FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1900.

It LOOKS as though it would be Bryan and Caldwell for president and vice president on the democratic ticket next fall.

MARCH came in like a lamb, but it is a safe bet that she will not behave like that timid animal during the next thirty days—not all the time.

CANADIAN towns are rejoicing on account of the surrender of General Crompton. Flags are floating from government and other buildings.

ASHLAND is to vote April 3 on a proposition to issue bonds to the amount of $4,000 for the purpose of improving its waterworks system.

It is said that nine of the twenty-six democrats in the senate are avowed expansionists, notwithstanding the efforts of the party leaders to the contrary.

REPORTS from Washington show that Cuba, under American administration, has not only been self-supporting, but had to her credit at the close of the year a surplus of $2,260,000. What's the matter with Cuba?

CONGRESSMAN DOLLIVER says he likes the democratic party better in its habitual attitude of laboring the policy of its adversary, rather than to see it clothed in authority, hopelessly mixed up in a policy of its own.

MR. BRYAN had Congressman Robinson remind the republican members of the house that the administration had not done as he had suggested it should do in the Philippine matter. It must have almost paralyzed them.

THE NEWS suggests that the young republicans of Plattsmouth organize. The campaign is to open early this year and Plattsmouth does not want to be found napping. The young men are beginning to organize all over the state.

DOES any one know where Aguinaldo is? Very little has been heard for several weeks as to his whereabouts. It is rumored that he has been in Havana. Someone ought to take interest enough in the statesman to look him up. He may be in trouble.

THE Beatrice Express says that Mr. Bryan fixed the time and the place for the democratic convention, and he will doubtless, in due time, name the man who will fill the second place on his ticket. Still, no democratic editor has yet referred to him as "Boss Bryan."

THE amount of money in circulation per capita is $25.98—the highest it has been in the history of the country. Where is that false prophet that said to the people in 1896 that if McKinley were elected and the gold standard adopted there would be a mighty famine (money) in the land?

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN of the Philippine commission says the newspapers have not given publicity to the fact that we are to give the Filipinos the very government they ask. The government is now printing 15,000 copies of the report that the people may be informed as to the kind of government they are to have.

WILLIAM HUMPHREY of Ashland paid $5,100 for a fine Hereford bull at public auction at the sale at Kansas Wednesday. This is said to be the highest price ever paid for a Hereford at public auction, although much more has been paid at private sales. W. N. Rogers of McCook purchased the fine cow Horatio for $600. Fifty animals were sold at an average of $454.

CONGRESSMAN DOLLIVER of Iowa made a speech yesterday that every one should read. Many of his expressions will be used by political speakers next fall. He denounced in scathing terms those who had sought to turn everything, good or bad, to political account; had gone in partnership with the diseases in the army camps and had tried to pick up votes at every soldier's funeral.

"THERE are two ideas of the national duty in this emergency," says Congressman Dolliver. "One is that the nation should take care of itself and leave the world alone. That is a narrow view of our national duty. The other view of the national life, an ideal born in the workman of Nazareth, is that no nation lives to itself alone, but that every real nation, like ours, wear itself out in the service of mankind."

THE Porto Rican tariff bill passed the house yesterday by a vote of 172 to 161. Republicans consider its passage a great victory. Six sick members were carried to the hall to vote—some attended by physicians. Brownlow of Tennessee was one of them and when it was urged that his absence might mean the defeat of the bill, said: "I would rather lose my life than see that bill defeated." He sat bundled up near the entrance until his vote was recorded, then withdrew.

A PLAN TO AMALGAMATE.

One of the most important movements in the history of the Mormon church is being discussed by the leaders of the church at Salt Lake City, Utah, and the faction that remained in Missouri when Brigham Young and his followers went to Utah. These factions are known as the Josephites, whose present headquarters are at Lamoni, Ia., and the Hendrickites, who live at Independence, Mo. The membership of the Josephite branch is 30,000, but the Hendrickites have dwindled to about 140. The only point of difference between the doctrines of these factions and those of the Utah Mormons is on the question of polygamy and, as the Utah church has officially suspended this practice, there is now no obstacle to the amalgamation of all the branches. According to the Book of Mormon, Independence, Mo., is the site of the Garden of Eden, and, according to the Mormon prophecy, the saints will ultimately be gathered there, erect a magnificent temple and build up the latter day Zion.

Prior to the split in the church and before the exodus to Utah, Independence was the dwelling place of all the Mormons and a tract of ground was purchased for the temple site. When Brigham Young and his followers went west, the Josephites and Hendrickites became involved in litigation over the title to this temple site, and the case was decided by the United States circuit court of appeals in favor of the Hendrickites. The Utah Mormons furnished the funds to the Hendrickites to carry on the litigation and if the present plan of amalgamation is successful, this site will be turned over to the Utah church and a fine temple is erected there, preparatory to the final gathering of all the saints of the earth at that point. Two representatives of the Hendrickites, Elders Cole and Frisby, of Independence, are now in Utah. They have authority from the Josephites to speak for that branch, and their propositions have been discussed by the twelve apostles, but no definite conclusion has been reached.

