For president of the United States of America, Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines in 1904, George Dewey, the hero of Manila.

MR. BAILEY of Texas seems to be having as hard a time in leading the democrats of his own state as he does in leading the democratic minority in the house of representatives.—Ex.

THE Fremont Tribune says Ben Baker is not sore, but noting how near unanimous the convention was for Hayward, he thinks it was a little joke played on him by his friends who coaxed him into allowing his name to be used.

AS we suspected, the authorities at Washington deny emphatically that they will pay off the Cuban insurgents in the interest of harmony. They can get peace with rifles for half the money and establish a better precedent at the same time.

THE state house ring knocked Samuel Maxwell out in the third district for congress and secured the nomination of Judge Robinson. Senator Allen's former law partner. Those free press reformers are great on keeping the good things within their exclusive set, but the people up in that district will dump the whole business overboard and elect a republican.

OUR Journal friends mistake Rosewater and Carnegie for the republican party. Their opinions don't go, as was evidenced by the annexation of Hawaii a few days ago. It was democratic platforms the NEWS criticised anyway, not individual opinions. The democratic leaders are for imperialism except Bryan, and our Journal crowd will have the pleasure of making a quick flip later on so as to get under the democratic tent. They are used to that, however, as a fusionist has no principles except those of getting an office under any kind of a banner.

ALL seems to be quiet in Santiago de Cuba, where American rule prevails. The city has had its first cleaning up in 400 years. Order is maintained, the typhoid fever is abating, the inhabitants have learned that all kinds of American money is good and are getting hold of as much of it as possible and commerce is reviving. The customs receipts for the first two weeks of the American occupation were large and increased every day. Santiago is being made an object lesson as to the value of American occupation and government, which means health, peace and plenty. With the approach of the Americans starvation, pestilence and Spaniards disappear.—Kansas City Star.

WHEN a politician is obliged to cater to a great variety of tastes, as a fusion candidate must do to be saved, he very soon becomes an expert in the noble art of adjusting his convictions on the plan suggested by the sire who advised his son to get money, honestly if possible, but anyhow. Now the fusion candidate for governor believes in suppressing the liquor traffic by law, but is willing to put his convictions in pickle until after the campaign is over to gratify his overwhelming ambition for office. What a contrast between this man Poynter and Judge Hayward. One a chronic and incurable office chaser; the other a noble specimen of the highest type of American manhood; one willing to trade his birthright for votes, the other standing fearlessly for what he believes to be right in all matters of government.—State Journal.

M. L. HAYWARD is not now, and never has been, a corporation lawyer. The railroads never asked, nor assisted in nominating him; refusing every request for a pass to the republican state convention. He was nominated by the people weeks before the state convention met to ratify their choice. He is one of the earliest settlers of the state, and has been identified with its every advancement. How about Poynter? His pockets bulge with railroad passes while he puts up a talk against railroads to catch farmer votes. He has been a candidate for office continuously, from township on up to state auditor and congressman, and has been defeated for office oftener than any other man in the state. Like all professional office seekers he is a trimmer with no set convictions on any subject except prohibition, and he relinquished those to get a nomination for governor.

THE man in the moon winked his other eye when Hitchcock and the state house ring put their big pocket books full of passes under lock and key, while they led a reform force against corrupt howled long and loud against the railroads. There has been so much said in the newspapers of the county during the past six months, about the force which has been perpetrated upon the taxpayers of the county, that the commissioners have announced that they will not pay over the $700 this hypocrites who expect to capture the offices by deceiving the voters. When Edmisten, the oil man, who rides on a pass, and then charges every mile he travels up to the state, and the notorious Lee Herdman, Jim Dahlman and Hitchcock start out as reformers the common people should look their smoke houses, and be prepared for almost anything.

AMBASSADOR Hay has cabled that he will accept the office of secretary of state. This leaves a fine position to be filled as ambassador to England which carries a princely salary.

