Rebels Fiercely Resist Advance, But Are Driven Back.

South Dakotians in Thick of Fight and Six Men Killed—Nebraska and Kansas Boys Take An Active Part—General MacArthur's Division Rests at the Gates of Calumet.

MANILA, April 25.—(1930 P. M.)—General MacArthur's division fought its way to the Filipino trenches before Calumet today, advancing four miles, mostly through woods and jungle and crossing the Bagbag river.

This was accomplished at a cost to the Americans of six killed and twenty-eight wounded. The First South Dakota bearing the heaviest loss.

After fording the river the South Dakota regiment pursued the insurgents to Calumet, but the town was found to be so strongly protected that General MacArthur deemed it best to withdraw the tired fighters and go into camp for a night's rest before making the final assault.

The largest buildings in Calumet were being fired by the Filipinos while the Americans were crossing the river fully a mile away, indicating the enemy's intention to abandon the place.

The insurgents seem to have adopted a settled policy of retiring from one position after another, after inflicting the greatest possible damage upon the advancing army. The forces today were well drilled. Every foot of the ground was tenaciously disputed by the Filipinos who stood remarkably firm even before artillery.

The enemy had planned to wreck our transport train. This attempt was a failure, but a span of a railway bridge over the river was destroyed, hampering the American transportation for some time. The Filipinos cut the gridlers, intending to have the structure fall with the train, but it collapsed prematurely of its own weight.

The Bagbag river, which is about 100 yards wide at that point, was splendidly fortified, and the Americans were compelled to approach the open space from which the rebels had cleared every obstacle in sight. The bank of the river, a high bluff, was surmounted with trenches, capped with rocks, loopholed and partly hidden by bushes.

General Wheaton's brigade approached the river along the railroad, leaving camp beyond Malos city. General Hale's brigade, which started yesterday, was earlier on the march, going toward the rear.

The mounted transport was being pushed by Chinaman, the Twentieth Kansas regiment advancing in an extended order on the left and the First Montana on the right with the First Light artillery on its right. The rapid firing guns of the train opened the ball at 11:30 p. m., about a mile from the river, their popping alternating continuously with the boom of the six-pounders.

The Montana regiment and the Utah artillery batteries at the same time entered the jungle, from which the insurgents, who were occupying a large straggling village, had poured heavy volleys. In the course of an hour the Americans had forced a passage through the woods to the open space in front of the river and the artillery immediately on wheeling into the open began shelling the Filipino trenches.

In the meantime the Twentieth Kansas, led by Captain Bolwood, performed one of the most brilliant achievements of the campaign. The regiment was being held in reserve, and Company K charged a distance of a quarter of a mile over a cornfield to the bank of the river, near the bridge, where the insurgents from a trench were peppering the armored train, then about 100 yards back down the track. The company found shelter in a ditch.

Colonel Frederick Funston called for volunteers to cross the river and the colonel himself, Frederick Ball, a private of Company K, a private of Company E and Corporal Ferguson of Company I crawled along the iron girders.

While this was going on the men of Company K from the ditch were facilitating the trenches in the endeavor to divert attention, but the Filipinos got the range from a trench down the river and their bullets soon splattered the water under the structure.

Colonel and His Revolver.

Having reached the broken span the small but valorous party of Americans slid down the caisson, swam a few yards to the shore and crawled up the bank, the little colonel leading the way to the trenches, revolver in hand, while the few remaining Filipinos bolted.

Colonel Funston said afterward: "It was not much to do. We knew they could not shoot straight and that our boys would attend to them while we were crossing."

General Hale's troops on the right had the hardest fight. They followed the north bank of the river nearest the town from the east with the First Nebraska on the left and the Fifty-first Iowa beyond. The country to be traversed was mostly jungle, but the Filipinos stood their ground even in the open spaces.