PUERTO RICANS have made a good record as soldiers, hence the secretary of war has ordered that another battalion of the natives be enlisted to take the place of the United States regular cavalry, which will be brought back. Horses for mounting the men will be purchased in the island, as the American animals do not become acclimated readily.

SECRETARY ROOT leaves for Cuba Friday, where he goes to make a personal examination of the political and industrial conditions. They are soon to hold their first election there, and many important questions are coming up for settlement.

INFORMATION AND OPINION.

There are now about 3,500 deer belonging to the government in Alaska, which are leased out among the natives near the missionary stations to be taken care of, under the supervision of government agents. The people who take care of them are allowed to keep the increase, which is about 50 per cent a year.

When the Boers were winning every day, Beatrice was full of Boer sympathizers, who abused the British with great vehemence; now that the British are winning they have sympathizers on every block. It is a curious thing that some of the folks who were sympathizing with the Boers are doing the same act for the British. Sympathy is warm goods.—Beatrice Express.

In Virginia a company has been formed for the manufacture of an artificial marble, which closely resembles the genuine and can readily be carved, the ingredients being milk of lime, glycerine, silicate of soda, soap, salt and marcellon root, together with a cement which thickens and combines the components.

An improved folding tobacco pipe has the bowl flattened at the sides to fit in the pocket, with a hole drilled through one side in which the stem is inserted, the latter being bent at an angle and provided with a string which allows it to be lowered and folded on the side of the bowl when not in use.

A folding hat has been patented by a Scotch woman, a single sheet of stiff paper or other material being folded into transverse plaits, with a crease through the center at right angles with the plaits, which allows one portion to bend out and form the brim after the sheet is bent into a tube.

Wash-a-kie, late chief of the eastern Shoshones, has been laid at rest. His dying request was carried out and he was buried like a white man. The funeral, which was one of the largest ever held in Wyoming, was held at Ft. Washkie Friday afternoon. The old chief was buried with military honors.

A gold and copper company, at the head of which is Colonel W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), will incorporate in Wyoming in a few days. A short time ago two shafts were sunk to a depth of sixty feet in a property owned by Colonel Cody and situated about forty miles from Cody City, and paying ore was struck. The company will have a capital stock of $1,000,000. With Cody are associated J. M. Schowder, John T. Beck, George Chamberlain, John Davis, E. Marks, G. Whittleliff and Edward Gillette, all of Wyoming.

MRS. GREUSEL TESTIFIES.

Tells the Court How Her Former Husband, Allessby, Mistreated Her.

Mrs. E. S. Greusel was called to the witness stand in Judge Holmes' court at Lincoln yesterday afternoon to give her side of the case wherein E. W. Allessby, her former husband, seeks to gain possession of her five-year-old child. The Lincoln News contains the following report of the trial:

"A sad-faced woman, garbed in black, with a round, turban-like hat, from which depended a long, black veil, occupied the witness stand for nearly two hours in Judge Holmes' court this morning. She is the widow of E. S. Greusel, former master mechanic of the Havelock shops, who put a bullet in his brain some months ago. She was also at one time the wife of E. W. Allessby, an employe of the sanitarium. Allessby has brought her back into court in an action in which he seeks to get possession of their boy, five years old, and she told the judge all her troubles this morning.

"She said they were married in Milwaukee in 1894, and for over a year, until after their baby was born, their married life was very happy. After that he became a changed man, was cruel in his language to her, accused her of infidelity, and called her vile names. Once when he had called her a name impugning her chastity, she put her arms about his neck and asked him in imploring terms if he knew what he was doing. He pushed her away and repeated the epithet, with additions. He had denied the parenthood of their child at one time, and accused her of being intimate with a man named Grassman, engineer at the sanitarium, where both worked.

"On one occasion, she said, he had written a note and signed Grassman's name to it, and pushed it under her door. It asked her why she did not keep her appointment and requested another. When her husband returned she showed it to him and told him she wanted him to go with her before the managers of the institution and face Grassman. Then he admitted he had written it, and tore it up. On another occasion he had her send for Grassman to come to their rooms. He hung a sheet across one corner of the room and hid behind it. He had her ask Grassman when he appeared what he meant by saving slighting things about her. He replied that he had not, and she told him that her husband suspected them of undue intimacy. Grassman jumped up and exclaimed: "My God, what if he came now and found me here?"