Colonel Roosevelt and his riders arrived at Montauk Point Monday and reported a pleasant and prosperous trip, everybody having improved on the voyage. The little set back to Teddy's popularity, caused by the publication of his letter by Secretary Alger, seems to have ended, on the explanation that the Colonel was boasting rather of his good new guns than of the personal prowess of his battalion, and it will probably put all the resources of the profession to a big strain to head off the popular demand for his nomination by the republicans for governor of New York.

The trans-Mississippi monetary conference which is billed for a three-day session, commencing September third, is next in importance to the payment of illustrious nobles of the mystic shrine which by consent of the imperial potentate will be pulled off in the same time. Since all sides are to take part in the discussion of finance the problem will no doubt be dropped where it was picked up, while all disputants return home conscious of having won a signal and glorious victory.—Bixby.

The Spanish character was clearly shown at Porto Rico yesterday when ninety of the Porto Ricans were murdered with machetes because they had taken down the Spanish flag and put up the stars and stripes. It's a shame that the soldiers who committed the crimes were not gibbeted then and there, but Uncle Sam has to keep hands off for the present.

Dewey keeps up his record. He captures Manila and sends out his boats to take other towns, and capture some gunboats before the peace news can possibly reach him.

Don't forget that in 1896 it was the pops who vouched for the honesty of Eugene Moore and declared for that reason he failed to be made the republican nominee for governor. Republicans are always suspicious of a man who seeks office upon the plea that he is more honorable than other men.—Ex.

E. H. HINSHAW, cousin of councilman J. F. Hinshaw of this city, was nominated for congress in the fourth district at the republican convention held in Seward yesterday. His nomination is a strong one and it is more than likely that he will be able to succeed Judge Stark the fusion candidate.

The question of the hour is not whether the Philippines and Cuba are not to be admitted into the union, but whether they are all right on the initiative and referendum and the question of free coinage.—Lincoln News.

The sick soldiers around Santiago are coming north rapidly, and will soon be all out of the fever malaria breeding district.

Admiral Cervera, Captain Moreau of the Colon, and a lieutenant have been released by the government and will sail at once for Spain.

In the battle at Manila eight Americans are reported killed and thirty-nine wounded. A Colorado regiment bore the brunt of the fight, but a Nebraska battalion is known to have been in the heat of the conflict.

The naval review next Sunday at New York will be a wonderful sight. The splendid war ships just from Santiago will take part and more than a million people will witness the event.

Senator Cushman Davis of Minnesota has accepted the tender of appointment of member of the Spanish-American peace commission. The appointment is one of the best that could have been made.

The Maria Teresa, Reina Mercedes, and possibly the Cristobal Colon will be floated, repaired and added to the American navy. Splendid cruisers can be made out of these ships whose combined value would amount to several million dollars.

Talking about the intense heat of the tropics, at none of our possessions in the West Indies or the South Seas, or even in our new islands called Philippines, has the mercury risen to 113 in the shade this summer. But that's what it was up at Walla Walla, in Washington, the other day.—Ex.

The time is near at hand when the roaring rebellion, with his pocket full of passes, will mount the stump in behalf of an oppressed people and lift his voice against the vice of railroad extortion and the merciless greed of the money power.—Bixby.

The weather bureau which hasn't an unimpeachable reputation for veracity says Nebraska is entitled to have some rain today.

Burkett is one year younger than Maunahan, but he is several points ahead of the latter in his race for congress.

McKinley likes good stock regardless of politics, he having just appointed Hobson's father as postmaster at Greensboro, Alabama.

Fifteen years of constant office seeking, without obtaining a public office, is the beautiful record of W. A. Poynter. This year will be one of the several times that he got left.

year unless they are compelled so to do at the end of a law suit. In this decision the commissioners will have the backing of every resident of the county outside of the handful of suckers who year after year feather their nest out of the fair appropriation.—Weeping Water Republican.

