

ALASKAN RELIEF EXPEDITION HALTED

Authorities Decide to Temporarily Abandon the Project.

As There is No Pressing Need For Aid in the Klondike Region There Will be no Supplies Forwarded For the Present. Commissioner Recommends Laws For Alaska.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 14.—General Merriam, commanding the Department of the Columbia, this morning received a telegram from the War department instructing him to postpone the departure of the relief expedition to Alaska. Accordingly the contract to ship the expedition from this port on the steamship Oregon, January 23, has been withdrawn. The pack train is still held at Fort Vancouver, and the drilling of the guard for it will go on. The orders effect a temporary abandonment of the expedition and it is understood they were based on the recent reports that there was no starvation or suffering in the Yukon country that the government relief expedition could relieve. Agent Post of the Pacific Coast Steamship company says that his company is glad to be relieved of the contract to transport the government pack train to Alaska, as it has already more business offered than it is possible to handle.

Recommends Laws for Alaska.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Attorney General McKenna today submitted to the senate a special report made by the commission to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States concerning the criminal and penal laws relating to Alaska; also a code of criminal procedure for that district in the form of a bill which accompanied the report of the commission.

In its report the commission says that as no organization of the territory of Alaska, the District of Columbia and Indian Territory has been authorized by congress which contemplates local self-government, it is required to codify the criminal and penal laws peculiarly applicable to these territories.

The criminal laws of the United States will form the body of the code which the commission is to prepare. The commission points out that by virtue of the act providing a civil government of Alaska the laws of Oregon become laws of Alaska.

The laws which now exist over Alaska may be classified as follows: (1) The statutes of the United States, extending over all the states and territories; (2) the statutes of the United States enacted expressly for Alaska; (3) the laws of Oregon in force on May 17, 1884, so far as they are applicable and not in conflict with the laws of the United States.

The commission suggests that if the bill which is proposed is enacted into law it will furnish a complete code for Alaska. In conclusion the commission says:

"Under existing law the president has appointed commissioners to reside at nine designated places, who with other powers and duties, are ex-officio justices of the peace. It is to be presumed that other communities of considerable numbers will be formed as the population of the district increases, and to meet their needs we have inserted a provision authorizing the judge of the district court to appoint additional commissioners with the jurisdiction of magistrates in criminal proceedings. Provision is also made for the appointment of deputy marshals in excess of the number now authorized by law and all the deputy marshals are given the authority of constables in the execution of criminal process.

The progressive ladies of Westfield, Ind., issued a "Woman's Edition" of the Westfield News, bearing date of April 3, 1896. The paper is filled with matter of interest to woman, and we notice the following from a correspondent, which the editors printed, realizing that it treats upon a matter of vital importance to their sex: "The best remedy for croup, colds and bronchitis that I have been able to find is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For family use it has no equal. I gladly recommend it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

Foley's Honey and Tar. Cough Syrup wherever introduced is considered the most pleasant and effective remedy for all throat and lung complaints. It is the only prominent cough remedy that contains no opiates and that can safely be given to children. Smith & Parmele.

"Mystic Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in one to three days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cents sold by F. G. Fricke & Co., druggists.

Two Well Known Statements talked for months, from a front porch and a rear end of a chair. Perhaps the use of Foley's Honey and Tar will explain why they could do this, without injury to their vocal organs. It is largely used by speakers and singers. Smith & Parmele.

Take Off the Horns. The undersigned is now ready with a good portable chute and tools, to remove the horns of horned cattle at 10 cents per head for a herd of cattle, 25 cents for a single animal. It never gets to cold to dehorn cattle. Any time after fly-time, until the first week in April is the right time. After that it is too late. If those who wish to have such work done will address me at Rock Bluffs, Neb., they will be promptly answered.

CITY AND COUNTY.

SATURDAY.

J. L. Root is on the sick list today.

A. B. Dickson of Elmwood was in the city today.

Mrs. J. F. Hinshaw and Mrs. Frank Boyd were Omaha visitors today.

Will Coolidge and wife have gone to the Black Hills for a ten days' visit with relatives.

