THE INSANE TRAMP.

Sheriff Holloway Finds He Belongs in the Pennsylvania Asylum.

James Brennan, the insane tramp who came near doing up Jalor Holloway the other day, was recently removed to the poor farm as no room could be found for him at the state asylum. Sheriff Holloway has been looking up the fellow's home, and last evening he received a letter from the chief of police at Ashland, Penn., in which the chief said that Brennan's mother resided there. Brennan had been an inmate of their poor house, and that eighteen months ago he was taken to the asylum at Harrisburgh, where, the chief asserts, he now is. It is evident from the chief's letter that Brennan has escaped from the asylum and has wandered out here. The sheriff has already written to his mother and to the asylum authorities of Brennan's condition here and asked them to send for him at once. From past action in the matter will thus save the county several dollars. If the authorities there refuse to act, Brennan will be sent back anyway by our county commissioners.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Fear Entertained That a B. & M. Agent Has Met With Foul Play.

Charles Beck, the postal clerk on the Schuyler run, relates a strange story about the disappearance of the B. & M. agent, L. L. Roy, at Irbia. Yesterday morning as their train came through Irbia no agent appeared, and his wife, who looked as if she had been crying all night, said that her husband had reported the 11 o'clock freight out, during the night had given her all the depot money as usual, had locked up the building and the last thing he did was to seal up some cars. He had not been seen since. Foul play is feared, and search last evening and today was made through the cornfield and all over the country. The Adams Express company, it was thought, might be short, and their expert went out, but he found everything straight to a cent. The wife is crazed with grief and can give no reason why her husband should go away. Not the slightest trace of him so far has been obtained.

Got Nothing.

A burglarious tramp visited John Beto's house while he and his wife were down town last evening about 9 o'clock. Chas. Yelke noticed a light in the house and he went over with his rifle to see what was wrong, as he knew the folks were away. Mr. Buglar had gained an entrance through a rear window by breaking the glass, and when he heard Yelke he got out at the place of entrance, and as he ran, Yelke fired a parting salute at him with his rifle, but with no apparent result other than to accelerate his speed. The police were notified and made a hunt for the fellow, but from the meagre description given were unable to find him. Beto had better put his silverware in a bank vault, as this is the second time his house has been entered by burglars.

Ye People of Plattsmouth Welcome.

Now be it resolved that we ladies of ye famous order of P. E. O. do hereby command that it be announced with many flourishes of trumpets that all ye people of ye town of Plattsmouth and vicinity are hereby summoned to appear at ye morrie making to be held in what was well and favorably known as Garfield park, situated in the most high place of ye most well known town of Plattsmouth, and furthermore that this summons be operative and binding upon all our townsmen and townswomen and upon our countrymen and countrywomen upon the two days now known in ye present calendar as ye 25th and 26th days of ye month of August.

Upon such days in such place aforementioned ye glory of our honorable order will be upheld before all comers by a most noble band of knights and ladies. Upon this pleasant spot there will be enacted for the pleasure of all comers, many stirring scenes of battle and of love. Some shall be previously slain in the onset, some shall prosper in the favor of their ladies, but all who come from far and near to enjoy ye knightly tournament shall be exceedingly pleased.

That noble knight of much renown, Sir Augustus Pitt, will head ye list of knights, and our Herald deems it but an idle waste of breath to try further unto ye populace his great virtues, for unto ye all he is known as a man of high degree and honor.

Sir Guy Livingston, also a man of fame, will hold ye lists against all comers beneath ye greenwood tree. Ye Herald doth call to all men's minds his fame well and justly earned when he did hold a lance and run many a joust against ye far famed knight, Sir Polk, in ye battles of ye Guelphs and Ghibelines amongst ye hills of county Cass.

Then there will also be upon the list ye knight from Dublin, Sir David McEntee, a godly man of prowess who is most anxious to run a course in honor of his fair lady.

The leech, Sir Roy Dodge, will, upon this occasion, make tender of his services in aid of all who may sustain ye misfortune to meet with injury. Leaves and balsam and wondrous salves he has most famous for ye wound inflicted by ye sword or petronel.

Ye, even unto Africa's far clime has our edict reached and attracted by the great honor and glorie to be won, the famous black knight, Sir Lee Atwood, will hold a lance for the fair name of his dusky damsel. Nay, smile ye not lest Sir Atwood smite ye for he is an exceedingly doggy knight.

Limerick doth send a mighty man of mighty frame and glorious mein and stature, known to ye all as Sir Thomas Whalen. Verily he is a wonderful man and justly to be compared unto Sir Galahad of old, he of the holy Grail.

Sir Hugh Roberts will assist ye leech, Sir Dodge, in his ministrations unto ye sorely wounded knights. Sir Fred McCauley and Sir Louis Thomas, all hoping to gain great glory in any small bickering which may arise.

Also there will be beneath this greenwood tree the warrior maids. The ladies, Hyers and Lovings, like Brunhild and Svanhild from the northern clime. And from the far countries across the sea have journeyed Sir Charles Nelson and his lady all anxious for advancement amongst this famous company. All will be gayly equipped and we do hereby announce that on ye 25th and 26th ye great tourney will begin and all who wish to enter will signify their good intention to ye courteous knights, Sir Lehnoff, who for a trifling fee will provide ample accommodation.

Oyez, Oyez, Oyez, sound ye trumpet and beat ye drums. Assemble, assemble at ye call of ye order of ye P. E. O.

INFORMATION AND OPINION.

