SAVE THE CHILDREN.

Purposes of the State School for Da pendents.

Home for Dependent Children. For the board of control of the State School for Dependent Children, the secretary, Arthur L. Weatherly, makes public a lengthy composition explain ing in detail the origin of the new law governing that institution. The pur pose of the school and its management is set forth as follows:

"It is the purpose of the board to receive into its care the children that are legally determined to be, either from the voluntary relinquishment of their parents or through the action of

> "During the first two months and a half of the existence of the State School for Dependent Children it was necessary to conduct it very much on the old lines. During that time Mrs. it was found that the school was in a on the new basis because of the reduction of the number of children in the immediate care of the school, by the returning of some to their parents and by the placing out of a much larger number.

> "After this experience of two and one-half months we know that the School for Dependent Children can become virtually a clearing house scarcely more than an office because of the fact that as soon as a child comes into its care it can be immediately placed out in a private home. There is no need of a nursery because there are more applicants for babies than there are babies legitimately coming to the school. There are many, many more applicants for little girls than there are girls for adoption, and we will be able to find homes for all the boys that are placed in our care.
