

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vienna, W. Va.—"I feel that I owe the last ten years of my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven years ago I was a walking shadow. I had been under the doctor's care but got no relief. My husband persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like a charm. It relieved all my pains and misery. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. EMMA WHEATON, Vienna, W. Va.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Western Canada the Pennant Winner

"The Last Best West"

The government of Canada now gives to every actual settler 160 acres of wheat-growing land free and an additional 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. The 300,000 contented American settlers making their homes in Western Canada is the best evidence of the superiority of that country. They are becoming rich, growing from 25 to 50 bushels wheat to the acre; 60 to 110 bushels oats and 45 to 60 bushels barley, besides having splendid herds of cattle raised on the prairie grass. Dairying is an important industry.

The crop of 1908 will keep Western Canada in the lead. The world will soon look to it as its food-producer.

"The thing which most impressed us was the magnitude of the country that is available for agricultural purposes."—National Editorial Correspondence, 1908.

I'VE BEEN THINKING About Spending Wives

By Charles Battell Loomis

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

The way wives spend money is something shocking. There isn't a single literary visitor to our shores, be he from England or France or Germany who does not notice it.

Prof. Sparrowkins was so convinced of it after reading an article on the subject that when his wife signified her intention of going to the city to buy some necessary household articles, he, having a day off, decided to go along with her, in order to act as a balance wheel.

They have a deposit account in the department store at which they deal, and before starting out Mrs. Sparrowkins told her husband that there was $40 on deposit.

"And how much do you intend to spend?"

"Well, there's the rug that we must have unless you want visitors to continue to stub their toes in the old rag that we have now in the parlor."

"Yes, yes, that's all right. Get a new rug. Twenty-five dollars?"

"I saw a very decent one for fifteen—domestic," said Mrs. Sparrowkins.

"Ah; that's what I like. I'm glad to see that you are trying to economize. A $15 one will do perfectly well because our friends know we're not millionaires. No one expects a college rowline, absent-mindedly, turning over the leaves of one of the volumes. "Look at the print. And illustrated, too. I believe, my dear, as long as rugs are so much cheaper than I thought that I will treat myself to this set. Great help in my lecture work, you know. . . . Yes, please, charge it to Prof. Titus Andronicus Sparrowkins. No. 4242 is the deposit number."

Here the professor rubbed his hands in great delight and walked a few steps further, where he saw a "hurt" set of Shakespeare for $10.

"My dear, you have always wanted a handy volume Shakespeare for use in your club papers. Don't you think we'd better take this one?"

"But we have Shakespeare."

"Yes, I know, but it's so cumbersome in one volume. We can send the old one to brother Marcus Aurelius and—"

"Dear, I see that the table linen is on this floor. Suppose we go there now and get the rug afterward."

Prof. Sparrowkins deprecated his wife's impatience at this point. "We have all the afternoon, my dear, and I don't often come out with you. Which would you rather have—Shakespeare, or five of the latest novels?"

"Oh, Shakespeare, of course," said Mrs. Sparrowkins, keenly aware that she was president of the Bloomingdale Society for Mental Improvement for Married Women, and so the Shakespeare set was added to the list of things to be charged to deposit account 4242.

They now started for the napsery department, but on the way they passed through the cutlery department and that reminded Prof. Sparrowkins that he needed a new razor.

"A cheap one will do," said he to the clerk; "one about a dollar, with a rounded edge."

"The rounded edges don't come in cheap styles," said the wide-awake clerk. "Now here is a 'triple-brand' Sheffield steel one, warranted for five years, a strip with each razor, that was four dollars, but they have been professor to be a millionaire. Fifteen dollars. And what else?"

"Yes, Please Charge It."

"Well, our tablecloths are all holes."

"Why can't we do without tablecloths altogether?"

"Titus Sparrowkins, what would your mother have said to such a thing as that? Tablecloths are what you pay for your position in the world. We could eat on bare boards, but you'd be the last one to do it if it really came to the scratch. Now we can get passable ones for five dollars apiece, and I need three."

Sparrowkins was shocked at that and at first seemed to think that a couple of dollars apiece would be a fair price, but he finally remembered that the one he finally had given to the president's wife had cost $20.

"What else are you getting?"

"I absolutely need a walking skirt. May I have it?"

"May you? Of course. Get two."

"No, dear, one will be sufficient. For ten dollars I can get one that will last."

"Well, that is certainly cheap," said Sparrowkins. "How much is a shirt-waist, by the way?"

"Five dollars will get a very pretty one."

Sparrowkins whistled. "Fifteen dollars for a whole suit, and I pay twenty-five or thirty! Perhaps I was wrong in thinking you extravagant, but I think I'll go along. You might be tempted to get other things, and there's no telling when I can make another deposit. We're likely to have a ten per cent. cut in our salaries because old Sizer didn't leave us anything after all. Left it all to the Baptist college."

They were soon in town, and on their way to the elevators that lie just beyond the book department.

"Um," said Prof. Sparrowkins; "wouldn't this be a good time to get a few books for Christmas presents for next year? They come cheaper now."

Mrs. Sparrowkins thought that this was looking a long way ahead.

"Ah, my dear, there is nothing like being forehand. Tut, tut, tut! Look at that! Gibbon's 'Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire' for $15! Ah, that is a bargain! I've always wanted that."

Mrs. Sparrowkins suggested somewhat irrelevantly that the rug were upstairs.

