WILL BE HUNDREDS HERE ON THE FOURTH

Free Ferry and Special Trains Expected to Bring Enormous Crowds.

Plattsmouth is going to be the Mecca of celebrators and pleasure seekers from the second of July to the Ninth. These seven days are to be crammed with excitement and there will be events of interest taking place every hour of the time. It is to be a most glorious week, one never excelled for pleasure in the city of Plattsmouth.

The big Brown Amusement company is billed to arrive Thursday, but both that day and Friday will be taken up in raising their tents and making ready for their grand opening which will occur Saturday night.

But the Redmen, to whom the city is indebted for the big week, are not to be satisfied with the carnival company alone, on the Fourth they have things lined up for the biggest celebration old Plattsmouth ever saw or heard of, in the annals of local history, the day will go down in red letters and will always loom up in great prominence among the big days of Cass county. If there is a person within a radius of fifteen miles of Plattsmouth that isn't present at the big week's events, you can either put that one down as a candidate for a home of the feeble minded or a genuine sap head. If any person can find a better place to spend the Fourth, where there will be more and better events, that person will be awarded a leather medal for his find.

On the Nation's birthday from seven o'clock in the morning until two o'clock the next morning, there will be something doing for every one between the ages of 9 and 99. There will be a twenty piece band for the music lovers, patriotic speeches for the old soldiers and patriots, good ball games for the fans, Johnson-Jeffries fight and wrestling match for the "pug" enthusiasts, races and games for the young folks, carnival shows for the amusement seekers, grand ball for the dancers, hamburger stands for the hungry and red lemonade stands for those that are dry—to size it up, there will be things to suit even the most fastidious and there'll be fun for everyone.

The free ferry proposition looks good to the Iowa people who are planning on flocking across the river by the score. The promoters of the day are making arrangements with the Missouri Pacific for the securing of special train to bring the morning crowd from Union and Nehawka about 9 a. m. and it is expected that the train will be put on.

The Fourth is going to be a glorious old time day of celebration in this city, and if you haven't decided where to spend the day, do it now. Make it Plattsmouth for the Fourth of July!

BROKE JAIL SECONDTIME

feet, made out of a piece of bed clothing tied together. As the jail room of the building is on the ground floor the deputy was unable to figure out what such a rope could be used for unless the prisoner had been planning on a solitaire neck-tie party. He was relieved of the articles which were annexed to the junk pile.

Morris' sweet hours of freedom were decidedly limited as it was not twenty-four hours until he was again captured and landed in jail. After breaking out about nine o'clock Thursday night he started on foot in the direction of Union. Reaching the Goos farm a short distance south of this city, he crawled into a hay mow and slept until day break, when he again set forth on his jaunt. Shortly after the noon hour he stopped at the Claud Everett place a mile or two northeast of Union and asked for a drink. He was at once recognized by Everett who talked to him and assailed him with several questions as to what he was doing in that vicinity. Morris replied that he had been set free and that he was "hoofing" it back home; however, his actions were a little peculiar and to get the straight of things, Everett entered the house to phone the Union authorities. While he was talking the boy started to leave the place and when Everett finished and stepped out on the porch, he was nearly beyond hailing distance. Paying no attention to Everett's calls, the lad went on out of sight. A short while later, Constable Barton and a party arrived on the scene. They soon located their man on the banks of the river but before they could reach him he had disappeared.

Following him along the bank a few minutes later they again sighted him and cornered him in a narrow place between a deep draw and the river. He was piled into the constable rig and the party headed for this city to once more lodge the youthful jail-breaker in the confines of the beautiful and substantial structure.

We wonder who's breaking out now.

In the meantime, the sheriff had been summoned and he was on his way to Union when he met the Union parties and retruned with them.

At the jail the boy was locked up in the county cage, the only place in the building which can be even hinted as being secure, where the thermometer registers 98 most of the time and where it is just about as light during the night as it is during the day. He was taken to Kearney Monday and placed in their reform school.

The authorities consider it a peculiar thing that the boy would return after each jail break to his old stamping ground, where was known by every one and his identity was sure to leak out. What skill the boy held in jail-breaking he lacked in eluding the officers. Jail breaking in this locality is not a punishable offense but the boy's double dash for liberty will not add any feathers to his bed at the reform school. As the jail keeper said: "Morris battered up the jail worse than any other prisoner had ever done." He was onto his job when it came to gaining freedom but he met his Waterloo when he tried to retain it.

As the old saying reads, "Tis an ill wind that blows no one good". The escape of the lad the second time may jar a little dust from the thought garrets of the commissioners and make them realize the condition of the disreputable old shack. It is getting to be an outrage on the county citizens, who know that all the burglars, crooks etc., in their locality are being allowed to run at large, for placing a prisoner in the Cass county jail is like putting a fly in a chicken coop; it holds them as long as they are content with the cooking, but when they decide to leave, they have no more trouble in getting on their way than an aristocrat does in cranking his machine. From the information gleaned by the News-Herald from many prominent citizens of the locality, it is found that practically every one is in favor of a new building. If the good people of the county want a new jail, why can't they have one? The continued commotion that is being stirred up here by the frequent deliveries and attempted jail breaks, is giving the state the impression that Cass county is full of desperate ones who are taking the law in their own hands and gaining their freedom whenever they care to. Does the county deserve to hold such a reputation? Has the body, which holds such matters in hand, been inoculated with the sleeping sickness germ to such an extent that its members are going to slumber through a time when their action on the matter is needed to such an extent? They are supposed to have the interests of the people of the county at heart. They do not have to be told the sentiment of the people whom they are serving. They know how they stand; now its up to them!

TWO BOYS HERE ON LONG RIVER TRIP

Padding in Canoe From Source Of River to Their Home at Kansas City.

Two nut brown youths paddled down the current of the Missouri Monday morning in a light canoe, presenting, by their sun tanned complexions and their skillful handling of their little craft, the appearance of a pair of red skins, such as plied the waters of the stream two score years ago. When opposite Plattsmouth, they tied up their boat and came into the city to take in the sights before resuming their journey.

The young men were Will Guinotto and Edward Curtis, two Kansas City boys, who are exceptionally strong in the water sports, being members of the Kansas City Yacht club and Paddle and Camp club. As their actions showed, they had won several honors for skillful canoe work. Several months ago the boys hit on the novel idea of taking a long trip in their favorite craft and accordingly they made preparations for their outing. Slipping their canoe, a frail looking boat measuring 17 feet in length and 52 inches in width, with a small tent and about 100 pounds of baggage, to Great Falls, Mont., the boys proceeded to the point by rail. This place is some fifty miles from the headwater of the Missouri. They launched the boat on the long journey the second of May and every day since then they have been paddling down stream at the rate of about seventy-five miles a day.

At Arrow Rapids, the boys had their most interesting experience with the canoe. At that place the river tumbles heavily over treacherous rapids, but these the boys shot without a single mishap and without shipping more than a few hat fulls of water. They have not met with a single accident on their trip, although it has not all been a continual round of pleasure and clear sailing. They remained in Omaha over Sunday, pitching their tent under the approach of the Douglas street bridge. They broke camp and Monday morning, arriving here at ten twenty, making a remarkably quick trip as the winds and bends of the river measure many miles between here and the metropolis. After eating dinner in the city, the pair set out again, anxious to make their destination before the Fourth of July. In all, their boat has covered about 2,600 miles since it touched water on May 2.
