceful manner that both instructors and fellow-graduates had good reason to be proud of their pupil and companion. The subject matter showed thoughtful care and preparation, that would have done credit to a far older head than our Hill's.

Misses Kauble and Hajek's "Reverry," for two violins, was played with such exquisite touch that everyone wished they could be heard more frequently in our city.

Rev. Wm. F. Murray of Omaha delivered a fine address and presented the well-earned diplomas to the graduates as they stood before him in class, making a fine appearance with their lovely flowers.

The class song, "Farewell," which closed the program, was composed by Prof. McHugh and set to music by our talented young valedictorian, who played the accompaniment for the closing of the greatest event in the young lives of fifteen graduates from Plattsmouth's high school.

We must not omit to mention the decorations which were so artistically displayed as to call forth loud expressions of admiration. On the front of the platform a large arch tastefully draped with the class colors, bore the class motto "Step by Step We Gain the Heights," underneath was hung their emblem—a large gilt, four-leaf clover—the whole tastefully twined with smilax. Beautiful potted plants, palms and jessamines filled the air with fragrance, which, together with the lovely gowns of the graduates, presented a picture which will linger long in the minds of those present.

Sam Holloway saw a farm near Kearney of 2,500 acres all sown in alfalfa. That farmer will be wearing diamonds in a year or two, as alfalfa grows whether the rains smile on it or not. Peas were in bloom and some corn had been cultivated the second time. A Mad Dog Scare. Yesterday a large black dog of the New Foundland species came rushing down town from the northwest, biting and snapping at everything in its reach. It bit several dogs up toward Heisel's mill. It was finally killed by Fitzpatrick after it had bitten Mr. Coffee's dog near Main street. It is not known whether the dog had hydrophobia or not, as it was not frothing at the mouth, but its actions were very strange. Mr. Coffee had his dog killed at once and all dog owners should be very watchful for the next ten days to see that no trouble is developed. People cannot be too careful in keeping their children off the street where rabid dogs would be less liable to bite them.
