

MANGLED ON THE RAHS

Body of an Unknown Man Found on the Missouri Pacific Track.

Thought to Have Fallen From a Mid-night Freight While Stealing a Ride—Coroner's Jury Fails to Reveal the Identity of the Unfortunate Man—Body Buried in Oak Hill.

From Wednesday's Daily
An unknown man was killed in the big cut on the Missouri Pacific railroad about a mile north of the depot last night. The body was found by the crew running freight No. 129, which leaves here going north at 5:59 a. m. The engineer saw the body lying on the track and stopped the train and backed up to the depot to notify the authorities. The section men were sent out to watch the body and at 7:30 Coroner John Sattler arrived and impounded a jury composed of Dr. W. H. Schidknecht, W. D. Jones, Peter Hansen, Ike Dunn, F. Taylor and W. A. Lewis. After making a careful examination of the body the jury returned a verdict that the man, to the jury unknown, had come to his death by being run over by a train, but could not determine how the accident happened.

Body Cut In Two.
The man's body was cut entirely in two, the left leg and left arm were crushed and the entrails were scattered about, making a sickening sight. From the appearance of the body and the marks along the track it was ascertained that he was killed by a south bound train, and it is supposed that he was stealing a ride on the freight which passes through this city shortly after midnight, following passenger No. 2. There were no marks on the body except where the wheels struck him, and it is the opinion of the railroad men that he was riding the bumpers and fell between the cars. Passenger train No. 1, which passes here at 4:50 a. m., also passed over the body without the train men having seen it, but it is not believed that the body sustained any further mutilation.

Could Not Be Identified.
The man was about thirty years of age, five feet seven inches tall, and weighed about 160 pounds. He was fairly well dressed in a blue-black suit of clothes and a black shirt. The big toe of his left foot had been cut off at some time. In his pockets was found $1.25 in change and also $1.25 in one sock. He did not present the appearance of an ordinary tramp, having a clean shave and recent hair cut and was a nice looking man. There were no letters or anything found in the pockets by which the dead man could be identified.

After finishing the inquest Coroner Sattler came down town and got a coffin and the body of the unfortunate man was buried in Oak Hill cemetery.

RAILROAD NOTES AND PERSONALS

Martin O'Brien, one of the Burlington section men, sustained a bad scalp wound Wednesday. The men were bending a rail when the lever slipped and struck him on the head with great force, cutting a large gash. He is now taking a lay off as a result.

No. 3 on the Burlington made a record breaking run Wednesday evening from Pacific Junction to Lincoln. The train was late, and in order to make up time a special train was run from Omaha to connect with the train at Lincoln, the main train was brought straight through by way of Louisville. The distance from Pacific Junction over the old line is sixty miles, and this distance was covered by engine 307, carrying six cars behind it, in the remarkable time of one hour and twenty-four minutes, including three stops for stations and one for a railroad crossing. The stops were estimated to consume at least fourteen minutes of the train's time, making the actual running time for the sixty miles in seventy minutes. Engineer Stattery of Croston, Ia., was in charge. Faster time has been made over this piece of track, but never better time with so heavy a train. The train left Pacific Junction at 5:15 p. m. and arrived at Lincoln at 6:39.—Lincoln Journal.

D. S. Guild, the Burlington supply agent, returned last evening from a two weeks' trip to the Black Hills and Wyoming.

The Turnverein of this city is making arrangements to celebrate the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Goethe's birth, on the evening of August 27 at the Turner hall. A prize will be offered for the best recitation selected from Goethe's work. There will also be a prize given for the best address upon the topic "Goethe's Value to German Literature." A cordial invitation is extended to the public, and especially are all Germans urged to take an interest and be present.

The Turner Picnic.
On account of the heavy rain the picnic to have been given by the Turners last Sunday at Nick Halmes' grove was postponed to next Sunday, August 20. Everybody is invited to attend and spend a pleasant afternoon.

