Todd O'Brien Whisks Out a Kuife to Defend Himself, With the Result That Andrew Olsen Receives a Deep Gash in His Right Breast-Has a Narrow Escape for His Life.

Todd O'Brien, the fifteen-year-old son of Section Foreman Dan O'Brien, was playing ball last evening with a crowd of boys on Third street, between Main and Pearl. During the game a quarrel ensued between young O'Brien and a boy named Andrew Olsen, with the result that the latter was stabbed in the right breast with a knife-a deep wound being inflicted between the fourth and fifth ribs. The wound bled profusely and the boy was quickly taken to his home. Dr. T. P. Livingston arrived soon after. Fortunately, as far as could be ascertained upon examination, the knife did not penetrate any vital parts, and, while the unfortunate boy is resting easy today, the physician cannot tell what may develop as a result of the wound.

Young O'Brien was placed in jail where he remained over night and, upon being taken before Judge Archer this morning, entered a plea of not guilty. The case will be tried at 9 o'clock next Tuesday morning-he being charged only with disturbing the one of the neatest rigs in town. peace by fighting. It was thought best to hold him on this charge, and if young Olsen's wound proves fatal a more serious charge will be lodged to C. W. Sherman, over Journal office. against O'Brien.

There are several stories advanced as to the cause of the trouble. One is to the effect that O'Brien abused Olsen's younger brother by taking his hat off and throwing it away, and when Andrew came to the latter's assistance O'Brien flashed a knife and attacked him, with the result above stated.

Others claim the Olsen boys imposed upon young O'Brien, he being smaller than either of them, and, becoming tired of the insults, he proceeded to defend himself by drawing a knife. In an attempt to get the knife away from the boy, it is also claimed Olsen grabbed the weapon in such a way that it is possible he inflicted the wound

The O'Brien boy claims he acted in self-defense. His father went on his bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance before Judge Archer next Tuesday morning.

The Frish girl has been staying with Mrs. Cateyson, and when the officer went after her she denied having taken the money, but finally her guilty conscience asserted itself, and, excusing herself for a few moments, she went down to a shed in the yard and soon returned with 50 cents, claiming this was all she had taken. The officer would not give this story credence, however, and after considerable argument she produced $1.65 more, which she had concealed about her clothes.

A warrant has been sworn out charging her with petit larceny, and she will probably have a hearing tomor-

The girl seems to have a natural weakness for taking articles which do not belong to her. On the way to jail she confessed having taken a pair of shoes belonging to Mrs. Eli Jones, but has promised to return the same.
