American Provost Guard Prevents a Cuban-Spanish Riot

Personal Encounter between General Julio Sanguilly and the Mayor of Havana Nearly Starts a Riot—The Theatre the Scene of the Wild Excitement—Other News of Interest.

HAVANA Jan. 5.—A personal encounter between General Julio Sanguilly and the mayor of Havana, the Marquis de Esteban, would have caused another Cuban-Spanish riot last night but for the American provost guard.

General Sanguilly went to the Alhambra theater with his son and Major Pelejo de Cardenas. Municipal guards had been placed at the theatre entrance as usual and an altercation took place between one of these and Major Cardenas, owing to the guard's refusal to salute General Sanguilly. After the performance closed Cardenas went out first and another violent scene ensued. The guard threatened to hit Cardenas on the head with his musket, whereupon Cardenas rushed back into the theatre, calling for Sanguilly.

As the latter responded the mayor, the Marquis de Esteban, came up. Sanguilly shouted threateningly to the marquis, who heatedly replied. Sanguilly then drew his revolver, threatening to shoot Esteban, at which the marquis quickly raised his walking stick and struck Sanguilly in the mouth.

A scene of the wildest excitement ensued. The Cubans around Sanguilly were ready to attack the municipal guards, who under Esteban's orders loaded their rifles. But for the prompt arrival of the American provost guard, which separated them, both parties would have fired with terrible results. Mayor Esteban asked the provost officer to station some of his men near the theatre to prevent an attack on the guards by the Cubans, who had gone off uttering loud threats. This was done.

The marquis made a formal complaint to General Ludlow today regarding the matter.

About eight years ago the first Christian Science meetings were held in Plattsmouth, conducted by Silas Long. All are cordially invited to attend.

LOUISA ALCOTT.

Her Wit and Abilities as a Funmaker—Travesties on Her Father.

"One evening, a few months after their return to Concord to live, my sister and I accompanied our mother on a call on the Alcotts," writes Edward W. Emerson of "When Louisa Alcott Was a Girl" in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Before we left Louisa was persuaded by her mother to do something for our amusement. She disappeared and soon came in transformed. Her hair, which girls in those days wore brushed low and braided, was twisted up into a little knob on her head so tight that she could hardly wink. "The broad collar, white undersleeves and hoopskirt of the day were gone, and she appeared in an ugly, scant, brown calico dress, with bloomer trousers to match, blue stockings and coarse shoes. She had a manuscript in one hand and a pen in the other, which she thrust behind her ear and began a harangue on the 'Rights of Woman,' and offered at once proceeded to read in strident tones a gem of thought which she had just turned out, called 'Hoots of a Distracted Soul in the Wilderness.' She then passed on to other confirmatory manuscripts that she professed to be editing—travesties on her father's writings, I think—certainly on those of my father, under the name of 'Rolf Walden Emerboy. Mr. Alcott came in from his study to hear, and, however little he could understand such manifestations of the spirit of prophecy, he seemed to feel the pride of a parent in his daughter's wit."

LOUISVILLE ITEMS.

Louisville has a $2,000 damage suit on hand. B. R. Sawyer, who slipped and fell on the sidewalk some time ago, has sued the town for that amount. People are all waiting to see if he gets it, and if he does there will be lots of damage cases, for they all want to fall for that price.

There is a good deal of comment as to who the sporting editor is who writes the articles in these columns. Now the writer wishes to say that he will try to please all. But of course he has to gather the news from all sources. He has to depend on part of the news as it is told him. He may make a mistake or two, but what is found in these columns is done to interest the general public and let the world know that we live in a lively town and know how to enjoy life as we journey on our road of time.

Dr. Jones of South Bend was in town last Saturday. Doctor says walking is good, for he tried to count all the ties from here to South Bend, but he only counted ninety-three, and he said they all got tangled up some way or else he went so fast, for he could not count any more. The B. & M. carries passengers yet doctor, so you better ride the next time you come down. He is a good walker, for he walked it in fifty-nine minutes and fifty-nine seconds, for he says he kept time. Well, maybe he did.

Henry Mockenhaupt and Frank Nichols each got $1.10 apiece that they would both go to see two young ladies last Monday night. Henry had lots of money and he knew Frank was bashful, so he proposed the bet, but when it came time to go and Henry saw that Frank was getting ready and meant to go, then Henry showed the white feathers, which is just like him and had big tears in his eyes and asked Frank then and there to declare the bet off as that was all the money he had and his laundry bill was unpaid. Frank went to see the all right, but he was very timid.

INFORMATION AND OPINION.

Mrs. Florence Watson of Middleton, O. was found dead in bed a few days ago. When the neighbors went to the house they found that the poor woman had actually starved to death. Mrs. Watson comes from a very prominent and wealthy family. About a year ago she eloped with William Watson, and her parents never forgave her for it. The coroner will investigate the case.

By the purchase of a large block of stock of the Caribbean railway in Cuba, L. Ruiz & Co., bankers, representing English capitalists, have secured a controlling interest in that line. The same men have also been large purchasers of the stocks of the Sagua and Cienfuegos companies. They expect to have soon a controlling interest in those two concerns, and, owing, as they do, the united railway lines, will be in a position to dictate terms to the Juvero company, which is the wealthiest and most prosperous in the island. If the Juvero stock cannot be purchased, the line will undoubtedly be paralleled, thus giving a trunk line from Pinar del Rio to Santa Clara.

Reviving His Credit.

A man is said to have caused the ban of marriage to be published in a Yorkshire church, between himself and a lady to whom he was not engaged and who had no intention of marrying him. The man, it was alleged, had come to the end of his credit, and astonished the town by having the banns published between himself and a rich lady who, he had ascertained, was on the continent. At once his credit was revived.