B. S. RAMSEY IS THE VICTOR

Is Empowered to Select His Own Delegation to Judicial Convention.
GREENWOOD, Aug. 17.—(Special to THE NEWS.)—The democratic county convention which met at this place today for the purpose of electing delegates to the state and judicial conventions was called to order at 1 p. m. by Chairman Morgan. Dr. Hengate of Weeping Water, representing the Travis men, and John A. Gutsche of Plattsmouth, for Ramsey, were nominated for temporary chairman, the vote resulting: Gutsche, 64; Hengate, 48. Frank J. Morgan then on behalf of Mr. Travis withdrew the latter's name and moved that Ramsey be empowered to select his own delegates. This carried unanimously, and the convention adjourned amidst great enthusiasm.

INFORMATION AND OPINION.

Joe Leiter, the young Chicago millionaire, has just demonstrated his ability as a wing shot. Last year he proved himself a dangerous manipulator of the wheat market. Last month he showed himself a courageous fire fighter when flames threatened to destroy the summer hotel at Brighton Beach, and last Saturday he missed only one bird in a team shoot at Long Branch. It isn't every man who can be so clever in many ways.

Captain E. R. Smith of the 159th Indiana, who, it is said, had the distinction of being the youngest captain in the United States service during the Spanish-American war, has again been tendered a captaincy in the U. S. service. He was only 19 years old when he took his company to the field. He is the only son of Captain S. M. Smith, a veteran of the civil war, and his home is in Washington, Ind.

HIS NAME WAS LONG.

Information Regarding the Young Man Killed on the M. P.

Two of His Comrades From South Omaha Visit Plattsmouth and Say the Description Is That of Long—Has Relatives at Kansas City and Washington, D. C.

From Thursday's Daily.
There is little doubt now that the man who was killed on the Missouri Pacific track north of the depot in this city Tuesday night was a former employe of a South Omaha packing house, whose name was Will Long.

A couple of young men by the name of William Meridith and Ed Nugent came down from South Omaha last night to investigate the matter. They had heard of the accident, and upon being given a description of the man who was killed they said that there was no doubt but that it was Long. He had been employed for some time in a packing house and left South Omaha Tuesday evening to go to Kansas City, where he has a brother and sister and where he has lived for several years. He also has a brother in Washington, D. C., where he used to live and where his parents died. One of the young men said he had lived in the family with Long and said he was a fine young man of good habits. The relatives at Kansas City were notified and are expected to come to this city and will probably take up the body and remove it to the family burying ground.

From the Weeping Water Republican.
The heavy wind Thursday night was very damaging in this section. Some of the farmers say that half of their apples were lying on the ground the next morning. Corn was also blown down some, but it would have suffered much worse had there been any rain with the wind. In towns some shade trees and fruit trees were blown down and the chimneys of several of our residences were demolished.

Married—In this city at 1 o'clock, on Wednesday, August 16, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Burns, Miss Belle Burns was united in the holy bonds of wedlock with William Merritt Bobbitt of Alvo. The groom is a son of Hon. and Mrs. T. N. Bobbitt, and is a native of Cass county. He is a graduate of Weeping Water Academy, of the class of 1898. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burns, and has grown to womanhood in this city, and has endeared herself to all her associates on account of her loving disposition and gentle demeanor. Rev. Hanford officiated at the wedding, which was a quiet affair, only a few relatives and immediate friends being present.

Uncle George Shryder left at this office a few days since four shingles that had done service on the roof of John Back's house for forty-two years. The shingles for the roof were brought up the river on a boat and Mr. Back bought them at Plattsmouth and hauled them out to his Mt. Pleasant farm. They are made of pine and are shaved. The wood, where it was exposed to the elements is almost eaten through, but where it was not exposed it is sound. Uncle George says that when the roof was recently taken off to be replaced by a new one, the nails were found to be almost as bright as new nails. Mr. Back has a fine farm of three quarters, and the house he lives in today is somewhat different from the one the family began life in Nebraska forty-five years ago.

