

WAS TRACKED BY BLOODHOUNDS.

Tale of a Tripple Tragedy in Jefferson County.

The slayer of George Baker and wife tracked by bloodhounds—to escape his pursuers he takes his own life—Hounds on the trail for over three miles.

The bloodhounds which were in Lincoln yesterday, working on the hold-up perpetrated upon Dr. J. W. Hitchcock on north Twenty-seventh street and the burglary of A. B. Murray's general store at 231 South Ninth street, went to Fairbury last night, where they did one of the best jobs attributed to their sagacity. It was a murder case and one of the most cold-blooded crimes ever committed in the history of Jefferson county.

The murder was a double one, the victims being George Baker and his wife, living two miles southwest of Fairbury, and the hour of the tragedy was between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday morning. William Baker, a half brother of one of the murdered parties, was suspected of the crime, as he had sworn vengeance upon his brother because of some difference in the division of property left to the two, and for the further reason that Mrs. Baker married John in preference to William, who was given the nuptial highball, to use an impolite but expressive phrase. William was seen in the vicinity of his brother's house about the time of the murder with a shotgun in his possession, and this increased the feeling of suspicion among the friends of the deceased people.

Mrs. Rockford of Louisville, who suffered severe injuries by a fall while visiting at Ed Fitzgerald's Monday, so far recovered as to be able to go home last evening, her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Hasemeier, came down after her. Miss Dora Fricko received a letter today from the manager of the ice carnival at Omaha, in which she is requested to accept one of the positions of Maid of Honor to Queen Polar. We did not learn whether Miss Fricko will accept or not.

Bridge Contractor Sheeley says that he lost money on every bridge he built in this county last year at the price he bid, and that the plans for the bridges next year are not identical with those of last year, as they contain a little more lumber. We never knew the common black ants were of any special value, but it seems they are, and tons of them are imported from Germany. Gering's have a big bottle filled with the ants, from which they compound a tincture which is said to be especially effective in cases of rheumatism.

Work of the Dogs. It was about 10 o'clock when the hounds arrived at the scene, but the darkness does not bother them and they went to work immediately. They tracked the murderer from the point where he had stood outside the window while doing his deadly work.

The trail led across a cornfield, where the best kind of a scent was struck by the sagacious brutes. William Baker had not been seen all day long and the followers of the hounds were positive that when the dogs stopped it would be at the heels of a suspected man. The canine detectives kept up a steady gait for nearly three and one-half miles and finally came to a halt at the door of a barn appertaining to the premises of A. Baker, an uncle of the dead man and also of the suspected murderer.

When the dogs stopped at the barn door the crowd following was sure that the murderer was within, but no one volunteered to enter. Baker was known as a desperate man and it was thought by those present that he would blow the brains out of the first person who essayed to go into the barn to capture him. When last seen he had the shotgun still with him and of this weapon the self-organized posse was fearful. The dogs stayed about the door, howling for admittance, but they were not permitted to go in. The crowd held a consultation and decided to guard the barn until this morning, so that the murderer would have no chance to make his escape. This plan was carried into effect and the men strung out around the barn so as to form a complete circle.

At quite an early hour this morning someone arrived upon the scene, who happened to have more foolhardiness, grit, sand or nerve about him than the rest of the crowd, and he started in the barn. When he opened the door he could see nothing of any person, but the dogs, who went in when the portal was first thrown open, sniffed about for a moment and then started upstairs to the hayloft. There on the hay they found the body of William Baker, dead. He had evidently committed suicide with the very same shotgun which he utilized in slaying the unfortunates in the morning, for the whole top of his head was blown off as clean as though cut off by an expert surgeon. Thus his revenge was satisfied.

From appearances, Baker had taken his life soon after he left his brother's house. The shotgun lay by his side in the hayloft and an empty shell told the tale of the triple tragedy. SUPREME COURT'S RULING.

ALDERMANIC CONTEST IS DECIDED IN FAVOR OF JNO. D. TUTT.

Chapman's Decision Reversed, and Hawkins' Bondsmen Will Have to Foot Costs of Suit—A Mad Dog.

The contest over the election of an alderman in the Fifth ward in 1892, between George Hawkins and John Tutt, which was brought about by the failure to designate long and short terms on the ballot was brought to an end yesterday by the supreme court. The case was first tried before Ramsey, county judge, who held that, under the testimony, Tutt was entitled to the seat. Hawkins' attorney appealed to the district court and Chapman reversed the lower court and gave Hawkins the coveted seat, which he held to the end of the term.

Tutt appealed the case to the supreme court and now after all these years of waiting, Judge Chapman is reversed and Tutt wins out, throwing the bill of costs onto him. The supreme court was divided 4-3. Hawkins and his bondsmen, J. C. Eikenberry and James W. Sage. Tutt did not get to hold office, but he now has a salary of $50 due him just as if he had served.

Killed a Mad Dog. A large brindle dog, which has been a homeless wanderer, so far as could be learned, about town for a week, was frothing at the mouth this afternoon and snapping at everything in reach. It bit one or two dogs, and grabbed a little girl by the cape and most biting her. Chief Fitzpatrick was near by and shot the animal. The dog was killed on Vine street, near the old Fitzgerald property, and it is hoped the dogs bitten will not show signs of hydrophobia.

Death of W. W. Conant. William W. Conant died this morning at the age of seventy years. He was a member of McConchie post, G. A. R. having enlisted as a private in company I, 6th Illinois. He was drawing a pension of $10 per month at the time of his death. The deceased suffered from heart failure and was sick only a week. He leaves a widow and three children, all grown, to mourn his demise. The funeral will be held under the auspices of the G. A. R. from the M. E. church at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Thought It a Joke. Senator Allen just at present is not in the most amiable frame of mind and does not care who knows it, says the Nebraska City News. Some time ago he introduced a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the erection of a new postoffice at Lincoln and then thought the government would kindly donate the present structure to be used as a city hall. He also wanted the citizens to hold a mass meeting and endorse his scheme, but somehow the people did not assemble as he expected they would nor did they pass numerous resolutions of thanks for his kindness, but they simply laughed at him. That is what made him angry. He says if the people of Lincoln do not want a million dollar structure he will withdraw the bill. This is the first time Lincoln has ever shown any disposition to refuse anything.

Quite a regiment of men and teams are required now to get the willows where they are to be used.

THE BLACK PRINCE'S ARMY.

The Largest English Fleet Ever Assembled Took the Soldiers to France.

Mr. W. O. Stoddard's serial, "With the Black Prince," gives in St. Nicholas an account of the splendid army that accompanied the prince to the battle of Crecy. Mr. Stoddard says: It was the largest English fleet yet assembled, and the army going on board was also the best with which any English king had ever put to sea. It consisted of men and men only. Of these, 4,000 were men-at-arms, 6,000 were Irish, 12,000 were Welsh, but the most carefully trained and disciplined part of the force consisted of 10,000 bowmen. During a whole year had Edward and his sons and his generals toiled to select and prepare the men and the weapons with which they were to meet the highly famed chivalry of the continent. An army selected from a nation of perhaps 4,000,000 of people was to contend with an army collected from France with her 20,000,000, and from such allies of hers as Germany and Bohemia, re-enforced by large numbers of paid mercenaries. Among these latter were the crossbowmen of Genoa sold to Philip by the masters of that Italian city.

Edward's adventures had a seeming of great rashness, for already it was reported that the French king had mustered 100,000 men. Full many a gallant cavalier in armor of proof may well have wondered to hear, moreover, that Edward III. accented the foremost general of his time, proposed to meet superior numbers of the best lances of Europe with lightly armored men on foot.