Attorney J. F. Connell, of Auburn, who has been chasing over the country looking for his son, who disappeared while at Lincoln, on August 2nd, passed through the city last evening, having located the boy at Joliet, Colo., where he had gone to see the sights. The boy is but fifteen years old, but large for his age and says that he was induced to go away by some other boys.—Nebraska City News.

The Philippines sent congratulations to McKinley from Hong Kong, and ask that they have a place on the commission which is to settle the fate of their country. Their request will probably be granted if any foreigners are chosen.

The battle of Manila, lasting but two hours, must have been a hot one judging from the fact that 3,000 Spaniards are reported killed. The heavy fighting was on and the Nebraska First Regiment certainly took part in the battle, and grave fears are entertained that some of our brave boys may have fallen in the onslaught upon the trenches where the Spanish regulars fought like demons, but had to give way to the vigorous Americans who know no such word as fail.

If the fellows who are disgusted at the conduct and result of the triangle congressional convention in this city continue falling out of the ranks until election day, as they have up to the present time, there won't be Maunahan's left to vote the ticket.

News of the battle at Manila may show much fighting and heavy fighting to the Americans as at Santiago when they stormed El Caney. A full report will certainly reach this country by tomorrow.

BUFFALO BILL'S DAY.

August 31 Designated as W. F. Cody Day at the Omaha Exposition. Once a senator representing its people in the halls of legislation; a colonel of its state troops; a soldier and scout whose invaluable services to his country have been attested by every general of the United States Army during the past 35 years; an exhibitor who has shown to Europe the manner of men who blazed their way through the last of the great westward movement; the conversion of boundless and arid plains into the now happy homes of thousands of our countrymen. Colonel W. F. Cody will return to the metropolis of the state to be so honored and receive the very great honor of having August 31st set apart by the commissioners of the Great Trans-Mississippi Exposition as W. F. Cody Day at the exposition.

By a singular and almost poetic coincidence he gave the very first exhibition of his Wild West upon the very grounds where the exposition is now. Colonel Cody will be in Omaha two days, August 30, and 31, with his world famous exhibition, Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World. It has been the one supreme attraction at the exposition, both in Europe and America, and in correspondence with the commissioners of the World's Fair to be held at Paris in 1900 looking to the return to the city of the most potent attraction they can secure.

W. F. Cody Day at Omaha will be a superb tribute to the honored son of a nation. It will be a day of honor on all railroads, and it is believed by many that it will bring more persons to Omaha than any other day during the exposition. Col. Cody, his rough riders from both hemispheres, and his soldiers from the armies of Europe and America, will be reviewed at the exposition, and will parade the grounds visiting every department, and in turn being seen by every one present.

Those wishing lessons in vocal music may see me at residence of F. S. White on Tuesday, Wednesday or Friday of each week. Terms, are three half-hour lessons per week, $2.50; or less for cash. Also, one three-quarter-hour lesson $1.25.

The Little Queen's Picture. Wilhelm, who is to be crowned Queen of the Netherlands on September 6 next, has personally sent to Mr. Bok, the editor of The Ladies' Home Journal—himself a Hollander by birth—four private her portrait for publication in the next number of his magazine. It is the last portrait which will be taken of the little lady before her coronation, and will be printed in the next number of the magazine, showing the personality of the first Queen of Holland from every point of view.

Dittmar Nominated. WEeping WATER, Aug. 17, 430 p. m.—(Special to the NEWS)—The republican float convention met here this afternoon.

A. M. Beach of Cass county was chosen as chairman and Pete Brown of Otoe secretary. Only one formal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows: Graham of Cass got thirteen votes from this county and eight from Otoe. R. A. Dittmar of Otoe received thirteen votes from Cass and fourteen from Otoe, resulting in the latter's nomination for float representative.

Boy Disappeared. Jacob, the fifteen year old son of John Kraeger, residing eleven miles south of Plattsmouth, left home on the evening of Aug. 2 and has not been heard of since. He is light complexioned, thick lips, large teeth, with one corner of a front tooth. He wore a black soft hat, brown jacket, light shirt and old blue overalls. Any information about the boy will be gladly received and paid for by John Kraeger, Mynard, Nebraska.

