

WERE HAPPILY WEDDED

Nuptials of Mr. Robert Sampson and Miss Jennie Anthony.

Rev. A. Steeth of the Methodist Church performed the ceremony which united for life the lives of the happy young couple—other happenings of local interest.

From Thursday's Daily

A very pretty event occurred at the home of M. N. Anthony and wife in South Park at 8:30 o'clock last evening, when the lives of their daughter, Jennie, and Robert Sampson were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock, Rev. A. Steeth of the Methodist church officiating.

Ed Tut performed in a very artistic manner the part of best man, while Miss Addie Smith acted finely as bridesmaid, Hilt Westcott playing the wedding march. The bride was beautifully attired in cream albatross, trimmed in satin, and carried pink roses, and Miss Smith wore white India linen and carried cream roses.

The house was beautifully decorated with carnations and American flags. After the ceremony delicate refreshments were served and a social time spent.

The ceremony was witnessed by about thirty relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties—a number of relatives from Glenwood being in attendance.

The groom is the son of E. B. Sampson of this city, and is a young man of many good qualities who has a host of friends. He was a member of the Third Nebraska, and remained with the regiment till it was mustered out. Mr. Sampson is now employed in the Burlington shops. The bride is a young woman of womanly ways, and is fully deserving the husband whom she has chosen to share her joys and sorrows of life. She is a graduate of the Plattsmouth high school, class of '07.

THE NEWS joins with the legions of friends in wishing this worthy young couple much joy and happiness through life.

Worked Him For Coin.

From Thursday's Daily.

D. V. Campbell and C. L. Sharp, residing near South Road, were given a preliminary hearing before Justice Archer today on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

There were three men in the deal—Hal Atterberry of Omaha being the third one. The complaining witness was Herman Borman. The latter purchased a recipe of Campbell and Atterberry for making butterine or making two pounds of butter out of one by adding a certain kind of powder and some milk. Borman was to pay $500 for the state right, and after paying $400 of that amount concluded that he had been swindled and caused the arrest of the first two, but Atterberry has not yet been found.

The part Sharp is charged with playing was to be in partnership with Borman and getting him to advance the money. Campbell and Sharp each gave bail in the sum of $500 to appear in district court and were given their liberty.

Coming.

One of the theatrical events of the season will be the exhibition at the opera house by the famous Kline's Lumiere Cinematograph Co., of Keith's theatre fame, New York, of the Spanish-American-Philippine wars, three evenings, commencing Monday, Nov. 13. This is the same company and machines that created such a sensation at the Omaha exposition with their "Battle of Manila," and should not be confounded with the cheap and trashy picture machines that have been exhibited here to empty houses. Among the views they carry that will interest every man, woman and child of Plattsmouth and vicinity are the reviews of the First, Second and Third Nebraska Vol. Inf., given at San Luis, Cuba and San Francisco, by Mr. Paley of New York, for Thomas A. Edison. Among other interesting subjects are the battles of San Juan, Cavite, El Canay, the bombardments of Porto Rico, Mantanzas, Santiago, Dewey's victory at Manila, Cervera's defeat at Santiago, etc. Prices 10c, 20c and 30c.

Construction and Destruction.

Chimbers.

"Did you climb the Alps?" asked the young woman. "No," answered Mrs. Cumrox, "we meant to. But we couldn't get accommodations anywhere except on the second floor of a hotel that had no elevator. So we went right away."—Ex.

ABOUT THE NEW DRAMA.

"Aberdeen" Contains Everything Which the Theatre-God Desires.

Years ago the average drama was a jumble of heroic speeches and propitious situations—a single man did things that were beyond the power of an army; children frightened off villainous characters with weapons they could scarcely lift, much less use with effect; platoons of soldiers were felled with one shot, yet the public accepted it as a matter of fact. Not so today.

The theatre-god of the present period demands consistency; he goes to the theatre, witnesses a play and then bluntly asks why such and such a character did such and such a thing, sits down, points out the unnatural and inconsistent situations and action, and, if the play happens to be successful with these defects, condemns it unreservedly. Keeping pace with the tastes of the up-to-date theatre-god, a new school of drama has sprung up—a school where the playwright shows as closely to nature as it is possible for him to do; the closer his work resembles real life the greater the playwright and the more valuable the work.

To this latter school belongs the new drama, "Aberdeen." No drama has ever told a prettier story of domestic life and nothing could be more natural than this beautiful play. Not an inconsistency, not an unnatural point does it contain to mar its intrinsic worth.

CAMELS CARRIED THE FAVORS.

But the Monkey Quite Forgot to Distribute Them.

The grand ball at Shepherd's hotel came off on the night of Feb. 1, says a Cairo correspondent of the New York Herald. This is a function of annual occurrence, and is one of Cairo's greatest social events. It was a very handsome affair and the Moorish restaurant—probably one of the richest in point of decoration in the world, opening into a spacious dining-room, which was used for the ball-room, and opening in its turn on the hall conducting to the suite of fine salons furnished in the oriental style, with palms and exotics everywhere, making a setting of dark green to the many beautiful dresses—resembled a wing of a palace during a court ball.