D. K. Barr of Plattsmouth was shaking hands with friends in Greenwood Saturday.—Greenwood Record.

Charles Martin Piper and Miss Mary P. Kuhl will be married at 10 o'clock tomorrow, both are residents of this city.

A. H. Bushnell, the successful teacher in the Taylor district, was in town today and made THE NEWS a pleasant call.

Miss Lillian Terry's engagement to a prominent gentleman from the east is announced, the wedding to take place during the early summer.

Fred Ebling is enjoying a visit from his brother who resides in Harlan county. He arrived from the west last evening and will remain several days.

A gentleman from Kansas and a lady from Northern Iowa met here last evening by appointment and were married by Judge Archer in his usual bland manner.

Our old friend Gahn, used to make a pleasant visit among Plattsmouth friends quite often, but since he became a benedict, he seems to have forgotten his friends down this way.

S. L. Furlong was up from Rock Bluffs today enjoying the June sunshine and attending to business. He reports good sleighing in his neighborhood, where more snow fell than here.

Engineer Will McLennan, whose name was heralded abroad on account of his having broken a log at Hastings and then brought his train into Lincoln on time, is reported able to go to work. "Mac" used to reside in this city and is well known here.

Yesterday being Mrs. Charles Valery's birthday anniversary as well as Will Straight's. Will took a party of friends out to Mr. and Mrs. Valery's hospitable home west of town last evening to properly celebrate the event, and a delightful time is reported.

L. C. Pollard of Nehawka was in town today and reports a snowfall there last night of fully four inches. Passengers on the noon M. P. train saw the snowfall further south last night amounted to a foot or more. Here less than an inch was deposited.

J. F. Stull of Jennings, La., after a two weeks' visit here, will return home next week. Fred was born in Plattsmouth and went south eight years ago. He is engaged in raising rice and prefers that line of work with the Louisiana climate to Nebraska farming. He says their land is very low and is flooded with water the early part of the season. When they turn the water off the rice fields in July, by putting up a few screens, they capture all the fish the community can use. Fish and all semi-tropical fruits grow in abundance and corn is a good crop if the ground is fertilized in the fall. The News acknowledges a pleasant visit from Fred, who has been keeping posted on Nebraska affairs by reading THE NEWS.

MONDAY.

C. S. Polk was in Council Bluffs on business today.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nejedley lost their little three-week-old babe Saturday evening. The funeral was held yesterday.

Henry Shafer, since he got to be a Christian Scientist, has grown young and is just now opening up a ranch in Colorado.

The little band called "We Four" realized a neat sum from their sales on Saturday and turned the amount over to the charity committee. Older societies please take note of this example, and do likewise.

The teachers at the Columbian school gave their scholars all a sleigh ride after school today, and a jollier, noisier crowd of boys and girls would be hard to find than the three sleds that were taking in the town.

George Larue was in town this afternoon from Union. He went to see Treasurer A. R. Eikenberry this morning and found him in good spirits and and getting along nicely, a fact his many friends here will be glad to learn.

Philip Andrus, president of the Missouri Valley Turnpike will give a lecture at the Turnpike Hall in this city on the advantages of turning and other athletic sports, the evening of January 31. Everyone that speaks German should be present and hear Mr. Andrus. Admission free, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Robert Sherwood got a case of Nebraska shoes the other day that, for snowy weather or for people with rheumatism, can not be excelled. The uppers are of good leather while the bottoms are of bass wood, nearly a inch in thickness. They are the acme of comfort for sloppy weather and are made at Columbus, Neb. No well-regulated farmer should do without a pair of those home comfort shoes.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

MATRIMONY THE GREAT OBJECT TO ALL GIRLS OF FRANCE.

Customs in This Particular Have Changed Radically—At the Present Time the Personal Inclinations of Young Women Are Considered.

