SAVATION FOR SOLDIERS.

Governor Haubom and Col. Bryan Make Addresses to the Third Regiment.

Nearly the entire Third Nebraska was present at the evangelistic services held at the regiment Monday night. Chaplain Jordan and Evangelist Ferdinand are never occupied the platform, and after a lively song service Governor Haubom, of Nebraska, was interviewed by the chaplain, and thanked the boys with earnest address, during which he spoke of the patriotism which caused them to leave home and positions of trust, and urged them to live good lives in the camp. He complimented the regiment on its appearance, and told them that when they returned to Nebraska, the people would receive them with just as much honor as if they had stood the heights of San Juan at Santiago, because they had fully discharged their duty.

He expressed great pleasure in making a large promotion of the regiment in the Christian Church, and said he praised the men, general and particular, who provided, and were enabled to tell him a complete word in no name camp, where men's spiritual welfare was concerned, about that which the camp's sanitary laws were doing, though the same excellent, and men's hearts well cared for, yet the most important important, the cause was neglected, and he promised to tell the mothers, wives and sisters that their loved ones were not in care but in excellent condition. He ended with a hearty "God bless you."

Colonel Higgins had a word for the governor with short address, in which he said he was glad to inform the governor and visitors as to some quiet action he proposed to the court martial in case of a conviction of the commanding general in regard to the general's conduct in the battle of the River. He presented Evangelist Schuyler performed an eminent service when in the text, "The Lord is my strength," our Lord is the Rock in the Christians.

He said that it was the only thing that could make the hope of victory, influence, and their unit, and at best could only profit on this side of victory, in Christ gave us life here and a life beyond the grave.

An invitation was given, and many rose spontaneously to say their thanks for Godly love. The service was brought to a close in an earnest prayer from the Rev. Dr. Florida Times-Union.

Evangelist D. L. Moody is at the head of the organization that is doing this good work, and is appealing to the Christian public for the money necessary for carrying it on. With such hearty endorsement from our own governor, surely the work will not want for supporters in Nebraska. Contributions may be sent to Mr. Moody at East Northfield, Mass.

Steely Surprised.
Several of the neighbors and friends of J. C. Peterson, on learning of his probable arrival home Sunday from Alaska, secured well filled baskets of good things to eat and in the evening they called at his hospitable home and a cordial welcome back was given him. An elegant supper was served and every one of the forty guests had a good time, visiting together until a late hour and listening with close attention to some of Mr. Peterson's experience in the land of the midnight sun.

At Glenlawn.
Last evening Mrs. Shipman and her sister, Miss Greene, received the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church and a few other friends at their home, "Glenlawn," which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Misses Alice Shipman, Eliza Kinkead, Louise Smith and May Baird served the punch and other refreshments. The lawn was dotted with small tables at which the guests were served, and a most enjoyable time is reported by all present.

Increase in Railway Earnings.
CHICAGO, June 18.—Gross earnings of 132 American railroads for the first five months of the present year show an increase, as compared with the corresponding period of 1897, of $39,902,830. The aggregate gross earnings of these roads was $224,761,111. For the single month of May the gross earnings of 134 roads aggregated $46,565,011, an increase of $1,555,351. This figures out $159 per mile, which is within one or two cents of the average for the phenomenal month of May in 1896.

Great Rat Catchers.
According to an account in the Journal d'Hygiene, rats have become so abundant in Brazil that a domestic snake, the giboya, which has about the circumference of the arm, is sold in the market place in Rio Janeiro, to be kept in the house as a protection against rodents. It would seem that the serpent pursues its prey more for the pleasure that it is in it than from a sense of hunger, since it is said it rarely eats the rats caught. Similar in its habits and attachments to the domestic cat of our more northern latitudes, the giboya will, it is said, find its way back to the house of its master even if transported to a considerable distance.

Dangerous Drinking Water.
Death comes in minute water. It occurs, however, often in epidemic form. The first symptom is looseness of the bowels. These diseases are checked by taking Foley's Colic Cure, C. J. & Co.

Two books from the Traveling Library came out last winter at the Women's Club are interesting. The titles of the books are, "Children, Their Moods and Crises," by Aldrich, and "Story of Child Nature," by Harrison. Any one having them in their possession will confer a favor by sending them as soon as possible to Mrs. S. H. Atwood.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS.

Sometimes Hard For Them to Understand the Importance of Discipline.

That the soldiers of the continental army—yesterday farmers and artisans—could fight history tells, but in the transition stage the idea of subordination that marks the difference between an army and an armed mob was difficult to grasp by men in whom the idea of personal independence was so strong. The captain was no better than the private in the village from which both hailed, and it was not strange that the private, when ordered by his superior officer to fetch a bucket of water from the spring, should retort: "Get it yourself. I got it yesterday. It's your turn today." This was not insubordination in the view of the rank and file, but merely the assertion of a proper spirit of manliness.

The happened not infrequently during the civil war that the private was a richer man than the officer, as in the case of Elias Howe, the inventor of the sewing machine, who on several occasions presented a fortune to some major or colonel he poor to purchase such a mount himself.

There was another soldier of this kind, Koch by name, who was well known in Philadelphia. He left a fortune of over $1,000,000. It failed to let him one night to be satisfied and over a baggage wagon. The weather was cold and wet. This set the sentinel musing. After remaining on post half an hour he called lustily:

"Corporal! Corral!"

The corporal came and inquired what was wanted. Koch wished to be relieved for a few minutes, having something to say to the officer in command of the post. His wife was gratified, and in a few minutes he stood in the presence of General Macpherson.

"General," said he, "what is the value of that wagon over which I am sentineling?"

"How should I know? Was that all you wanted?" responded the general impatiently.

"Something apprehensive," insisted the soldier.

"Oh, well, $1,000 perhaps."

"Very well, General Macpherson," responded the private. "I will write a check for that amount, and then I will go to bed."—Yours Companion.

STORY OF CERVERA'S FLEET.

Captain of the Ravendale Says They Are Not All Bottled Up at Santiago.

MOLE ST. NICOLAS, June 18.—Captain Huie of the British steamship Ravendale, which sailed today for Porto Rico, declared in positive terms that two of Admiral Cervera's ships are not in Santiago harbor. These words: "I tell you all of Cervera's fleet are not at Santiago, as you Americans think. Two of the larger ships are now hiding at the eastern end of Cuba, not far from Mole St. Nicholas. I know what I am talking about, because I loaded them. This blockade of Cuban ports is a joke. I can run through it whenever I want to and I do. The British flag protects my American naval officers are a lot of fools. When they boarded my ship at Guantanamo they did not have sense enough to look into my bunkers to see whether they were full of coal or not. I will not tell how much coal I had, but it was enough for a big Spanish warship that I met the other day. My bunkers are empty now. Draw your own conclusions as to what I did with it. Cervera is on his flagship Colon at Santiago with a few other ships, but two big ones that Americans do not suspect are prancing around outside. They have been waiting for coal. Now they have got it and are ready for business. Some day they will surprise you Americans."

Looking For a Missing Son.

ST. LOUIS, June 18.—J. C. Byrd of Columbus, Kan., arrived in St. Louis today to search for his son, C. G. Byrd who has been missing from his office and home since June 5. There are reasons which warrants the father's belief that his son has made away with himself. C. G. Byrd was the bookkeeper for the Detroit Lumber and Timber company, but recently resigned because of some differences with his employer. His accounts are straight. The missing man had only been married a short time.