It was not only the ball of the season at Shepherd's, but the dinner of the season as well. At nearly every table was a dinner party, everybody in full dress, the ladies décolleté and wearing their ball dresses. The "coup d'oeil" was beautiful, the Moorish lamps lighted by multi-colored electric bulbs, which increased the sparkle of many a gemmed necklace and agrafe.

Mr. Bachele, the popular manager of Shepherd's hotel, had the dining-room cleared by a large corps of Arabs and the restaurant converted into a beautiful and immense salon, with a marble fountain in the middle, from the basins of which water ran down over a thick apron of roses. Divans and valuable oriental carpets were everywhere.

The collation, which was led by Comte de Zoghbe and Fakry Bey, was exceedingly spirited and was danced with much entrain, the "clou" of it and that of the ball being the camel and donkey figure, when two young live camels, followed by a sleek little dun-colored donkey, with large side baskets filled with flowers, were led into the room by Arabs in pink and lavender silk costumes. The picture procession made the tour of the room. The live monkey, which mounted one of the camels, looked to the right and left, grinning and enjoying the sensation he was making, but sadly neglecting his duty of distributing the flowers to the ladies, leaving that to the descendants of his race, according to Darwin. At midnight a most sumptuous supper was served, the long table forming three sides of a square and loaded with every imaginable viand and delicacy, the center and end pieces towering up several feet, and, above all, in the middle was a huge crescent and star, exquisitely wrought in roses and violets and geraniums.

Old London Ceremony.

The last day of each October the city solicitor of London, with an assistant, attends upon the queen's remembrancer, when, by proclamation, "the tenants and occupiers of a piece of waste ground called the Moors, in the county of Salop," are commanded to "come forth and do your service, upon pain and peril that shall fall thereon."

The solicitor chops in halves two agots, one with a hatchet and the other with a billhook. Afterwards comes the summons to the tenants, etc., of "a certain tenement with a forge," in the Strand, and the payment of six horse-shoes, with sixty-one shoe nails, by the solicitor. This forge has long ceased to be, and the same shoes and nails are used year after year, the shoes being at least two centuries old.—New York Triangler.

The Baby's Bands.

When the flannel bands are no longer worn, the babe should have a knitted band of saxony wool. These are knitted round and fully two inches in length. They are seamed two and two for elasticity and have plain knitted straps one and one-eighth inches wide over the shoulders, and a strap one and a half inches wide and two inches long sewed to the centre of the front at the bottom. The diaper is pinned to this strap, thus insuring a thickness of wool over the baby's stomach and bowels all of the time. Twenty-five cents' worth of saxony wool will knit two bands. One hundred and fifty stitches cast on will make the bands large enough to last an ordinary child until it is a year old.

The board of education will meet this evening and open the bids for the erection of the new school building.

Attorney William Dellesternier of Elmwood came over last evening to learn the result of the election and attend to some business matters.

A young man in the First ward had never before enjoyed the glorious privilege of voting signed his name to the ballot. It is supposed that he did this for the purpose of making his ballot stronger.

Sam Stotler, a farmer residing south of town, became overloaded with corn juice last evening and was arrested by Marshal Slater. This morning he appeared before Police Judge Archer and was fined $1 and costs.

Thomas W. Shryock of Louisville, C. E. Wescott and James Robertson are busy today canvassing the vote of the county at the recent election, so that the official count can be given tomorrow. The unofficial count, which is not far from correct, appears in THE NEWS today.

Joseph Goldsmith, deputy supreme regent of the Imperial Mystic Legion, who has been working in the interest of the local castle of the order, departed this morning for Arlington, at which place a castle will be established. W. B. Raymond, another deputy, who was here last evening, went with him. Mr. Goldsmith will return Saturday and continue his work.

George Weidmann, who drives Wurl & Coffey's delivery wagon, left his team standing at the rear of Weckbach & Co.'s store in charge of a boy last evening while he went into the store on business, and when he came out the team was gone. A gunshot frightened them and they went dashing up the alley, until the rear of Wescott's store was reached, where a telephone pole was struck and they were stopped. The wagon and harness were badly broken, but no other damage resulted.

The boys are having much sport with Deputy Sheriff McBride on account of his having lost his vote Tuesday. John went down to Nehawka early Tuesday morning and worked like a Trojan for "Billy" Wheeler, leaving there for home at 4 o'clock, he stopped a short time at Murray, and left there, as he figured, in time to reach Plattsmouth before the polls closed. The home run was made with horses on the dead run, but when he arrived here the election was all over. His watch was about five minutes slow and that fact cost him his vote.

Used by British Soldiers in Africa.

Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Galishe. Under date of Nov. 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial." Snake Escapes from Its Case.

There was recently much excitement at Ashton-under-Lyne, England, through the escape of a huge boa constrictor at the Trivoli theatre. A local conjurer entered the theater in semi-darkness and the snake, which had by some means escaped from its case, bounded at him. The man at once shot out of the room, the reptile upsetting chairs, bottles, and glasses in its pursuit. Subsequently the conjurer was secured by its owner, who happened to be at hand. Its conduct is said to have been owing to the fact that its feeding had been overlooked.