"He would probably kill you," she replied. "Grassman made for the door, and continued the conversation with the door open. The questions asked on cross-examination indicated a denial by Allessby that any such incidents had happened.

"Continuing, Mrs. Greusel said that she was met at the door on her return from work by cruel accusations, that he had failed to properly support her, finally compelling her to pay half of their grocery bill, after she had been clothing herself and the boy. She said she had never refused to allow him to see the boy since their divorce, that he never made personal application to her.

"She made a very good witness. On cross-examination she admitted frankly matters that told against her, and gave the appearance of one who wanted the whole truth to come out. She said the boy had been well clothed and taken good care of.

"What presents has Mr. Allessby made the child since your separation?" asked her attorney.

"None," was the reply. "What was it he sent him Christmas?" "He did not send him any."

"What! Not even a Christmas present?" asked her attorney with astonishment.

"No," she replied, "although the little fellow looked for it and was much disappointed."

"On cross-examination she said that she had never complained because their house had not been as well furnished as she thought he could afford and that all would have been well had he not persisted in staying out late at night. She admitted that she had got many quarrels during the last three years, and that she had accused him of infidelity also.

"Judge Holmes asked her a number of searching questions. She protested that she had always been true to him, that she would have been content to live with him had he been kind to her. She said that letters had come to her telling her of her husband's attentions to other women, but she had paid no attention to them until she overheard a conversation between her husband and a woman, in which an appointment was made. Then she followed him and became convinced. Even after this she lived with him for two years, hoping that he might turn again to her. She suppressed these facts in her divorce petition for the child's sake and to avoid the disgrace. Then she broke down and sobbed. At the conclusion of the hearing she broke down again and sobbed bitterly. "Her mother and several neighbors in Havelock testified that the child had been properly treated and was as well dressed and cared for as other children of his age."

"Yesterday afternoon Allessby was on the stand. He did not consider her parents had taken proper care of the child, that they had forbidden him to see it, had taught it Norwegian instead of English and had kept it ragged and dirty. He said he was able and willing to pay for its keep and support, and gave as his reason for not paying the

Two Pocket-Books Lost and Found in a Rather Strange Way.

Two young farmers who reside a couple of miles west of Plattsmouth were standing near the hallway of the Fitzgerald building yesterday afternoon when a NEWS reporter came along. They signaled him to halt and volunteered to give him a "good thing" for the paper providing no names were mentioned. This is the substance of their story:

One of the young men was coming to town with a load of stovewood last Saturday morning and he had just crossed the Missouri Pacific bridge on the Weeping Water road, when one of the hind wheels suddenly came off and he was compelled to stop for repairs. While he was "sizing up" the situation his gaze fell upon a leather case, which appeared to be a ladies' pocket book, lying under the loose wheel. Upon examination he found it contained $40—four $10 bills. He decided to keep the matter a secret until he reached home. In due time another farmer—on his way to Plattsmouth—came along and assisted him to re-place the wheel. While he was in one of the local stores making some purchases, he made the startling discovery that he had lost his own pocket book, containing about $30 in cash and some receipts which he valued very highly. His visions of the Klondike and rich gold fields vanished very precariously, but he was consoled to some extent by remembering the $10—found under such singular circumstances.

The teachers of Nehawka attended the teachers' meeting at Weeping Water Saturday.

Rev. Mellinger of the Christian church preached on "In His Steps" last Sunday evening.

The W. C. T. U. will have an entertainment Friday evening, March 2, at Mrs. Isaac Pollard's.

T. G. Hymer and James E. Banning went to the show at Nebraska City Thursday night, February 22.

Mrs. Prattle and children went to Rapahoe, Gosper county, last Saturday morning. Miss Otis Reynolds accompanying her as far as Lincoln.

Wants Possession of His Son. Judge Holmes was engaged this afternoon in hearing the case in which Edgar Allessby seeks to regain possession and custody of his five-year-old boy, Floyd, says the Lincoln News. The boy is now with Mrs. Agnes Greusel, his mother, formerly Mrs. Allessby.

It appears that when Mrs. Allessby secured a divorce a few months ago, she was given the custody of the child. Allessby bases his present demands on the ground that she is not a fit person to have charge of the boy. In verification of this he makes charges as to her licentiousness from Omaha to testify that they caught Mrs. Allessby, after she had secured a divorce, in a room at night in an Omaha hotel, with E. S. Greusel, whom she married the next day.

The testimony is of a particularly sensational character, as it goes into the history of the Omaha incidents to prove the allegation of unfitness. Mr. Allessby was on the stand a good share of the afternoon. He said his wife placed the child with his grandparents, who, he thought, treated it rather shabbily. They are Norwegians and teach it that language to the exclusion of English. He said he had been forbidden to see the child. He had been ordered to pay $10 a month for its maintenance, but had paid this two months only. Attempts to introduce evidence as to why he had not paid this money longer when he said he was willing to pay it were gotten in only by implication. He started to tell the court that he had been forbidden to see the child and hence did not pay, but this was not gone into very fully.

