The NEWS purchased 6,000 pounds of white print paper a few days ago, which is the largest order ever given in this county for white paper.

The many friends of Misses Dora and Mabel Swearingen will be pleased to learn that the young ladies have secured lucrative positions in the Paxton hotel at Omaha.

Henry, the little son of H. M. Seonichson, was severely bitten about the waist yesterday by a dog, which he was teasing. The wound was dressed and no fears of ugly consequences are entertained.

Although Mr. Morrissey has been confirmed as chief of police, Marshal Fitzpatrick will continue on the force until June 1st. There will probably be no other change until after the next council meeting.

Prof. Farley got rained in at Louisville a few days ago, and left his team there while he came home on the train. He returns today to Louisville and will drive out across the county to Alvo looking after the welfare of the schools.

Plattsmouth's share of the state school fund under the apportionment now in the treasurers hands for payment is $2,277.82. There are two apportionments made each year and if the next is as large the school board will soon be on easy street again.

Mr. Huelkins is preparing to open a dining parlor in the Blake building, opposite the NEWS office. Mrs. H. is an expert caterer and the Dining Parlor will furnish the public with the best market affords. The parlor will be ready for business in about a week.

Rev. F. H. Freund, the pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church in this city, continues in his good work and next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. a class of eighteen young people will be confirmed as new members of the church. The building recently erected is one of the neatest in the city and stands as a monument to the industry of Mr. Freund and his congregation.

Bonnie Hertzler, the little boy who was drowned yesterday in the river, was buried this morning from the morgue of Streight & Sattler. The coroner did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest and thereby put the county to unnecessary expense, since it was known how the boy came to his death. The parents and a number of friends followed the remains of the unfortunate little fellow to the cemetery.

Wm. Loughbridge, the Murray black smith, who started in business several years ago with a capital of but ten dollars, is a good example of what industry and economy will do. He has sent his children to college and now, as the shadows lengthen, while he starts down the hill, past the meridian of life, he can rest from further labors and live with his helpful wife with every comfort, giving no heed for the morrow. His habit of work, however, clings to him and he continues at his old quarters, with as much energy, almost, as he showed twenty years ago.

The money was returned to the owner of the clothes and he felt like he had been struck by a wave of prosperity.

Andy Broback has a loon and a beaver in his window that are fine specimens of the taxidermist's art. The beaver is a young one, but is very perfectly mounted. They were brought in from Madison, Neb., by Fremont Wheeler, a brother of Frank Wheeler, the harness maker on Fifth street. Mr. Wheeler's father is also here on a visit.

W. J. Hesser's big century plant will be shown. It will occupy the central position under the dome in the horticultural building. The leaves are twenty feet from tip to tip, and the plant is twelve feet high, being the largest of its kind in the United States. It has been an expensive pet for its owner, and "eats its head off" in the matter of heat and light, over $1,000 worth of coal having been used for the sole purpose of keeping it comfortable. Inasmuch as the bridges on the Burlington are not high enough to admit of handling the monster, it will be hauled across the country from Plattsmouth on a stoneboat.—World-Herald

A Snake Story. A large snake was killed in the workshop in the basement of J. W. Butt's furniture store, this morning. It was found coiled up in a chair, used by the employes, after they had been at work for some time. It probably came from some other state in some of the goods. H. Y. Kirkby vows that it is a copperhead, same as he used to play with when a boy in Missouri. In any event, it is the first snake of the season, and all the boys who found it vow that they have not used any snake medicine for several months.—Nebraska City News.

IN HAPPY WEDLOCK.

Two Prominent Young People Join Hearts and Hands for Wed or Woe. From Thursday's Daily.

"Brierwood," the beautiful home of Mrs. Dora Oldham Moore was the scene of a most happy and auspicious event last evening, occasioned by the marriage of her niece, Miss Jessie D. Oldham, to Mr. Henry Evans Snyder. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock the bridal party was in readiness, and as Miss Antonia Kessler played the beautiful strains of the wedding march Mr. Lee Atwood, best man, and Mr. Henry Snyder entered the parlor, where they were met by Rev. H. B. Burgess. Immediately little Miss Stanfield Jones carried a white satin steamer to the beautifully decorated bridal arch. The maid of honor, Miss Edith Snyder, attired in a cream figured silk, entered walking alone, followed by the bride gowned in a beau de mignone silk with crepe de chine and pearl trimmings, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. G. J. Oldham. She carried a handsome bouquet of lilies of the valley, and wore orange blossoms in her hair.

Standing under the glorious and honored American flag, and in front of the Holy Bible on the open pages of which was laying the most sacred of all emblems, the white lily, Rev. Burgess pronounced the beautiful Episcopal ceremony that made Henry Evans Snyder and Jessie D. Oldham man and wife.