Sheriff Huberle this morning levied on the goods and chattels of Henry Wehling with a distress warrant, and will sell the same to satisfy the delinquent tax due from him unless he should come forward and settle prior to the sale.—Nebraska City News. A good plan for Cass to follow.

A young man who had given himself up to riotous living, that is to say, had taken board and lodgings in one of the big Florida hotels, played the limit by staying two days in that hotel's costly atmosphere. Then he asked for his bill. It was presented and amounted to $238. We have the New York Times' word for it. Studying the document for a moment he threw it back to the clerk, exclaiming: "Guess again, you chump! I've got more than that."

The deputy minister of the department of railroads and canals of the Dominion of Canada, has written to the state auditor a most elaborately worded letter asking for information as to the constitution of the state board of transportation, says the Lincoln Journal. It was so exceedingly courteously that Auditor Cornell thought of procuring the services of Hon. Clementina Chase, of Omaha, royal court correspondent of the exposition, to indie the response. However, it was found that there is a pamphlet giving all information about the board and mailing this without a letter will do the issue and save the reputation of Nebraska's official etiquette.

The bulls have made millions of dollars perhaps, on the bulge on wheat, but it is as true as holy writ that they didn't get their profits by robbing the farmers. They just fleeced some other operators, who in due time will fleece them. All of them have a good chance to die poor, while the average farmer will leave a comfortable little estate to his sons.—Ex.

Men down east are in demand for husbands. If all the bachelors in the state of New York would marry at once, there would remain over 100,000 marriageable women without husbands. These women must live, and that explains why men have been crowded out of so many lines of employment. In the cities all the school teachers except principals and superintendents are women. The clerks at the great stores, typewriters, and in many other places the men have been entirely crowded out.

In Lamppost Letter Boxes.

"Ever find things in the boxes?" was asked of a postoffice collector who was taking the letters from a lamppost letter box. "Some, but not such an everlasting lot either," was the reply. "A thief fleeing from his pursuers once dropped a watch in a lamppost letter box so that it would not be found upon his person nor along the line of his flight, but watches are not commonly found in lamppost letter boxes."

"Once when I came up to a letter box I found standing by it a policeman and a woman. The policeman said that the woman had dropped a dollar bill into the box between some letters and she wanted to get it back. The rules of the postoffice require that anything that may be found in the boxes shall be turned in at the postoffice. The loser must apply for it there. If I had found any money in this box, I should have been compelled to turn it in. But there wasn't any money there. The lady must have lost it or have left it somewhere else."

"As a matter of fact not many things of value are dropped into lamppost letter boxes. Up town you find a dead mouse in a box occasionally, but that's about all. Children put the mice in the box. They find a dead mouse in the street and think it's funny to put it in a lamppost letter box."—New York Sun.

Valley of the Euphrates.

John Punnett Peters, in his book, "Nippur, or Explorations on the Euphrates," thus describes the valley of the Euphrates: "Below Hitt, in the alluvial delta of the two rivers Tigris and Euphrates, existed one of the principal seats of civilization—one of Dame Nature's kindergarten, to teach her children the rudiments of higher life. Out of this valley westward toward the fertile uplands of northern Syria, downward to the rich coast land of the Mediterranean, outward to Cyprus and the Isles, southward to the rival valley of the Nile, the road of commerce and conquest had been the Euphrates, and for a large part of the way the Euphrates is no more than a road—a narrow pathway, sunk 100 or 200 feet beneath the plateau of a sterile wilderness swarming with wild Arabs. In the earliest ages this was the road that led the conquerors out and over which conquest and civilization traveled hand in hand. Later it became the road by which conquerors entered into the very heart of Babylonia. So it was that Babylonian and Egyptian, Syrian and Assyrian, Persian and Greek, Parthian and Roman, Sassanian and Byzantine, Moslem and Christian, surged back and forth along the highway between the eastern and the western worlds, battling for possession."

Charitable Chinese. The Chinese are a charitable people, all of whom give freely up to their affording. Almost every village in China has a member of some charitable body. During the terrible plague which fell upon Hongkong some years ago hundreds of coffins were gratuitously provided by the richer of the native population. But not one of those Hongkong Samaritans thought of sending medical aid to his stricken countrymen. Often in China you will see some old grave broken open. Those who cared for it had considered about it as dead or gone to Australia or California. Usually those broken graves display a heavy coffin. Sometimes through the cracks of mortar or earth we see a large jar of clay, painted green, blue or red. Such urns contain the bones and ashes of poor Chinamen who have died far from home.

His Home. They were just closing up the real estate deal, and the man who always wanted something to show in to make a good bargain appeared to hesitate. "What'll you throw in?" "What'll I throw?" "What'll you throw in as a sort of bonus?" "Oh, yes, yes, of course!" said the real estate man. "How stupid of me! Why, the fact is, in our line of business we are not exactly in the habit of giving prizes, but, in this case, just to make it binding, I don't mind throwing in the back taxes."

"Now you're talking business!" exclaimed the would be purchaser. "It always pays for a man to stick out for his rights." "It was only after the transfer was made that he discovered the back taxes were payable by and not to the owner."—Chicago Post.

The Obliging Bankrupt.

Good comradeship may count for much. No man ever typified this better than the Wall street broker who said to his friend the reporter: "I didn't fail until after the evening papers went to press, so that you could have it all to yourself in the morning. Come around in an hour or so, and I'll give you the figures."—Writer.

Angelic Temperament. "He is good natured, is he?" "Good natured! Why, I have known that man wear a smiling face when he was speaking of taking off a porous plaster."—Boston Traveler.
