F. D. mail carrier at Union. Uncle Sam's man made the rounds of his trip several times in the demonstrating machine and decided that it was just what he needed in his business. The result is now that his team have taken on a dejected look as they stand in the barn and see the benzine buggy starting out on the route that they covered for years.

Swallowed a Nail.

George Bax, jr., a young carpenter of Omaha, who has been on several visits in this city and has many acquaintances here, figured in an unfortunate accident the first of the week while working at his trade in Omaha. The young man was carrying a handful of nails in his mouth, as is the custom of the hammer artists, when one of them made a sudden decession down his throat, piercing the walls of his stomach. He was shortly seized with pains and cramps and when removed to the hospital it was found an operation was necessary to remove the object from its lodging. The operation was performed and at this time he is on the road to recovery. Mrs. Julia Decker, grand-mother of Mr. Bax, received a message Monday informing her of the seriousness of the case and she left on that day to be present at the operation. It is hoped by the young man's friends in this city that his confinement will be of short duration and that he will be able to again take up his work.

Married at Omaha.

Mr. Richard M. Schlaes, the popular young proprietor of the Majestic theatre, was united in marriage with Miss Anna Priesman at Omaha Tuesday, the ceremony taking place before a small party of friends and relatives. Mr. Schlaes has returned to the city with his bride and the happy couple will start housekeeping at the residence on Vine street formerly occupied by J. W. Larkin. They have had the house comfortably fitted and it will make them a snug little home. All kinds of wishes for success and happiness are extended to them by their numerous friends of the city.

SUFFERERS FROM ASTHMA.

Just as Likely to Die of Old Age as From the Disease.

Among all physical ills asthma is perhaps the most irritating. It is hard to endure and terrible to observe. Its victims die a thousand deaths, as far as suffering is concerned, and yet are denied the dignity of having a fatal disease, for it is one of the heartless axioms of experience that the asthmatic sufferer is quite as likely to die of old age as of his disease. It has been said that asthma is not a disease, but a state of body, and if its victims are able to extract any comfort from the knowledge that it is nervous in its origin they are entitled to that alleviation.

Any one looking on for the first time at a well pronounced asthmatic seizure is convinced that he is watching a death scene, and no wonder, so terrifying are the symptoms. The patient fights piteously for breath, sometimes crouching for hours in one position, pallid, bathed in perspiration and apparently in the final stages of suffocation; but, curiously enough, with all the distress, the patient does not seem to feel any real alarm as to the outcome.

The attack may pass off either rapidly or gradually, in many cases leaving no apparent effect except a sense of great fatigue.

Asthma being a disease with a nervous origin, it follows that there are as many theories about it and remedies for it as there are sufferers from it. With some persons the attacks are apparently a certain outcome of eating a certain kind of food or breathing a certain kind of air or reaching a certain day and month of the year. Many asthmatics claim the power of cheating their enemy up to a certain point by moving to some other locality when the tragic date draws near. The asthmatics living in the valleys may pass in transit their fellow sufferers who habitually live on the hills.

Those who trace their attacks to digestive disturbances learn to avoid the starchy foods or the fat foods or whatever food it is that upsets them. Some cannot live near a stable; others cannot be near a certain shrub or flower. Indeed, the specialties of these unfortunate people are without number.

The asthmatic, however, has two great sources of comfort. One is the reasonable hope of reaching a good old age. The other is the fact that great help is to be found for him in a strictly hygienic mode of living. The better air he breathes both day and night, the simpler his diet and the more wisely ordered his exercise the fewer will be the number of his attacks.—Youth's Companion.

Shortened Her Stay.

The wife of the clergyman of a certain suburban parish, says the Boston Traveler, was mending clothes the other day when a visitor was announced. The hostess went on with her sewing, for the caller was a well known parishioner. After awhile the visitor glanced toward the sewing table and exclaimed:

"Why, there are some buttons exactly like some my husband had on his last winter suit. They are an odd kind of button too. Where did you get them?"

The clergyman's wife smiled roguishly. "In the collection basket," she answered quietly. "I found a good many of the same kind. I am saving them up for possible use."

The caller changed the subject as hastily as she could, and somehow or other she did not stay very long.

In County Court.

Final settlement was made Tuesday in the estate of John C. Quinn, C. E. Teft appearing as attorney for the estate. Chas. Murphy acted as administrator in the estate.

Final hearing was held Tuesday in the estate of Samuel S. Johnson, the attorney of the estate being C. C. Flansburg of Lincoln. William Alton of Elmwood was relieved from this duty of administrator and C. D. Clapp, appointed some time ago, was installed in his stead. The estate has been carried through the courts for some time having made rounds from County court to supreme and back again to county, and the satisfactory settlement of the estate seems to be still in the dim future.

Tuesday morning, Mrs. Laurs Peterson was appointed administratrix in the estate of Ann M. Davis. Judge B. S. Ramsay acted as attorney for the estate.

decided to enter two floats and both of them look to be prize winners. From an inspection of several now in the course of construction, it seems there will be a number of floats as elaborate as were ever seen in the city. The Red Men and Haymakers are to enter two unique floats, however they will not compete for any of the prizes. Rules for the selection of the best entries will be made by the parade committee and a trio of efficient and competent judges will be named to pass on the appearances of the floats.

