From Wednesday's Daily Congressman Samuel Maxwell, of while the distinguished statesman and ness. jurist was very reticent as to his turning down by the slate makers in the late triangle congresssional convention in the Third district, the reporter could read between the lines sufficiently to see that the henorable gentleman felt keen disappointment at the way he had been treated by the wire putters of his district. Judge Maxwell is one of the noblest and ablest men in the state, whom the populist party should feel honored to honor and his turning down means much for republican success in the Third district this fall.

Another New Lodge. Plattsmouth Louge of the United Moderns was organized Tuesday at K, of P. hall by H. J. Johnson, past supreme chancellor, and E. M. Weil, supreme organizer, out of a list of 28 members. After the degrees were conferred the lodge in a body adjourned to Schiappacasse's ice cream parlor and enjoyed cream and cake The lodge will meet hereafter every Wednesday evening. Max Weil wil move his family here from Denver and he assures the NEWs that he will make this one of the largest lodges is the city. The election of officers will take place at the next meeting and the charter will be left open for new members until that time.