After the usual congratulations and best wishes of their friends had been extended, the bridal party led the way to the dining room, where an elegant wedding banquet was spread. The dining room was beautifully arranged with floral decorations, the chair occupied by the bride was a bower of American beauty roses, a gift of one of the guests. Mrs. W. D. Jones sat at the coffee urn, and the Misses Pauline Oldham, Grace Britt and Olive Jones in a graceful and easy manner presided over the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Snyder wore the recipients of many handsome and useful presents, among which was noticed a box of fragrant Cape Jasmine from Florida.

One of the pleasant features of the evening was the serenading from the Modern Woodman band.

Among the guests from abroad were Judge J. R. Reed and wife, of Council Bluffs, Miss Ethel Evans, of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Oldham, of Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Evans, of Council Bluffs, Mrs. Zachary T. Lindsay, of Omaha, Mr. Grover Reed, of Council Bluffs, Mr. Harry Lindsay, of Omaha, Mr. J. G. Oldham, father of the bride, Beaver City, Mr. and Mrs. James Walker and Miss Pauline Oldham, of Murray, and Miss Grace Britt, of Omaha.

A Notable Gathering. From Wednesday's Daily. Rev. Frank Campbell and wife are having an old folks' dinner at their home in South Park today and are entertaining a few of their friends, who have been here long enough to think themselves old folks.

The gathering is one of the most notable impromptu affairs ever noted in this city, comprising a rare galaxy of bright, cheery old people, many of whom have hearts as young as they were 50 years ago. The only young folks honored by a place at the table beside the host and hostess were C. S. Polk, G. M. Sparlock and Mrs. Laura Peterson who assisted Mrs. Campbell. Below is a list of the guests, with ages and place of birth:

It is, or should be, the highest aim of every merchant to please his customers; and that the wide-awake drug firm of Meyers & Esleman, Sterling, Ill., is doing so, is proven by the following, from Mr. Esleman: "It my sixteen years, experience in the drug business I have never seen or sold or tried a medicine that gave as good satisfaction as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Sold by all druggist.

The stately oak, the largest tree in the city park, was struck by lightning last Thursday evening during a heavy electrical storm, and the tree was rent from the topmost bough to the ground. About one third of the bark was stripped off the trunk and the current seems to have cleft the wood to the heart.—Weeping Water Republican.

THE WAY THAT DEWEY DID.

One thing I want to know, father, Oh, what did Dewey do? That people talk of what he did, And get excited, too.

He knocked the Spaniards out, my son, He only left a few. He wiped the earth, and sopped the sea, With the whole darned Spanish crew.

It seems so very strange, father, Oh, can it all be true? The stories of the ships he sank, And the Spaniards that he slew.

He simply laid them out, my son, In winnow, two by two. While they raved and tore, and cursed and swore, Till the sky turned black and blue.

While the fight was going on, father, Did Dewey's boats get hit? While cannon balls were coming o'er Two thousand at a trip.

The Spaniards made a slight mistake, A cannon ball let slip, It knocked some paint from off the side Of Uncle Sammy's ship.

Of course it was no use, father, But did they really try? To whip the fleet that Dewey brought To smite them hip and thigh?

They did their very best, my son, They jumped around quite spry, But they couldn't do a single thing But watch the splinters fly.

While I was coming home, father, I heard it said today, That Spanish ships would go down there And drive our ships away.

If they should try that on, my son, Remember what I say, That hell will be a popping there, Down on Manila bay.

Now what do you believe, father, Do you think that Dewey could whip all the ships that Spain could send, And do you think he would?

Why, sure, of course he would, my son, You bet he'd lick them good, He'd smash them into smithereens, Brick bats and kindling wood.

I heard one man remark, father, Our seamen all would die Before they'd let the Spaniards come And blow them up sky high.

No use to think of that, my son, Just let the reality, When Jack Tar gets his ear pained on Just watch the leathers fly. ERNEST E. BAXTER.

Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often abated long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, Dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 bottles at F. G. Fricke's drug store.

The Base Ball Team. The base ball team was out at the grounds last evening for a practice game. The team expects to practice Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week from now on in order to be sufficiently expert to tackle the brag nines of other towns, for this is the year when Plattsmouth must have the pennant. The ball park is being fixed up in good shape. A new back stop is being put in and a lot of bleachers for the enthusiasts who want to see the game at close range.

M. L. Yocum, Cameron, Pa., says "I was a sufferer for ten years, trying all kinds of pile remedies, but without success. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve was recommended to me. I used one box.
