THE OLD DUTCH OVEN.

Some sigh for cooks of boyhood days, but some of them for me; One roundup cook was best of all—twas with the X-Bar-T, And when we heard the grub pile call at morning, noon and night, The old Dutch oven never failed to cook the things just right.

'Twas covered o'er with red-hot coals, and when we fetched her out The biscuits there were nice and brown, You never had a doubt, I ain't so strong for boyhood grub, 'cause, summer, spring or fall, The old Dutch oven baked the stuff that tasted best of all.

Perhaps 'twas 'cause our appetites were always mighty sharp— The men who ride the cattle range ain't apt to kick or carry, But anyway I find myself a-dreaming of that bread The old Dutch oven baked for us beneath those coals so red.

—Arthur Chapman, in Denver Republican.

Rapid Age.

The stranger came to the old tavern. "You are behind the times," he elucidated, gravely. "Why don't you take down that old 'Accommodation for Man and Beast' sign over your gate and put up 'Accommodation for Man and Automobile'?"

But the old tavern keeper only smiled. "What would be the use?" "Why, don't you think it would be of advantage to you?" "No; by the time I got it up I'd have to take it down and put up a sign, 'Accommodation for Man and Aeroplane.'"

When Candy is Good for a Child. The average, healthy child of 10 or 12 should be able to eat of pure candy the equivalent in weight of two or three lumps of sugar after his midday meal. This, however, should not be given him unless other proper foods, in sufficient quantity, are eaten, and should never be allowed between meals. Butter taffy and molasses candy, made at home of pure materials, are especially to be recommended, and may be considered valuable articles of food.—Jean Williams, M. D., in the Woman's Home Companion.

UNKIND.

I had hoped we were friends, and perhaps something more; You often have given me praise; I have paid your car fare; you were glad when I swore That you had adorable ways.

We have whispered sometimes—little nothings, 'tis true— In unlighted corners and nooks; I have squeezed your slim hand and presented to you A number of beautiful books.

I have seen your cheeks flush, and I've thought that, some way, My life blended into your life, But why, when I asked you to luncheon that day, Did you telephone to my wife? —B. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

AMATEUR RIDERS TO SAVE RACING

Gentlemen's Events to Be Big Factor on Turf This Season.

MOVEMENT HAS BEEN STARTED

Many Men Connected With the Sport of Kings Say That the Amateur Events Will Give More Sportsmanlike Tone to Horse Racing.

When the eastern thoroughbred horse racing season starts on its career April 15 the sport of kings will have an important factor in the person of an amateur. And he has come to stay. When the game was rolling on the crest of the wave of prosperity the amateur was seldom heard of. In fact, when his name was mentioned it was treated as a joke. There was no room for the simon pure turfmen. The man who rode a thoroughbred for the simple pleasure of the chase was shoved aside to make room for the professional jockey. The lightning changes in the racing game during the past few years have been nothing less than startling. The anti-racing legislation, which cut down the attendance from many thousands to simply the regulars, reduced the game to almost ashes. And the amateur has now come forth in the character of the phoenix. The evolution of the sport has brought about many changes. And the most important one is that "sport for sport's sake" will be the slogan of the future.

This does not mean that the professional rider is to be cast into the discard. On the contrary, he will be as prominent as ever. But the man on whom the revival of the sport will fall is the man who is going to devote his time and services to try to restore racing to its former high standard.

The inception of this scheme started last year, when a call was issued to all the hunt clubs in the country to attend a conference and draw up rules which would govern at all amateur meets. The success of the plan was greater than anticipated by the promoters. Representatives from all the big hunt clubs attended the meeting and willingly agreed to do all in their power to foster the sport. In consequence there were more amateur meets held last year than ever before. At the end of the season the returns were so gratifying that it was resolved to enlarge the scope this year.

Frank J. Bryan was selected as the proper manager to handle the movement this season and was elected secretary of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunts association. Under his capable management there are forty-nine hunt clubs on the roster of the N. S. H. A. These clubs are situated all over the country, and their membership rolls contain the names of some of the most representative men in the United States.

One of the most valuable additions to this new body is Thomas F. Ryan, the former traction king, who retired from active life last year. Down at his vast Oak Ridge farm, in Virginia, Mr. Ryan has constructed one of the most up to date race courses in the country. His intention is to hold meets there during the year for the pleasure they will afford his friends and himself. At the same time Mr. Ryan has a number of blue blooded stallions and mares on his farm and intends to join the ranks of breeders.

