FETZER'S SHOE STORE

THIS LOOKS QUEER BUT IT ISN'T.

These Things Sometimes Happen In the Wild and Wooley West.

We have had a slight suspicion that our old time friend, W. D. Messersmith, was in some way connected with Joel Chandler Harris, who a short time ago passed away, with the love and respect of all the children in the land, and who wrote and commuted with the animal kingdom. "Posey" told us this morning that at late hour last night, between twelve and one o'clock, he heard some one knocking at his kitchen door, and that he got up to ascertain what was the cause of the disturbance, when upon opening the door he in popped two rabbits, and asked Mr. Messersmith if they might warm themselves, having gotten permission, they hopped upon some chairs which stood by the kitchen stove and proceeded to toast their shins in the most approved manner of the rabbit race. Having sufficiently thawed themselves out they kindly thanked "Posey" and departed, with a promise to return again when the welcome hand may be extended by the genial host. Mr. Messersmith says that the rabbits came to the home of J. C. Linderman, who lives next door, and ranged themselves in a row of half dozen at a time and knock for admission, but John will not let them in as he fears if he once did that they would over run his place and there would be no living with them. This is only here-say, but comes from a man we can not help but believe.

Now Living in Nehawka.

John P. Kuhnney came up last evening from Nehawka and visited with his brother Harry over night and departed this morning for Omaha where he is looking after some business matters today and visiting the Corn Show. Mr. Kuhnney who went to Oklahoma some time since, has now located at Nehawka, where he is engaged in the barber business. John is a first class workman in his line and is well liked at Nehawka as well as everywhere he has worked and lived. As a workman he has no superior, and those which equal him are not numerous. We wish him an abundance of prosperity in his new home at Nehawka.

An Assortment of Saws.

I saw Esau kissing Kate, and Kate saw I saw Esau. I saw Esau, he saw me, and she saw I saw he saw. She saw I saw he saw me, and he saw she saw I saw. I saw I saw she saw I saw Esau saw, and Esau saw I saw. She saw I saw Esau saw, and Esau saw I saw she saw. I saw Esau saw I saw, and I saw she saw I saw Esau saw I saw, and I saw she saw I saw Esau. I saw Esau saw I saw he saw, and I saw Esau saw I saw she saw I saw. I saw Esau kissing Kate, and Kate saw I saw Esau. I saw Esau, he saw me, the fact is we all three saw.

Sells Cutlery From Air Ship.

A properly rigged and up to date air ship is now on exhibition at the popular and well equipped hardware emporium of John Rauer. The air ship was manufactured by the Robertson Cutlery Co., who use the same for the displaying of their goods. This morning Frank Bostor was placing the machine in the window of the hardware store and making the proper display, which is a well selected lot of the goods which the company manufactures, the background consisting of a reproduction of the factory, showing with perspective from above as though looking from an air ship traveling over them, and makes a very attractive window. You had better see it.

BASE BALL BREVETIES

Battest Business Busily Buzzing By the Base Burner By the Base Ball Bugs.

There is an agitation for reform in baseball. It is claimed that the feet foremost slide causes many players to be spiked and often severely injured. Umpire Billy Evans, speaking of this feature points out the case of Cobb. Cobb has injured many with his fade away slide, one foot on the bag and the other in the air. Yet Bobby Wallace of the St. Louis Browns hardly ever failed to catch Cobb stealing. He knew how to touch the great player's leg so that he'd miss the bag a foot. Eliminate the few danger spots in baseball today and the public would quit paying to see the game.

"Babe" Adams, the former A. A. star, who pitched the pirates to victory in the world's championship series, will receive $5,000 for his work with the Clarke aggregation next year. Adams only made $1,800 with Pittsburg last season.

Many important trades will probably be made at the National League meeting in New York. Frank Chance is after Sherwood Magee and Pitcher McQuillan for his Cub team in 1910. Philadelphia wants Kling, Zimmerman and a couple of pitchers.

Following are the different cities where the big league teams will train next spring:

American League—Cleveland, Alexandria, La.; Detroit, D.San Antonio, Tex.; Washington, Norfolk, Va.; St. Louis, Houston, Tex.; Boston, Hot Springs, Ark.; Philadelphia, Atlanta, Ga.; New York, Athens, Ga.; Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

National League—Chicago, New Orleans; Pittsburg, Hot Springs, Ark.; Philadelphia, Southern Pines, N. C.; New York, Marlin, Tex.; Cincinnati, Hot Springs, Ark.; St. Louis, Little Rock, Ark.; Brooklyn, Cloumb in, S. C.

Charles O'Leary, utility player with the Detroit American League baseball club, today signed a contract for next year.

WILLIAM DAHLEN: "I began my big league experience under Pop Anson in Chicago and I am afraid that I was a sore trial to the veteran, who was then passing beyond his best playing form. You see I was forever playing pranks, and once rode many miles on a "blind baggage" merely for the purpose of worrying the old manager by making him think I had missed the train. Anson is an inveterate gambler. A fine wing shot and better than the average billiard player, he was continuously overmatching himself and giving away handicaps that cost him money. When the ticker service was first installed with its chronicle of sporting events, I learned that I could get the winners of the first two races at Hawthorne or Haverford before the ball game started. First! After finding how the horses ran, one-two-three, I would stroll over to Anson and ask him what he fancied, say, in the second race. If Anson liked the winner there was no bet, but if he picked some other horse, I would suggest a small wager, lose against horse. It was three weeks before the old warrior found how he was being fooled. The he threatened to fine me the full amount of his losses. Up to his last day on the diamond Anson could hit the ball and hit it hard, but his legs went bad and he was woefully slow. One afternoon he hit the ball to the fence and got only his first base. On the next day he was forced at second, returning to the bench, I said, with my most innocent air: "Cap, that was one of the bestest singles I ever saw." "Yes," replied Anson, "I did soak it pretty hard." Then, realizing that he was being kidded, he glared at me and shouted: "What in the devil do you mean?"—Ex.

EXILED RUSSIAN VIOLINIST AT THE PARMELE.

Plattsmouth People will have Chance to Enjoy a Treat.

The star feature appearing at the Parmele theater the next three nights commencing this week, is the celebrated Russian violinist, Norbet Sinai. He is recognized as one of the finest violinists on the state, and much of the expression of his playing may be ascribed to the sentiment underlying all his concert work as well as to his naturally artistic temperament and training, as Sinai is playing that he may regain the liberty of his sweet-heart in Russia, held a prisoner of the czar.

J. H. Snell of Ashland, the miller of that place, was a business visitor in the city this morning looking after business interests of the Ashland mills, and in a conversation with a representative of this paper said that there had not been a load of shelled corn in that city on the market from this years crop, and that he had had but eight bushels to grind of it.