Miss Anna L. Blecknell is an English lady who has had most unusual opportunities for studying French life. For a number of years she was a governess in the household of Napoleon III and resided in the Tuilleries. For The Century Miss Blecknell has written an article on "French Wives and Mothers." Miss Blecknell says:

The old marriage of convenience, which caused so much sorrow and consequent evil in former days, when a girl was taken out of a convent to be shown the man to whom she was about to be married, is now a thing of the past. It must be acknowledged, however, that marriages are still made up, often too hastily and superficially, by nicely balanced family arrangements and by the intervention of friends. Nevertheless, attraction and repulsion are now taken into consideration, and a girl is no longer forced to marry a man whom she positively dislikes. I could quote instances in the very highest (historical) aristocracy where, at the last moment, after the trossseau had been sent in (marked, according to custom, with the united initials of the two names elaborately embroidered) and all the social preparations made, the marriage was broken off because the bride had declared that she could not "get accustomed" to the bridegroom nor endure the idea of seeing his face in her home during her natural life. In one of these instances the family lamentations over the initials of the trossseau were really amusing. Fortunately a substitute was soon found whose name, like that of the rejected suitor, began with an X, and the complications were thus happily settled.

The great object of the French girl's life is marriage. From the time of her birth her parents have prepared for this event, and in many cases they have considerably straitened their income and curtailed their enjoyments to make up her dowry. Every girl in every class is expected to have something. Those who have nothing are exceptions and constitute a minority of old maids. The girls who from choice do not marry generally become nuns, usually much against the wishes of their parents. The old tales of young women being forced into convents to improve the position of their brothers are forgotten in these days, when, while no child can on any pretense be deprived of a share in the father's inheritance, monastic vows are not recognized by law. Nuns and spinners are exceptions; marriage is the rule.

When a girl is of age to be introduced into society, her friends and relatives immediately look out for a suitable husband, whom it is considered highly desirable to obtain before she has reached the age of 21, that she may not be proclaimed fille majeure when the banns are published. The principal considerations are equality of birth, of position, of fortune, and in the last particular the scale is usually expected to weigh rather more on the side of the young lady, especially if the young man, in addition to sufficient present advantages, can bring forward a number of relatives not likely to live long. This is called having hopes (des esperances)—beaucoup d'esperances. If the young lady with a substantial dowry can also show a satisfactory background of invalid uncles and aunts, then everything is as it should be, and the young people are brought together with every prospect of a favorable conclusion. It happens, however, too often that they do not know each other sufficiently, and that they are persuaded to believe that the mutual liking is greater than it really is. Sometimes this sort of undefined attraction ripens into a deep and devoted love. When this occurs, there are no more affectionate wives or more faithful widows than Frenchwomen.

More frequently, especially in the higher classes, a sort of friendship springs up, where they see but little of each other, and freedom is enjoyed on both sides. The authority of the husband is less felt than in an English household. There is a sort of understanding that in her home the wife is queen and settles matters as she pleases.

But their best and warmest feelings are awakened by all that concerns their children. French parents are perhaps the most affectionate in the world. The interests and welfare of their children are their first consideration, and wonderful sacrifices of their own pleasure and enjoyment are made in favor of their posterity. Then he makes a world of worldly men and women. These are taken as a matter of course; no one thinks of doing otherwise or of seeing any merit in such acts.

The mothers especially are unequalled. Nothing will stand in the way of a Frenchwoman where her children's interests are concerned. Her love is so engrossing that it swallows up every other. They are more mothers than wives, and if called upon to choose between allowing a husband to go alone on a foreign mission or leaving their children they would not hesitate. "Mes enfants avant tout."

KISSED HER ON A BET.

She Was a Salvation Lassie; He, Her Husband—Traveling Men Didn't Know That.

A clever trick was worked by Walter Redmond and his wife at Union station by which several traveling men were duped out of their money. At the end of a long seat in the waiting room was a prettily made looking young woman attired in a Salvation Army uniform. She was very intent upon a paper which she was reading and paid little attention to the crowd of traveling men standing near her.

Aside from the crowd was a well dressed young man, who was walking back and forth by the newstand puffing away at a fragrant cigar. Finally a member of the crowd of traveling men remarked upon the beauty of the little Salvation Army worker. All eyes were fixed on the little woman, and she received many compliments. The prosperous looking young man who had been walking near the group of drummers drew near to the crowd. He, too, was struck with the appearance of the woman.

"I'll give any one of you fellows $15 if you kiss that girl," said he.