In cross examination, Attorney C. O. Whedon asked if it was not true that the grandparents of the child had told him he had been talking in a scurrilous manner about them and for that reason they did not want him to come around again. He said they had made some charge but he denied ever talking about them in that way.

Another testimony was given to show that Mrs. Greusel was not a fit person to trust with the custody of the child. The young lady who had cared for it when Mr. and Mrs. Allessby were both employed at the sanitarium, was called to the stand. She said the child was then very dirty and was allowed to go about ragged and was on certain times, she mentioned, put to bed in a dirty condition by the mother simply pulling off its shoes. One time the mother left the child in the floor all night. Testimony was also introduced to show that the defendant used improper language to a witness in the court room when the case was called before. It was asserted that she called three ladies who are on the opposite side an offensive name.

The counsel for the defense endeavored to show that Mr. Allessby was paying attention to another woman at the present time, but when the question was asked it was denied. This is considered preliminary to evidence the defense expects to put in showing that the plaintiff is unfit to take the child. The case will be continued today.

RAILROAD NOTES AND PERSONALS.

A bill for a settlement and adjustment between the Sioux City & Pacific railroad and the government is now pending in congress, and its passage may clear up the ownership of that much disputed piece of property. The road has been under the management of the Northwestern for a number of years. As it stands now the road is leased to the Northwestern, and its indebtedness to the government, as shown on the books after credits are deducted, is in excess of $4,000,000. It is seventy-six miles in length from Missouri Valley to Sioux City, and is now under the operative management of the Elkhorn. It was built in the early '60s, when construction in this part of the country cost fabulous amounts, and was bond-aid by the government.

It is reported that the Missouri Pacific officials are making extensive preparations to improve the condition of its line from Atchison north in the spring.

The through Pullman sleeper, from Kansas City to St. Paul, which formerly ran on the opposite side of the river, now comes through Plattsmouth on No. 11 in the evening, going north, and going south on No. 20 in the morning.

The Burlington is equipping its passenger locomotives with the new electric headlight. Several of the engines running between Burlington and Chicago now have the electric headlights, and within the next few weeks others will be equipped with them. The electric headlight can be seen a distance of seven miles on a straight track. The electricity is manufactured by a dynamo between the stack and headlight for the cab and tender. The miniature electric light plant on each engine is examined by an electrician at the end of each run. The incandescent lights which are provided for the cab and tender are sufficiently shaded so as not to blind the engineer and fireman.

If your child is cross and peevish, it is no doubt troubled with worms. White's Cream Vermifuge will remove the worms, and its tonic effect restores its natural cheerfulness. Price 25 cents. F. G. Fricke & Co.

A Speedy Cure. Dan Kiser of Eight Mile Grove will be in Mysard every Wednesday, beginning February 21, and can cure you of rheumatism in one minute. He can also cure aches and pains of thirty years' standing, and will give treatment for a speedy cure of catarrh, neuralgia, pleurisy, consumption, etc. Office hours, 10 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 4 p. m.

An Editor Finds a Sure Cure For Rheumatism. A. R. DeFlaun, editor of the Journal, Doylestown, O., suffered for a number of years from rheumatism in his right shoulder and side. He says: "My right arm at times was entirely useless. I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and was surprised to receive relief almost immediately. The Pain Balm has been a constant companion of mine ever since and it never fails." For sale by all druggists.

Foul-Smelling Catarrh.

Catarrh is one of the most obstinate diseases, and hence the most difficult to get rid of.

There is but one way to cure it. The disease is in the blood, and all the sprays, washes and inhalant mixtures in the world can do no good. The only effect whatever upon it, Swift's Specific cures Catarrh permanently, for it is the only remedy which can reach the disease and force it from the blood. Mr. B. P. McAllister, of Harrodsburg, Ky., had Catarrh for years. He writes: "I could see no improvement whatever, and I was constantly treated with sprays and washes, and different inhalant remedies. In fact, I could feel that each winter I was worse than the year previous." "Finally it was brought to my notice that a certain 'Foul-Smelling Catarrh' medicine, which I saw it was unreasonable to expect to be cured by remedies which only reached the surface. I got a concrete case of 'Foul-Smelling Catarrh', and after a few bottles were used, I noticed a perceptible improvement. Continuing the remedy, the disease was forced out of my system, and a complete cure was the result. I advise all who have this 'Foul-Smelling Catarrh', to try Swift's Specific, and be cured, and after thinking it over I thought I would reach the surface.
