

A SAD DEATH.

Oliver Young a Former Plattsmouth Boy Murdered at Pendleton, Oregon.

Many people in this city were personally acquainted with John Young and his wife who removed a few years ago to Pendleton, Oregon, where Mr. Young held a responsible position with the Oregon railway and Navigation company, and of late their youngest son, Oliver C. D. Young, has been an accountant for that company at Pendleton. It seems from an extended notice of the tragedy printed in the East Oregonian, and kindly sent the editor of the News by Mr. Young, that a man named Cunningham who had been in a fight with a man named Willis at the town of Milton, came to Pendleton to get a warrant for Willis' arrest. During the afternoon he walked to the depot where Oliver Young was standing and without warning he drew a revolver and shot the young man through the heart, killing him almost instantly. The enraged man then turned on a woman near by and shot her in the back, and emptied his revolver at another lady whom he chased into a saloon, where he also tried to kill the bystanders. The man had never seen any of his victims before and no motive can be assigned, other than that he took Young for Willis and was crazed with anger. He was arrested with difficulty and taken to jail and a lynching was narrowly averted.

The entire city of Pendleton is in mourning over the death of the young man and his funeral was large and attended, the floral tributes being numerous and expensive. The deceased was a namesake of Oliver Dovey of this city and was born here October 13, 1876. He was a most exemplary young man—the pride of his parents—who have the deepest sympathy of their many friends here in their sad bereavement.

Their son Walter is a resident of Superior, Neb., and the other two boys reside in northern California.

HARVEST HURRY AT WORK.

Saturday afternoon Samuel Richardson noticed two suspicious looking men hanging around in his neighborhood and thinking that they might be looking for something to steal he kept watch of them. They shortly left and Mr. R. thought no more about the matter, but in the latter part of the night, or at three o'clock Sunday morning, the dog barked and awoke Mr. R., who thought nothing was wrong and again went to sleep.

In the morning upon entering the barn he found that a set of harness had been stolen, which is described as being a double set having wrought iron hames and square blinds.

Ed Lutz and His Helio.

When Ed. Lutz returned home from the exposition the other evening, he noticed his new telephone had been put in, he supposed of course it had been connected, he endeavored to ring up central.

He rang the bell and took down the ear-phone, said hell-o-o-o! and waited. No answer! Then he bell o-o-ed to the thing a little? (loud!) No answer. Another ring and hell-o-o-o, and still no answer, when Henry Zuckeweller, his partner, asked what he wanted, and explained to him that the 'phone had not been connected with the line. The crowd gave Ed. the horse laugh, and nothing but the cigars could settle the matter.

A Morning Special.

The Missouri Pacific railway which has a station on the exposition grounds has been forced by the immense travel to put on a new train which will pass this city going north at 8:58 a. m. every morning until the close of the exposition, and returning will leave Omaha at 6:00 in the afternoon and will reach Plattsmouth at 7:00 p. m. This gives the best of service and will add to the travel on that road owing to its convenience at the exposition.

We have a first class tinner, and attend promptly to roofing, and all kinds of tin work. EBINGER HARDWARE CO.

Plattsmouth will hold the close of the exposition with delight. If it lasts much longer there won't be change enough left in town to buy a stick of gum. Every line of business has suffered tremendously from the constant drain of money, and many people have been a rue purchasers in the Omaha stores, although they could do better at home. We saw one man who paid $3 for a pair of trousers and thought he had a bargain, yet the same man who had to pay $2.25.

FOOLED.

I met a young creature, it matters not where, And I met with a fall, too, in meeting her there, For I fell quite in love and you only could blame me.

If this beautiful creature you only could see, Her eyes were like fire—they dazzled me quite; No mortal could see them and criticize right, I could only observe their number was two.

And their color about the most marvelous I had, Her mouth, when she laughed, was a cabinet, thrown wide.

With white pearls gleaming from pink velvet inside, When she sang 'twere a cage to shut her in, While her tongue, like a little bird, whistled within.

For lightness, her foot was like that of a lamb; For whiteness, her hand might have borne the palm, And kind was the heart that kept beating below, To keep itself warm in its season of snow.

Escorting my darling I had frequently seen, I said to myself, "I'll have my share," As singly she seated him close to the fire.

"Introduce me," said I, "to your worthy old sire, 'That speckled gentleman best to be fire.' She replied, with surprise and a mixture of grief, 'That old gentleman there is my husband,' said she.