The principal discussions of importance at Tuesday's meeting, were those on the location of the pugilistic contest and slide for life. Arrangements have been made with the county officials, and a low stand will be set up at the rear of the court house building for the boxing and wrestlings. This seems to be an ideal place for the sports as the high ground to the north of the stand's location may be filled with spectators, who will be able to see the contestants to fine advantage from their elevated positions. Permission has also been secured for the fastening of a slack wire to the court house tower. This will be lashed to a pole on Main Street, and the perilous slide made by the performer.

Extra cars will be attached to the regular trains running into the city Monday morning, but no special trains have been scheduled. Big Injun Graves of Union is planning on bringing up a big delegation of people from his home town and Nehawka as enthusiasm for the celebration has been worked up to a high extent by the visits of the Red Men advertising delegation. Costumed as the Red Men of Old a committee has been trailing through the country, plastering sign boards and show windows of the neighboring towns with glaring posters of the big Fourth of July celebration and festival week. Monday and Tuesday the boys were out at the work, the committee consisting of Messrs. Decker, Tims, Egenberger Truman and Bert Thomas.

The locomotive power of the trip was furnished by I. J. Decker's team of trusty mounds. James Ault, the Missouri river ferryman, is prepared to handle a record breaking crowd on that day. He has improved the landing on both sides of the river so they are, now very firm and solid and no trouble will be found in loading and unloading the rigs and automobiles. As before announced, the order has leased the boat for the day and no charges whatever will be attached to the Iowa residents for the use of it. On the advertising trip of the committee, they found the people in the neighboring Iowa towns looking forward to the day with great expectations.

Several people of the city, who have taken the trouble to investigate into the merits of the coming carnival company, have found that they bear the best of a reputation. Their shows all seem to be high class ones, clean and moral in every respect. If the company is not the best that has ever been in this city, the Redmen will bury their tomahawks in the sands of the Big Muddy and formally withdraw from the limelight. The Brown company has been leaving behind it a trail of well satisfied towns and all the engagements have been money makers for the promoters. Reports from Beatrice and Wymore say that everything went fine during their engagements and everyone seemed satisfied. At Wymore, where the shows filled a three days engagement, they were under the auspices of the city fire department. The company arrived in their cars yesterday, but little was done toward the setting up of their tents as they do not have their grand opening till Saturday night. It is hoped the people will not be under the impression that the carnival is here but for a day or two for they are to remain in the city during the entire week of the Fourth of July, making a total of seven playing days. Eight big free events will take place during that time, four slides for life and the same number of balloon ascensions.

Perfect order will be preserved during the week and on the Fourth a force of nine or ten police will be maintained. No gambling will be permitted and the festivities will not be such as to cast a reflection on the city or the Redmen. Rest rooms will be supplied for the visiting women and children, where the callers may cool off during the heat of the day by the use of fans and ice water. No flood has swept the city and cast the merchants into gloom as was the case during the early part of July a few years ago. The city is prosperous and everybody's happy which ought to make the day one grand celebration, without a single blemish to spoil the good time which is in store for everyone.

Wandering Weary Willies.

George Buckner and James Wilson two Weary Willies of Podunk, paid the city a short call Monday morning, but before they had finished taking in the sights to their satisfaction, they were landed in the county dark hole.

George and James were the original long and short of it and were about as ragged a looking pair as has blown into the city for some time. Jim made a tour of the business houses during the morning, explaining a home made story of how he was a coal miner stranded on his way to the eastern mine. His partner George tried to accost the chief of police with the glad hand but was refused and before he realized whether the star on the policeman's uniform was an official insignia or a beer bottle opener he was seized by the collar and carried to the city strong house. His sawed off pal explained that George was a cattle man who had just disposed of three cars load of western cattle, but a different story was told Judge Archer Tuesday morning when they were both arraigned for being drunk and disorderly. George told Hizzoner he was a brick layer, but his real occupation made no difference to the court and a fine of $5 was levied on each of them which was suspended long enough for them to make use of their passes.

In Justice Court.

Papers were served Monday morning by Constable Denson on John Beckman and Frank Grauf, the former living in the vicinity of Murray and the latter a few miles southwest of Rock Bluff; the parties owing the plaintiff, John Bauer, small bills on the purchase of hardware. The parties are ordered to appear before Judge Archer June 30. The trip to the farms of the defendants was made in the Bauer automobile driven by Frank Pastor, and the good constable, whose chug wagon journeys have been decidedly limited, enjoyed the ride nearly as much as he did his honey-moon trip.

A garnishee case is on the books for July 1, the parties in the case being R. L. Wright and William Barclay. The latter holds a bill of $7 against Wright for meal tickets secured at the plaintiff's restaurant. As Wright is a Burlington conductor running out of Lincoln, it was impossible to get service of summons on him in time to bring him up for appearance on the date set and the case was continued till a later date.

A case is to be started tomorrow by Chas. Mastous against Ed Donat for the purpose of securing the amount recently obtained from him in a garnishee suit. The status provided that in a case of this kind, not only the original amount of the garnishee, but also the total cost of the proceedings may be secured, as the case was transferred to another state and the wages taken, which, under these circumstances were exempt in the state. The money was secured by a collector at Kansas City.

MIKE LUTZ, Road Overseer.

Robert Smith, brother of Sydney Smith and an ex-advocate general, on one occasion was engaged in an argument with a physician over the merits of their respective professions.

"I don't say that all lawyers are crooks," said the doctor in his final summing up, "but my opponent will have to admit that his profession doesn't make angels of men." "No," quietly retorted Smith; "you doctors certainly have the best of us there."