Those in the crowd took the dare. One spoke up, however, and said to the stranger who had offered the money, "I'll bet you $20 that you can't kiss her."

The stranger hesitated for several seconds and then said: "I'll just take that bet."

The money was put up, and the stranger, who had given his name as Walter Redmond, walked over toward the little woman in uniform, and, after bowing profoundly, took a seat by her side.

The first woman seemed to be very indignant, and the traveling man thought he had the $20 won. A minute later, however, Redmond's arm stole around the woman's waist. The spectators then began to open their eyes wide.

One of them said: "That fellow has a whole lot of confidence that girl. It may be that he is a hypnotist." Redmond talked for probably two minutes and then kissed the woman.

Redmond walked over to the stakeholder and received his money. He then started from the depot. The little woman quickly arose from her seat, and, taking her bag, walked to Ninth and Broadway, where the couple took an East Broadway car. Redmond is tall and handsome. His wife is a blond and is exceptionally pretty.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A HINT TO ARTISTS.

One Way of Putting Rejected Exhibits to Good Use.

They were riding on the Fourteenth street cars and their conversation was edifying. The man with the long hair was evidently a sculptor, and his companion, a large, jolly looking fellow, was trying to persuade him to present a work of art to some society woman who had a mania for collecting bric-a-brac and articles of vertu.

"I told her that you would, I thought, in time present her with some memento, a statuette illustrating your peculiar style. Was I wrong in saying so?"

The sculptor answered indignantly: "I know her value of art, and I tell you she cannot distinguish between manufactured trinkets and works of art. In fact, she thinks all artists are manufacturers and can turn out statuettes as easily as the rich stone ornament man who gave her a nickel plated male.

Then, too, a brass fixture artist gave her something from the brass foundry, and she thought it great. Never, in my judgment, could she appreciate a true work of art."

"Then you refuse to give her a sample of your work? Remember, she has great influence."

"I do not refuse. I'll give her that model in plaster of paris which was refused by the committee last month. She will think it great, whether or not the committee did."

"Good! She will think it magnificent and get you an order."—New York Commercial.

A Dramatic Assassination. By far the most dramatic royal assassination was that of the Emperor Paul of Russia on March 24, 1801, by his nobles. As usual Paul had retired to rest booted and spurred and in his regimental uniform. At the dead of night he was awakened by an unusual noise.

The husband of the chamberlain, the only faithful sentinel, as it proved, in the palace—was being killed by nine nobles. They burst into the room and began to attack the emperor. Paul hid behind chairs and tables and begged for his life. He offered to make each of his assassins a prince. He offered to give the money he had in his pocket. He offered to give the money he had in his pocket. He offered to give the money he had in his pocket.

"Isn't your father of rather a retiring disposition?" asked the young man caller whose chief weakness is to stay late.

"Yes," she answered demurely, "he retires at 10 and insists that the house be closed within half an hour of that time."—Detroit Free Press.

A Freeze. "I don't quite catch the drift of your remarks," said the girl who willfully misunderstood.

"I think I do of yours," said the young man who had been trying to propose. "It is something in the nature of a snowdrift."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A SWITCHMAN INJURED.

Marten Hook Has a Close Call for His Life in the Yards.

The upper yard B. & M. switch engine has been taken away and a mogul road engine, No. 97, sent to take its place. Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, while switching with engine No. 97, Marten Hook, as he was about stepping from the pilot of the engine, caught his coat on a bolt-head and he was thrown in front of the pilot with one foot across the rail. Fortunately, the pilot set so close to the track that it caught his ankle, and, instead of the wheels passing over his leg, the pilot rolled him out of the way. It caught the ankle, however, in such a manner as to almost dislocate it, and a sprain resulted that will keep the young man off his feet for a month. It was a close call, and to those who saw the accident the fact that Hook did not lose a limb seemed little short of miraculous.

Nestly Entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Helps entertained a party of friends at their country home in the Third ward last evening. Elegant refreshments were served, and with charades and conversation, the hours sped quickly by.

Among those present we note the following: Messrs. G. M. Spurlock, Frank Cummins, Robt. Shorwood, J. George Guild, H. R. Goring, H. G.