In addition to Mr. Ryan's establishment in Virginia, there are some of the greatest hunt clubs situated below the Mason and Dixon line. In New England the Brookline meet is famous in turf history. The racing there is attended by crowds running up to the thousands. The Brookline meet is in a part of the country where there is no real race track within a hundred miles. The enthusiasm shown by the spectators at the many affairs held there is indisputable evidence that where sport predominates in racing it is bound to be a great success. On Long Island the Cedarhurst and Meadowbrook hunts bring out a number of folk who never visit regular tracks. Again, there are any number of private meets given by wealthy people which furnish more excitement than at any of the large courses.

To show the real interest taken by the amateurs it is only necessary to point out the course of the United Hunts adjoining Belmont park. This course is laid out on the plan of a regular track, with courses for flat runners and a steeplechase field. There is no revenue in this organization, and none is looked for. A good day's sport is all that is asked. A glance over the list of some of the main supporters of the amateur sport proves that they are necessary to help in the rekindling of the popular pastime. With August Belmont are his two sons, Raymond and August junior, both of whom are able horsemen. F. Ambrose Clark, James Butler, Jr., Malcolm Stephenson, David Gows and E. H. Carle are also a few others in this state who are devoted amateurs.

It is the intention of the hunts committee to have the various local racing associations put at least one amateur race on the weekly program. It makes no difference whether it is on the first course or over the steeplechase course. The innovation is sure to call out any number of friends of the participants. By this method the sport is bound to add a number of new friends to its list.

WHAT THE WIND DID

40, however, was made up at Ravenna and run to Lincoln, arriving there near the time of the one regularly scheduled. During the afternoon word reached the office of Chief Clerk Butler at railway mail headquarters that the bridge would be replaced by six o'clock in the evening. This was expected to bring in train No. 42 five or six hours late.

A track blockade of some kind in the northwest prevented passenger No. 44, from Seattle, reaching Lincoln last night. It is due here at 1 a. m. but will not get here before 3 o'clock this afternoon, which is fourteen hours behind schedule. The trouble is beyond the Nebraska line and is supposed to be on the great Northern, but its location and nature were not learned here.

The Rock Island reported a heavy snow west of Limon, Colo., and the Union Pacific reported heavy storms in Wyoming. It is said that snow was falling at Alliance during the afternoon and that a foot of snow covered the Black Hills territory.—State Journal.

Prayer Meetings Start.

The first meetings in the series of cottage prayer meetings being conducted by the Methodist Church were held last evening and interesting services with large attendance were reported from all of them. The services last night were held at the homes of B. B. Warthen, M. Hill, Joshua Andrews and at the church. One of the enthusiastic meetings was that of the young people conducted by Miss Jane Barrows, of the Kansas City Deaconess school, on the subject "Elements of prayer in the Christian life."

When the Commons Was a Shield.

In modern times when the British parliament is dissolved it means that the members must look to their bank books for election expenses. Formerly it spurred them to desperate shifts to avoid bankruptcy and arrest for debt, for with the dissolution of parliament went the member's prized privilege of immunity from his creditors. Down to the middle of the last century no civil action for the recovery of debt could be directed against members of parliament, so that a seat in parliament was the spendthrift's invulnerable defense, or, as Disraeli wrote, the only way to keep some men "out of the house of correction is to get them into the house of commons."

Australia.

While Australia is the fifth of the great continents of the earth, with single states larger than historic kingdoms and empires, the London Standard notes that it has fewer inhabitants than those for whom the police force of London is responsible. In population it is no greater than Belgium, a tiny shred of flat country that would be lost in the back lands of Queensland or South Australia. In fact, Australia has only a small fringe of population sparsely strewn along the seacoast, too few in number even to hold that rim except in dots and patches, while the natural increase of population is below that of most other nations.

Roundabout Way to Happiness.

If everything in the holy state of matrimony went on too smoothly we should not be aware of how happy we are. We should not realize that a horse was well trained if horses never never ran away. We should never know that marriage makes for long life were it not that there are incidental troubles which sometimes shorten it.

Here is a Plattsmouth citizen's recommendation. J. L. McPinney, Lincoln Ave., Plattsmouth, Neb., says: "Doan's Kidney pills, procured from Gering and Co's drug store, have been used in my family and have brought prompt relief from kidney disorders after other remedies had failed. In 1906 I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for the benefit of other kidney sufferers and at this time I have no reason whatever to withdraw one word from that statement."