General Hale's right joined General Wheaton's left soon after noon across the river. About this time the cheers of the Kansas troops announced that the Americans had crossed to the river. General Hale's men began to ford the river, a branch of the Bagbag stretching to the northeast. The general himself plunged in up to his neck and the regiments, all carrying flags, followed across the stream. The guns of the Utah light artillery were dragged over next and formed an extended line to advance upon the trenches before Calumet, from which the Filipinos were pouring continuous volleys.

The armored car had one man killed and two wounded. The Kansas regiment had three wounded during the charge and the Utah light artillery one killed and two wounded. Most of the other casualties befell the South Dakota regiment.

It is difficult to estimate the insurgent losses, but they are no fewer than seventy killed, many of them by the artillery.

Mistook Bedbug Poison For Wine.

From Wednesday's Daily.

George Murdock, a well known German, who works as a farm hand a few miles west of Miami, is in a critical condition as a result of drinking bedbug poison which he mistook for wine. George is addicted to the drink habit, it is said, and about a week ago he drank to excess for a day or two. In the night he woke up, and having what might be termed a dark brew in taste, he arose from his couch in quest of something to drink. He went to an adjoining room and drank some water, and upon returning he saw some bottles sitting on a shelf. Taking one of them down he drank freely from its contents. A little later he became very ill and an investigation revealed the fact that he had taken bedbug poison, thinking he had found some wine.

This was several days ago and as he is still ill from its effects, being unable to keep anything on his stomach. The man for whom he works notified Dr. Schildknecht today. He being in the Lincoln district, the doctor directed him to the county physician of that district, and what his condition now is cannot be stated.

Demise of a Pioneer Citizen.

William Young, who for many years has been a resident of the vicinity of Union, died April 25, at 6:30 p. m., of old age. Deceased was ninety years and eight months of age at the time of his death. Mr. Young settled on his farm near Union in March, 1855, and during the first few years of his residence in old Cass he served in the capacity of county surveyor. He was the father of Mrs. Henry Boeck, of this city; Mrs. Ellen Stafford, who lives near Clarinda, Ia., and Dave and Frank Young, who reside near here.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence of the deceased. The services being conducted by Rev. Campbell of the Methodist church, and interment made in the Young cemetery.

An Interesting Story.

George Cook, traveling representative for Swift & Co. of South Omaha, was in the city today. The presence of this gentleman in the city recalls the famous murder case in which Mr. Cook's brother lost his life at Waverly in 1883 or 1884. The case is a very interesting one owing to the trivial matter over which the quarrel arose which led to the murder and the way the trials came out. Quin Bohannan and Cook got into a dispute over the way the word peddler was spelled, during which Bohannan shot the latter and killed him. A trial was had in Lincoln and Bohannan was convicted of murder in the second degree. The result not being satisfactory a new trial was granted and a change of venue was taken to Otoe county and Bohannan was convicted of murder in the first degree. A few days later, however, he got out of the Nebraska City jail in some manner and he has not been seen since—or at least has not been arrested. The case created widespread interest at the time and the names of the parties were fresh on the lips of the people all over the state.

It is a fact beyond question that John T. Coleman, the jeweler, has the most desirable line of rings to be found in the city.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE.

Miss Nellie Guthman and Herman Neitzel United for Life.

Ceremony Performed By Father Carney in the Perkins House at 3 O'clock Last Wednesday—Young Couple Departed on the Afternoon Train For a Wedding Trip to South Bend, Ind.

From Wednesday's Daily.

A very pretty wedding took place in the parlors of the Perkins house at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when Rev. J. T. Carney of St. John's church united in marriage Nellie Josephine, the charming and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Guthman, to Herman R. Neitzel, a prominent young business man of Murdock, this county.

The wedding was a quiet affair, only the relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. Miss Tressie Hempel acted as bridesmaid and W. F. Roth, of Kansas City, an old friend of the groom, was best man. Miss Marista Cagney very beautifully rendered the wedding march and the impressive Catholic wedding service made the affair an interesting one. The bride was neatly attired in a brown traveling dress and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses, while the groom wore the conventional black.

