LETTER FROM ONE OF THE BOYS.

Clyde Vosburg Writes of His Trip To The Philippines.

The following letter was received some days ago by R. B. Carlyle from a former citizen of Plattsmouth, Clyde Vosburg, who is now sergeant in the First Nebraska at Manila. Many of the citizens will probably remember him and be interested in his letter:

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Oct. 3.—Well, as you know, everything went well for us; we left San Francisco on June 15; it was a great day for some of us. At 1 p. m., the general sounded (that is the bugle sound) to strike tents, I suppose you have seen a picture of it—well, in three seconds after, every tent was down on the ground and in forty-five seconds, wrapped, so you can see what drill does. Our tents were the same as they use at the G. A. R. reunion. Well, four of us to a tent, and to pull it up and have it ready to load in forty-five seconds and do it right, makes us hustle; if you don't think so, just get your father and three more men to try it, and you time them. Well, I guess there is no use to tell you any more of our times in 'Frisco, for I expect you have read so much about that, you are tired. We had a very pleasant voyage. At Honolulu, the ladies, assisted by the government, gave us a great banquet, and we had a very good time. The city is quite a good bit like the pictures you see of all foreign places, especially of Japan and China. We left there on the 24th of June, and it was days before we saw land again. The sea was very nice all the way over, but lots of us were sea sick, but when one gets over it, then it is very fine. I would just as soon ride on the ocean as on a train (when the sea is smooth.) We had one funeral at sea, it was the most solemn one I ever saw. The vessel heaved to at 10 o'clock for the services. I will try and give you a short description of it and leave the rest of it for you to imagine.

At 10 o'clock they brought a plank on deck, it was just about the size of a dining room table; over it they placed a canvass sheet, (which was to be the coffin) they put a sack of sand on it at the rail, then came the solemn part.

They brought out the body of Sergeant Gaddes of company C and placed it upon the table with the feet over the sack of sand, and sewed him up in his blanket and then sewed the canvass over it and all was ready. They then placed the star and stripes over him, the band played, and the chaplain read the services which are prescribed by the government for burial at sea. It was all military, but it was so different to be buried in the sea with no one to witness it but God and man. That made lots of the boys think of home, and many a strong man shed tears over his grave, although they knew him not. We arrived here on the 20th day of July, that is at Camp Dewey, seven miles south of this city. Well, I will close for this time.

I am sincerely yours,
CLYDE VOSBURG.

Two Stores Robbed.

Chief Morrissey received word this morning from Marshall Ballard of Pacific Junction to the effect that burglars entered two stores last night and got away with quite a little swag. They got a half dozen razors, some knives, watches, jewelry, ten boxes of cartridges and a few pennies. The thieves are described as well dressed and Mr. Ballard has wired Mr. Morrissey to head them off should they come to Plattsmouth, and wire him at once.

Chief Morrissey said that he was sure the men would not show up here, as he had run them out of town yesterday. Four well dressed toughs were arrested night before last and lodged in jail on suspicion. As there was no evidence against them, Chief Morrissey ran them across the river, and they immediately got in their work on the Iowa stores.

Chief Morrissey did not like the looks of the gang, and he suspected that the men were hanging around for no good purposes. They were a smooth looking set of men, having the appearance of first-class crooks.

Foot Ball at Weeping Water. A foot ball team has been organized with Harry Groves as coach. The team is made up of the strongest aggregation of players that could be secured here. Coach Groves has secured a game with Weeping Water, to be played at that place on Thanksgiving day. The boys are working hard, and will give the Weeping Willies the best game of their life. A large crowd should accompany the boys over there and see the fun.

Not guilty.

Ralph Palmer, the boy charged with letting off the brakes from the E. & M. box car in the yards which ran down the grade and caused a wreck, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars, had his trial yesterday and the jury last evening brought in a verdict of acquittal. This is the second criminal case tried so far this term and in both a verdict has been rendered for the defendants.

The Pearl Steam Laundry is centrally located, and, while we have not imported any experts from the Philippines, yet we will warrant all work first-class. Give the Pearl, under the new management, a trial and you will be pleased with the result.

Murderer Wolverton.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Nov. 17.—Joe Wolverton, who on the night of December 26, two years ago, is said to have murdered Mrs. Mary Gillilan in cold blood, is now safely behind the bars of the Clark county jail. He will be tried for the murder at the December term of the court.

Mrs. Gillilan left her husband at Bradford, Ill., and came to Osceola, Ia., in October, 1896. She was a pretty woman and soon had scores of admirers. Among these was Joe Wolverton, a young farmer living near there. He went with her for several months. On the night of December 26, 1896, she had an engagement with him and they went walking toward the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy pump house. An hour later Wolverton was seen coming from the direction of the pump house alone.

The next evening the dead body of Mary Gillilan was found in the pump house with a bullet hole in her temple. Her jewelry was not disturbed, showing that robbery was not the object of the murder, and there was nothing to indicate suicide. Wolverton was indicted, but had left for parts unknown. A reward of $500 was offered for his capture and a number of detectives were employed on the case, but never located him.

A week ago, through the postmaster of Cambridge, Story county, Ia., Sheriff Lakinbill located Lewis Wolverton, a brother of Joe's, on a farm near there under the name of Morgan. Morgan's mail was watched and it was learned that he was receiving letters from a brother in Mynard, Neb., living there on a farm under the name of Groatt. Sheriff Lakinbill went to Mynard and recognized Groatt as Joe Wolverton. He was brought back from Mynard today. He stoutly denies his guilt.

Illinois Central Plans. CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The Illinois Central has decided to extend its lines to Omaha. All the preliminary work has been done and the construction of some 175 miles of new track from Ft. Dodge, Ia., to Omaha will begin early next spring. This extension will give the Illinois Central a valuable new western terminal and will greatly increase the importance of the western end of the road.

On the south, too, the Illinois Central is about to construct a valuable feeder to its system in northern Louisiana. It is a continuation of the logging railway running from Kentwood, in a northeasterly direction toward the Mississippi state line. The road will be extended to Columbus, fifty miles from Kentwood.