SEA-GOING CANOES.

One That Could Carry 100 Passengers and Cross the Ocean.

The second largest Indian canoe in British Columbia, if not on the Pacific coast, is now hauled out on the tide-flat hill on First avenue south. It could cross the ocean in that canoe.

The owner of this canoe is in very good English. "It will hold more than a hundred people, and is the largest canoe but one of all our country." The big canoe is but one of about a score of large canoes that belong to the Fort Rupert and West Coast Indians of Vancouver Island. Fort Rupert is on the northern end of Vancouver island, and the Indians now here were eighteen days on the voyage. With a good fair wind they can go 100 miles a day, and could, therefore, accomplish the almost 1000-mile voyage in eight or ten days. However, they do not always get the fair wind. The big canoe is a new one, made this summer. It is about fifty-five feet long and seven to eight across. The Indians say there are even bigger cedar trees than the one from which the canoe was made. These Indians have been coming here ever since the first hops were planted. They always look for a sound tree for a canoe, one without any rotten parts or knot holes about it. The Indian owner hired a number of other Indians, and made the canoe where the tree fell, then skidded it into the water. He considers it worth $300 or $400. War canoes of these northern Indians used to create a great deal of terror in the minds of the first settlers. There are old gray-haired patriachs in the camp today who doubtless have in the past taken part in many a raid on the Sound Indians, and possibly in some of the few attacks made on the early settlers.—Seattle Times.

Not a Surprise.

It will not be a surprise to any who are at all familiar with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to know that people everywhere take pleasure in relating their experience in the use of that splendid medicine, and in telling of the benefit they have received from it, of bad colds it has cured, of threatened attacks of pneumonia it has averted and of the children it has saved from attacks of croup and whooping cough. It is a grand, good medicine. For sale by all druggists.

The Cinematograph.

The coming cinematograph entertainment at the opera house commencing Monday, Nov. 13, is well worth a visit. A cinematograph is about the same thing as a vitaseope, reproducing actions by thousands of instantaneous photographs.

The cinematograph is a French machine, made by Lumiere of Paris, and very expensive, also very heavy. The machine is much larger than those in common use. The films are of special size—that which makes the picture rim 2x14 inches in size, and those used in the small machines 2x11 inches, about as big as an ordinary kodak picture; four sets of lenses are used, the result is that the picture is very bright, clear and distinct. The "Battle" films are as natural as if the spectators were seeing the real thing. The war scenes are simply astonishing. It is a performance that all should see. Prices, 10c, 20c and 30c, on sale at usual place Friday.

If you have sore throat, soreness across the back or side, or your lungs feel sore or tender, or you are threatened with diphtheria or pneumonia, apply Ballard's Snow Liniment externally, and use Ballard's Horehound Syrup. F. G. Fricke & Co.

Tides in Wells.

A well-known professor of hydrostatics says: "It is a simple, sober fact, which I have tested myself, that in all the deeper artesian bores there is a distinct tide, corresponding exactly with the ocean tides, except that the process is reversed, and causing the water to vary very greatly in height in the bore at flood and ebb. The time of greatest flow in an artesian well corresponds with full ebb in the ocean nearest. This is how I account for the phenomenon. When the moon is at its height the moon is exerting its pull not only on the sea but on the land. This naturally tends to take the pressure off the sand well which lies at 100 to 2,000 feet below the surface, and at the bottom of which the water lies. Thus the pressure on the water is lessened and the flow slackens. On the other hand, at low tide in the ocean the moon's pull is relaxed and the earth settles back, and by producing greater pressure on the water-bearing strata down below squeezes the water up exactly as you might squeeze a sponge."

The Thrifty Yankee.

The Kennebec Journal tells of a man who catches seals, out of the noses and gets the $1 bounty offered by the state of Maine, after which he collects the tails and hies himself to Massachusetts, where he collects the bounty offered for the tail of every seal caught in Massachusetts waters. Then he returns to the pine tree state to work the skin into gloves, hats, pocketbooks, etc.

Braids of sweet grass made the full length of the grass are excellent for linen closets. The spicy sweetness is lasting and has a refreshing odor equal to that of lavender. It can be bought or visitors to Canada in summer can pick it for themselves, which is most satisfactory. A braid of sweet grass makes a pretty and pleasant remembrance for friends at home.

The Sale of a Great Railroad Property.

A sensation has been created in railroad circles by the purchase of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for $10,000,000 cash by a syndicate composed of Philip D. Armour, Marshall Field and Norman B. Ream. The association with the scheme of the name of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, gave currency to the rumor that under his new management the Baltimore and Ohio road was to become part of a new transcontinental system, having the Great Northern for its Pacific wing. Despite the denial of such an intention by Mr. Hill, the rumor gained popular strength. The city of Baltimore and the Johns Hopkins university have large financial interests in the Baltimore and Ohio road, and would sustain severe losses if the new owners failed to protect them.