Light refreshments of ices, ice cream, etc., were served immediately after the wedding and at 3:30 the happy young couple departed for South Bend, Ind., the groom's old home, on a wedding tour, a large number of friends going to the depot to wish them Godspeed.

The bride is a graduate of St. John's Catholic school, and her agreeable ways and winning manners have endeared her to all who know her. The groom is a young man of unimpeachable integrity and is possessed of those business qualifications which go to make a successful business man. He is cashier of the German bank of Murdock, besides having other business interests there, and has a neat little cottage furnished in which they will begin house-keeping upon their return from Indiana. They enter upon married life under the most favorable circumstances. Many useful presents were given the young people as tokens of the esteem in which they were held.

Those present from out of the city were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Moeckenhaupt, Louisville; Miss Anna Tighe, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Stander, Manley; Mr. L. Neitzel, brother of the groom, Murdock.

The NEWS joins with their best of friends in wishing for them a long and happy married life.

Gibson-Voellgel.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Voellgel, residing south of this city, Rev. Freund today united in marriage Miss Christina Voellgel and Mr. Horace Gibson of Omaha. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony. The young folks will at once begin house-keeping in a home already prepared by the groom in Omaha.

It has developed that there were several fellows connected with "robbing" the barrels of oil which were found floating in the river the other day. Johnny Gardner was only one member of the "enterprise."

Didn't Find the Girl.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Officer T. T. Fry returned from South Omaha and Omaha last evening, where, with the assistance of officers of those cities, he had spent the day in searching for Della Meyers, who left her home in this city Sunday evening. The officer found the conductor with whom she rode to South Omaha. Upon arriving at the latter place, the conductor states, he took the girl to a boarding house and gave her 25 cents with which to pay for her supper. Fry and the conductor went to the house, but the girl was not there, and upon inquiring it was found that she remained there but a few moments. The conductor said that the girl told him her parents lived in South Omaha and that that was the reason he permitted her to ride. He saw no young man with her, but it is the opinion of the officers that he reached South Omaha in some way and that they met there and are now together.

A thorough search of both towns failed to reveal the whereabouts of the girl, but with a good description of her it is believed she will soon be found and returned to her anxious parents in this city.

WILLIAM J. HICKS, Dated this 14th day of April, 1899.

S. S. S. GOES TO THE BOTTOM.

Promptly Reaches the Seat of all Blood Diseases and Cures the Worst Cases.

In every test made S. S. S. easily demonstrates its superiority over other blood remedies. It matters not how obstinate the case, nor what other treatment or remedies have failed, S. S. S. always promptly reaches and cures any disease where the blood is in any way involved. Everyone who has had experience with blood diseases knows that there are no all-cure such real, deep-seated blood diseases as S. S. S. cures, and none can offer such incontrovertible evidence of merit. S. S. S. is not merely a tonic—it is a cure! It goes down to the very seat of all blood diseases, and gets at the foundation of the trouble and forces the poison from the system. It does not, like other remedies, dry up the poison and bite it from view temporarily, only to break forth again more violently than ever; S. S. S. forces out every trace of taint, and rids the system of it forever.

Mrs. F. W. Lee, Montgomery, Ala., writes: "Some years ago I was inoculated with poison by a nurse who infected my babe with blood taint. I was covered with sores and ulcers from head to foot, and in my great extremity I prayed to die. Several prominent physicians treated me, but all to no purpose. The mercury and potash which they gave me seemed to add fuel to the awful flame which was devouring me. I was advised by friends who had seen wonderful cures made by it, to try Swift's Specific. I improved from the start, as the medicine seemed to go direct to the cause of the trouble and force the poison out. Twenty bottles cured me completely." Swift's Specific.

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

—is the only remedy that is guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains no mercury, potash, arsenic, or any other mineral or chemical. It never fails to cure Cancer, Eczema, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Tetter, Boils