A DEAD CARNATION.

Leonard Contemplates the Contents of a Desk Drawer. The desk drawer, opened, exhaled an odor of faded flowers.

"Let us plunge into the atmosphere of sweet memories," said Leonard. Wife absent, Leonard, addressing Bayard, his most intimate friend, indicated withered blossoms. Faded and grown musty in the lapse of years, they reposed at the bottom of the desk drawer.

"This Lily," said Leonard, sighing, "was the flower given me by Blanche, my first love, when I took from her lips that kiss. She was as white as the immaculate petals, fragrant as its pure corolla, graceful as its drooping stem, and who knows what might have happened had she not died in the bloom of youth?"

"And the rose?" asked Bayard. "Ah, that was later!" said Leonard, with a burst of laughter. "Rosette gave me that when she first brushed my lips with her own. The petals were once rosy as her warm being, and the flower's beauty was radiant and amorous as her young womanhood. If she had not been fickle, she might now be my wife."

"And the orchid?" queried Bayard. "Hippolyta presented me with that," said Leonard, thoughtfully, "when she saw me trembling in adoration at her feet. Time was when it had the mystic charm of her own perverse personality, and if a Russian nobleman had not eloped with her I should still be her devoted slave."

Bayard discovered a bunch of faded violets. "And these?" he interrogated.

"They were the flowers," murmured Leonard sadly, "which Etienne sent me when I had treated her brutally, believing that she had deceived me. She was demure and tender as the blooms, and after the storm of my passions, she came like a peaceful spirit to pour beauty and love into my life. Had she forgiven me, it might have been."

At this point Leonard interrupted himself, seizing angrily a dead carnation.

"Why is this flower here?" he cried. "It has no place among the precious memories. Away with it at once!"

In a moment the unresisting carnation was reduced to dust under his pitiless foot. "Why do you destroy it?" questioned Bayard.

"Because it is the carnation Emilia gave me when she said she would be my wife," said Leonard, cynically, "and I married her."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

How Punch and Judy Came to England. The heyday of the puppet show in England was during the last century. Long before then strolling showmen had exhibited "drolls" or "motions"—as the English puppets were known in the early days—to crowds of gaping rustics, but it was not until the time of Steele and Addison that the puppet show became a fashionable amusement, patronized by upper society.

Punchella came to London in 1668, when an Italian puppet player set up his booth at Charing Cross and paid a small rental to the overseers of St. Martin's parish. His name was at once Englished into Punchinello, which was soon to be completely Anglicized as Punch.—Harper's Magazine.

A Contingent Name. The Syracuse Post says that a girl baby was recently brought to a clergyman of the city to be baptized. The latter asked the name of the baby.

"Mamah M.," the father responded. "But what does the 'M' stand for?" interrogated the minister.

"Well, I do not know yet. It all depends upon how she turns out."

"How she turns out? Why, I do not understand you," said the dominie.

"Oh, if she turns out nice and sweet and handy about the house, like her mother, I shall call her Dinah May, but if she has a fiery temper and displays bombshell disposition, like mine, I shall call her Dinah Might."

At Her Mercy. "So the telephone girl is taking her revenge, Whirly?"

"It's awful. Every time I ring up she connects me with the one or four wrong numbers in succession, and then sweetly informs me that the number which I really want is 'busy now.'"

An Epitaph. The danger of rising porcelain letters on a tombstone is illustrated in a village cemetery not far from St. Louis. The inscription reads:

O Lord, She is thine! The final "e" had been knocked off in a thunderstorm.—St. Louis Star.

THE HIGH CHARACTER OF THE G. O. Taylor Whiskies Has Been Maintained for Nearly a Quarter of a Century.

