Spent Much for Embroidery
 Napoleon I. Had Costly Coronation Robe and Throne.
 An old Parisian firm which deals in embroideries and supplied artistic needlework to the court of Louis XVII. is still in possession of the accounts of former centuries, and an inspection of these books reveals some interesting facts. Napoleon I. was economical as compared with the Empress Josephine, but his bills were considerable. The embroidery on his coronation robe cost 10,500 francs, and an embroidered coat cost 3,500. This coat became too small for him after he had worn it a year, and he ordered pieces of cloth to be inserted at the seams and covered with embroidery.
 The bill for the first Napoleon's throne amounted to 53,970 francs. The outer drapery of purple velvet trimmed with gold lace cost 10,200 francs. The red velvet panels were strewn with embroidered golden bees at five francs apiece. The inner drapery of blue satin, with gold lace, was 9,600 francs, and the gold embroidered stripes for the inner trimming cost 8,500 francs. The embroidery on the blue velvet cushion cost 3,020 francs, and the foot cushion 1,200. In addition there were 1,050 bees embroidered on the panels of the canopy at a cost of 5,250 francs.

Ending the Trouble.
 "I thought you were engaged?"
 "Well, I was—for a while."
 "Did she throw you over?"
 "Oh, no, I found out she had an artificial arm—so I broke it off."

Plattsmouth to Fort Crook.
 "Our company would not look with disfavor on a line from Fort Crook to Plattsmouth if the capitalists of Plattsmouth wish to build the line," said G. W. Wattles, president of the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company and also of the Omaha & Southern Interurban company.
 A committee of the leading citizens of Plattsmouth was appointed a week ago to call on Mr. Wattles to see if something could be done toward building the line. Mr. Wattles says this committee has not been to see him, but that while the interurban company is not in a position to extend its line this year, he will gladly hear any proposition the committee has to make.—Omaha Bee.