"Yes, dear, I know," said Prof. Spar-rowkins, absent-mindedly, turning over the leaves of one of the volumes.

marked down to three just to advertise them, and we have just two left. A cheap razor wears out. A good razor never shows any wear whatever. If you don't like this you can return it, but a cheap razor is not guaranteed and you may be out your dollar if you get one."

Prof. Sparrowkins was so much impressed by these words that he immediately brought the razor and was only prevented from picking up the other one for "Brother Marcus Aurelius" because his wife had hastily gone after the tablecloths.

But on his way after her he passed the sectional book case counter and the need of three sections immediately became so crying that he hurried after his wife to get the transfer card, and became the proud owner of three sections for less than ten dollars, Mrs. Sparrowkins looking on dubiously.

When these had been charged up, "Let's go home," said she. "I am so glad you've had a real small-boy-in-a-knife-store afternoon."

"Yes, but the tablecloths!"

For answer Mrs. Sparrowkins added up the cost of the books, the razor and the book cases and it came to $37.

"I think, dear, that I can patch up the rug and darn the tablecloths, and perhaps a walking skirt won't be necessary now that the walking is so sloppy. I'll use the trolleys more."

And Prof. Sparrowkins went home quite certain that his wife was not as extravagant as some women.

When Wandlust Awakes.

"You know the sensation that is called in German wandlust, I suppose?" he asked. "At least if you don't know it you must have heard the phrase. It's too common. Well, it is queer what things will stir up in a man's mind that desire to tramp. For instance, a transatlantic steamer with all flags up and smoke pouring out of the funnel doesn't make me wish for a trip abroad, but let me see an old tramp unloading at a dock somewhere, and the noise of the whistles and the cries of the workmen awaken that restless feeling."

"Then, again, I know another man who gets to hobo feeling only when he smells soft coal smoke. If he's on a freight boat crossing the river or in a train going to some place like Yonkers or Peekskill it's all one to him. Surely the smell of the smoke makes him want to wander."

WESTERN CANADA'S SPLENDID CROP YIELD FOR 1908.

AMERICANS PROFITED LARGELY AND SEND BACK SATISFACTORY REPORTS.

The census branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada, has completed its returns of the showing of Western Canada's grain yield for 1908, and the reports make very interesting reading. In the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which comprise what may be known as Central Canada, there was a total wheat yield of about 107,000,000 bushels, worth to the farmer about $85,000,000; in addition to this the oat, barley and flax crops were worth another $25,000,000. Letters have been received from many of the settlers from the United States. From those, that of Rev. Oscar L. King has been selected. He lives in the vicinity of Edmonton, Alberta, and what he says will be of interest to those who contemplate moving to Central Canada. Every line of the letter is interesting. Those who wish for the particulars as to how to secure homesteads and pre-emptions should write any Canadian Government agent. Mr. King says:

"Mr. M. V. McInnes, Detroit, Michigan: I am well satisfied with Alberta. This country offers excellent opportunities for anyone to make a good home for himself and family if he is willing to put up with a few hard knocks for the first two or three years. But it is worth a few hard knocks to get a 160-acre farm of rich, productive land with no mortgage on it. This province is well fitted for grain, stock raising and dairying. We have found the climate generally healthful, more healthful than Michigan, and although the thermometer sometimes drops to 40 degrees below zero in winter, yet we do not seem to feel that temperature any more than we did 5 or 10 degrees below zero in Michigan. We like the winters."

"The Government takes great interest in the education of the people and quickly aids the settlers in establishing schools where they are called for. The schools, though graded differently than those in the States, are efficient and advancing. Our great drawback has been the limited and inadequate railway facilities, but new roads are being rapidly built and many more are projected through various parts of the province. The new policy of the Alberta government to construct a great many branch lines throughout the province will greatly help all parts of the country. If those new settlers who have to go back a considerable distance from existing railroads and towns to find free homesteads will but locate along the line of a projected railroad they will in two or three years be near both town and railroad. When I first came to this country three and a half years ago the homestead I took was 75 miles from a railroad town; now there is a railroad 25 miles north, another 25 miles south, and a third is being built through my neighborhood."

"I think the prairie country or country that is partly prairie offers much better opportunities than the hilly portions."

SALZER'S GREAT BEARDLESS BARLEY.

SILVER KING BARLEY BEARDLESS BARLEY Emperor William OAT

Wisconsin is famed as the best barley state in the Union. Certain it is that it produces the best yielding barley in the world.

OF 60 VARIETIES tested by the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station, Silver King Barley has the best and biggest yield. That's a record we are proud of. But it's what business men do every where.

SALZER'S BILLION DOLLAR GRASS AND TEOSINTE

William Dollar Grass covered itself with glory in 1908. It's hay crop to the United States alone is estimated at $10,000,000.00. It will be much more for 1909. Everybody is talking about it. Everybody will sow it for 1909, as it yields 40 to 50 tons per acre. It's ready to be sown with the first crop within 40 days after planting and seldom yields less than 8 to 10 tons per acre of magnificent hay. SUGAR BEET, well, the eating test of this 100 ton green food feed.

PURE CLOVER AND TIMOTHY SEED

Salzer's 20th Century strains of clover and timothy seed stand all alone in their absolute purity. Of course they cost more than any other seed, but they are true from weeds. That's worth the difference.