Like a Tiny Battleship.
From the Detroit Journal: P. H. Studer, the Swain avenue boat builder, has just completed the hull of a most extraordinary gasoline launch for the United States government. Though only twenty-six feet in length over all, it is constructed in exact imitation of one of Uncle Sam's men of war. The boat is designed for use by United States lighthouse officials at the "Soo." It was the unique idea of Lieut. C. C. Churchill of the "Soo" hydrographic office, under whose direction the launch was built, that she should be given the lines of a battleship. He prepared the plans and made the model, a counterpart of the Massachusetts. Now she is ready for the water—ram and all. She will be placed on a flat-car and transported by rail to the Soo, to be used in patrolling the St. Mary's river and in tending buoys and other channel marks. The moulded depth is 4 1/2 feet and her beam 6 1/2 feet. She will draw three feet of water. At the Soo she will be fitted with a twelve-horse power gasoline engine, which is being built by the Lake Shore Iron works of Marquette. She will have a propeller wheel 24 inches in diameter. Her speed, it is expected, will be about eleven miles an hour. The total cost will be $1,900.

The buggy is a new style vehicle, with rubber tires and is very pretty. The boys expect to show other owners of horses a merry clip.

The Pope's Life.
Viewed from the human standpoint nothing can be more joyless than the daily life of the Roman pontiff at the present day. The era of magnificence, of pageantry, for the Roman court, has forever passed away. For some austerity, at least outwardly, distinguishes the dwellers of the Vatican. The atmosphere there is gloomy and chill. The pope lives alone; no one shares with him even a meal. A walk in the garden attached to the palace has for years been the only source of relaxation for him who, while styling himself "the Vicegerent of Christ," is nevertheless, by his own volition, "the Prisoner of the Vatican."—Self-Culture.

LEHNHOFF'S

CO-EDUCATION IN CALIFORNIA

Some of the Reasons Why Mrs. Stanford Did Not Give.

Something of a stir has been made by Mrs. Stanford's stipulation with the trustees of Stanford university that no more than 500 girls shall be admitted to the school, no matter how great the number of boys. The only reason that she seemed willing to give was that the institution was designed for the education of young men, not young women, and that the large proportion of girls in attendance threatens to turn the school eventually into a girls' school. We suspect that the kind-hearted woman has reasons that she thinks might just as well not be stated, says The Argonaut. It may be of some interest to speculate on them. Perhaps she regards men as the prime factor in the concerns of life with which an education has most to do. Possibly she imagines that the good, old way of giving a girl a seminary or high school education is sufficient for the needs of womanhood, and of humanity, indirectly. We imagine that she found the life of a girl in a great institution like Stanford, where there are hardly any restrictions upon girls except their own sense of right (which experience may not always guarantee to be the best), not calculated to refine and build her girlhood into strong, dainty, sweet womanhood. Perhaps she had an inkling of some of the things that girls have to endure, some of the temptations to which they are exposed, in institutions managed almost exclusively by men. Likely she heard stories of girls becoming infatuated with sleek and unctuous professors. Perhaps she has taken into account the extreme susceptibility of young girls, their proneness to hero-worship, their romantic ideals, and the other beautiful weaknesses that give them a special charm and make them easy prey. Likely she desired to limit the number of girls thus exposed, and that she hoped there would come through the ordeal a sufficient number of that number to make good and useful women. Or, possibly, she did not wish to increase the growing competition between men and women in the world's work. Perhaps she thinks it is right for men to be the bread winners and for women to be protected and provided for. There is a chance that she may have looked forward to the time when the present movement—the "woman's movement"—would have so changed and strained the mutual relations of the sexes as to make the progress of civilization more difficult. Maybe she imagined that men and women should be partners, not rivals; that the strong should bear the heavy burdens of life, the weak the fine burdens; that as men and women are created with different attributes, qualities and capabilities of body, mind and spirit, each should keep within his or her proper bounds—each do the things that nature has said to be done.

The Will to Live.
Many of the great human scourges of the race have, unconsciously and unintentionally, done immense good for mankind through the possession of this vast overflowing energy. "There shall be no Alps," said Napoleon in his selfish desire to conquer Italy, and the result was the wonderful roads which connected northern and southern Europe. If ever there was an example on a colossal human scale of the "will to live," it was embodied in Peter the Great, an awful and drunken barbarian, but see what he did for Russia. In this world, whose ultimate problems we do not pretend to solve, the will to live, with all its potential consequences, is a great fact without which the human race would gradually die out.—London Spectator.
