

WHY NOT HAVE STEAM DO YOUR WORK?

Steam is the only reliable method of developing power for engines for the heavy operations of agriculture, for grading, heavy hauling, plowing, pulling stumps and moving buildings. One of the most important requirements of traction and portable engines is a safe, strong boiler of suitable proportions, well made and thoroughly tested. As a measure of absolute safety the J. I. CASE boiler is first put under a cold water pressure of 200 lbs. to the square inch; second, when the completed engine comes from the erecting room it is kept under 130 lbs. steam pressure for several hours and worked on a Prony brake. Thus you are sure of having a boiler that will not leak and an engine that is not defective. A traction engine similar to cut, is rated at 20 horse power, 10x10 inch cylinder and sells at..... $1,700.00

A 79x10 inch cylinder traction engine rated at 15 horse power is a wonderful hill climber, it having climbed hills others couldn't go and is a popular one with threshermen. Price..... $1,450.00

A 71-4x10 inch cylinder traction engine is rated a 9 horse power. It is a light powerful engine suitable for driving small separators, corn shellers, feed grinders and will pull a heavier load than any other make of engine of equal weight over ordinary roads. Price..... $1,200.00

ORIGIN OF FOOLSCAP PAPER.

Emblem First Made Use Of by Cromwell to Show His Contempt for All Things Royal.

Everyone who has handled paper recognizes foolscap as a sheet 13 by 16 inches. This is used as a standard size all the world over, officially and commercially. It will therefore be interesting to know where and how this word originated. After the execution of Charles I. Cromwell and his staff, in organizing the commonwealth, made all possible effort to remove everything which had anything to do with the old monarchy. The paper in official use up to the time had as a watermark the king's crown; and, when Cromwell was asked what should be put in the place of the crown, to show his overwhelming dislike for anything concerning royalty, he directed a fool's cap to be put in place of the crown. This was done, and when Charles II. ascended the throne of England, it was at first forgotten to replace the cap by something else, and then, too late, the king was afraid to do anything to recall things dangerous to touch, and so it was neglected and the fool's cap may be seen as a watermark on nearly all British official papers.

Hot Water Cure for Insomnia.

To insure the benefit of the hot water, it must be taken off the fire the moment it boils—not just before or after—and poured at once into a cup or glass. Then it should be taken while very hot. A little practice will enable one to swallow it at little less than the boiling point, and in addition to the proper temperature, the proper time must be observed. It is most efficacious in curing indigestion and improving the general tone of the system. If taken immediately on waking in the morning, again an hour before lunch and an hour before dinner also, and to drink two glassfuls on retiring will almost positively insure sound sleep. It may require two or three days' trial before the desired result is effected, but once gained it can be held without interruption by faithfully pursuing this method.

The Only Alternative.

Mother (to her daughter)—What is your father making such a row about in the other room? Either the doctor has forbidden him to smoke or he is now asking him for your hand.—Fleegondo Blaetter.

A Consistent Deceiver.

"What are you going to do with all that counterfeit money?" asked Saphira. "My dear," answered Ananias, "I am going to pay my dues in the distinguished club that bears my name."

PECULIAR IDEAS OF AUTHORS.

Varying Conditions Under Which the World's Great Writers Did Their Best Work.

Alexander Pope, who was the literary pontiff of his time, thought best when in bed. Whenever a thought came to him he would jot it down on a scrap of paper. His servant often found bedclothes and floor covered with white bits containing aphorisms which have now become hackneyed quotations.

Victor Hugo wrote "Les Miserables" standing up, an attitude which Hawthorne also assumed when he wrote many of his romances.

One leg thrown over the arm of a chair or sitting on the arm of his secretary's chair were Napoleon's favorite positions while dictating to Bourgeois a position which he varied now and then by putting that scribble on the lead or pulling his ears.

Sir Walter Scott could write reclining on a lounge dictate to two amanuenses, who frequently had to stop writing so funny the dictated passages passed to them.

William Morris made one of his famous translations from the Greek while riding on the steam cars. Walt Whitman and Horace Traubel, original in all things, were most original in the position they took while thinking. They were wont, so Mr. Traubel says, to lie upon a pile of lumber and lie down upon their backs. In that way each found out what the other's best thoughts were.

Satanic.

"Satan is represented as rumm'g after folks wif a pitchfork," said Uncle Eben, "when de truth is dat so many folks is pullin' at his coat tails dat he ain't got time to chase nobody."—Washington Star.

Poor Fellow.

Police Justice—The man you ran down swears positively you were grinning like a fiend before the car hit him.

Trolley Motorman—I was, your honor! But you will understand when I tell you that I was a chauffeur for three years before I got my present job, and from force of habit I thought I could steer the car to avoid him, after throwing the usual scare into him.—Puck.

Not a Lady Killer.

"They tell me, Mr. Slathers," smirked the duffy young thing, "that you are quite a lady killer."

"They do me an injustice, upon my word, Miss Giggles," responded the gallant old beau, laying his hand on his heart and making a profound bow, "I catch 'em alive."