In future there will be no departure from the plan to supply the public through licensed dealers everywhere whiskies in sealed bottles, under the brand (G. O. Taylor) that will pass the inspection of the chemist and meet the requirements of the physician or of the invalid. Refuse substitutes for "G. O. T." If your druggist or grocer cannot supply, or wants to substitute something else, refuse to buy, write the proprietors of G. O. Taylor Whiskies, Chester H. Graves & Sons, Boston, and they will see that you are supplied.

Chester H. Graves & Sons.

A FREE SLAVE. She said to him, her lover: "I would not hold you—not if once the dream seemed over, if once you wished to go, you were at my service. At any moment—free!" "But that is just the reason you had me fast!" said he. —Madeline S. Bridges in Century.

TRIALS OF A PUBLIC MAN.

It Takes Time to Get Used to the Ways of Newspaper Correspondents.

A new member of the senate was complaining to an old member of some of the difficulties he was encountering. "For one thing," he said, "these newspaper fellows don't always get things straight. I don't mean to accuse them of carelessness or of intentional misrepresentation, but now and then some remarkable stories are printed about me at home."

"You'll get used to that," replied the veteran. "That won't hurt. That's part of your apprenticeship. I've been all along there. Let me tell you of a little experience of mine. Soon after I first came here I picked up a paper from my state and saw it asserted in a letter from Washington that my colleague and myself had met and arranged a slate, and that all the patronage for the state would be distributed according to that arrangement."

"There was no warrant for the statement, and I made inquiries for the correspondent. He came to see me and proved to be a bright and most agreeable young man. I asked him for his authority, and he pleasantly refused to give it, but said that he had every faith in his informant. To that I replied that all I would ask, then, would be the privilege of denying the story—of putting my statement against the other. He said that was only fair and that he would attend to the matter."

"When the correction appeared, it read something like this: 'Your correspondent's story about the deal between Senator — and his colleague, by which the patronage of the state is to be divided between them, has raised quite a stir here. There is no question as to its absolute truth. But Senator —, who evidently has been rattled by the publication, now solemnly assures your correspondent that he had nothing whatever to do with the deal.' After that I went slow on corrections."

Snobbishness. A lady living in an unfashionable street invited a gentleman of leisurely life to her home, because in her simplicity she thought he seemed lonely. He came, and at the close of the evening remarked to her, "I had no idea I should meet so many distinguished people at your home," his voice unconsciously emphasizing the pronoun. In a little book, "About People," Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells gives the following instance of a lack of good manners:

Snobbishness is not confined to one set of people. Emphasized by fashion or literary pretensions, it spreads from village to city. It exists in sardine factories and in palatial mansions; it is met with at picnics and dances as well as at dinner or conversation parties. The links are close.

One of Boston's oldest families gave a reception. Two sisters of other old families attended, to whom the host said, "I'll introduce you to those ladies opposite," and he moved toward them. "Excuse us," said one of the men; "the ladies are of a peasant style of beauty; it is hardly worth while."

The host bowed low in recognition of their farseeing power, adding, "Yes, they are my nieces from the country, but I will not trouble you."

No apology would be received, though one was eagerly offered.

All the Same. Brobston—"It's a disputed question which have the quicker tempers, blonds or brunettes?"

Cralk—"Is it?" Brobston—"Yes, my wife has been both, and I couldn't see that it made any difference."—Boston Traveler.

An Odd Sign. Nearly everybody has heard of the "cuck sign," of the dyer, to the effect that he "dyes to live and lives to dye." There are probably half a dozen or more dyers in this city who have that sign conspicuously displayed at their establishments. There has been a sudden revival in the use of catchy signs, particularly rhymed ones, among bootblacks and small sidewalk merchants. These signs are now springing up everywhere, and a couple of young newsboys with some facility for making doggerel are picking up many a half dollar for work of this kind among their fellows. The fever has even reached Frankford, and an odd old character there has this placard outside his humble establishment:

Doors Jones, Moes Jones, Also in Buses, And All Kinds of Rags, I Can Laugh at My Feet, For I'm Still Old Blues.
