A FATAL FALL!

William R. Webb Falls From the B. & M. Bridge to the Ice, a Distance of 70 Feet.

DIED UNCONSCIOUS.

The Most Distressing Accident that Has Occurred in Plattsmouth for Many Months.

There have been numerous accidents happening to workmen on the B. & M. railroad bridge since commencing operations upon the new structure, but none so horrible as that which occurred to Mr. William R. Webb on Tuesday afternoon last, in which he lost his life.

Mr. Webb was engaged at work on the top of the first span on this side of the bridge, where other workmen were also employed, and it seems that he was engaged in assisting in removing a large piece of lumber and stepped aside to let those coming from the opposite direction, pass. In doing so he stepped upon a loose board, which gave way and he fell through below. Eye-witnesses say that in falling, he first struck the casing of the temporary pier, erected under a low trussel work, from which he bounced to the ice on the river, a distance of nearly seven feet or more. His fellow workmen as soon as possible rushed to his aid, but as soon as they reached the mangled form, he was unconscious, and it was soon discovered that his injuries were fatal. The unfortunate man was carried aboard the work train and brought to his home in this city. In the meantime Dr. Livingston, the company's physician, was apprised of the terrible accident.

While everything in the power of physician and friends was done to save his life, his spirit took its flight to the Great Beyond at 10:30 Tuesday night. It could not possibly have resulted otherwise to the unfortunate man whose skull was crushed and both legs badly mangled.

William R. Webb was well known in Plattsmouth, having been in the employ of the B. & M. for a number of years, first in the shops and then with the regular bridge gang of the Burlington. He was a gentleman who commanded the respect of all who knew him, and with a genial, kind disposition calculated to make friends with all with whom he met. The entire community was shocked upon hearing of the terrible disaster that had befallen him and his grief-stricken wife and children.

While not intimately acquainted with the deceased, the writer has been a resident of the same city for a number of years in which reside the father and several brothers, and knew the family well. It has been but a few months since the deceased visited the Journal office to convey some word his aged father had sent us. He had just returned from his mother's funeral at Memphis, Mo. It seems to be true that "misfortunes never come singly," and the untimely death of Mr. Webb is a hard blow to the already sorrowing wife, who was just recovering from the shock she received a few weeks ago of the death of her brother, who was accidentally killed in the state of Washington, and whose remains were brought here and barely consigned to the silent tomb, when she is called upon to grieve over a still greater loss in the death of a loving husband. Mrs. Webb and the fatherless children have the sympathy of the entire community.

The deceased was a member of Plattsmouth Lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F., and also a member of the Loyal Mystic Legion. The funeral will take place from the M. E. church to-morrow (Friday) at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted under the auspices of the Odd Fellows of the city.

Among the relatives who arrived yesterday and today to attend the funeral are the following brothers, sisters and father: Mrs. Thomas Smith, J. D. Webb and wife, Jode Webb and the father, J. H. Webb, all of Albia, Iowa, and J. H. Webb, of Memphis, Missouri.

Miss Adams is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Adams, at whose home in Haystack the ceremony took place. Among those who attended the wedding from Plattsmouth, were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gray and two daughters; William Allis and family and Robert Sherwood, jr.

Mr. Bates is one of the publishers of the Plattsmouth Journal—one of the best weekly papers published in the state of Nebraska.—Central City (S. D.) Register.

Many thanks, Billy. Such compliments coming from one so competent to judge, is very flattering indeed. The boys returned home in safety, and to a great extent highly pleased with their trip. The Journal is also pleased to learn that Mr. Benfer is prospering in his present home. He ought to. He is a good printer in all departments, applicable to a print shop, and is getting out an excellent paper that is well supported.

VALENTINE PARTY.

Miss Katharine Dovey Entertains Her Young Associates.

On Saturday evening, February 14, the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Dovey was the scene of a most jolly time among the little folks, the occasion for which was the valentine party given by their daughter, Miss Katharine. Every invitation sent out met with a personal response, and it is unnecessary to say that there was a goodly number present, properly costumed for the event. From the moment the happy children had all arrived, the merriment began and continued up to the hour of leave-taking. When the time for unmasking arrived, was the jolliest moment of the occasion, as much suspense was experienced in the maneuvers to find out "who was who." Elegant refreshments, just suited to the tastes of the girls and boys, were served, and much enjoyed. The costumes were well arranged, and would reflect credit on those gotten up by larger people. Miss Katharine made all feel "at home," and when the guests departed it was with a unanimous sentiment that little Miss Dovey was keeping up the record long established by the Dovey family. Following are the names of those present and characters assumed:

Pollock and Hallie Parmele, "Princesses in the Tower;" Lizzie Falter, Spanish Girl; Helen Pollock, Katharine Windham and Marie Douglas, each "Queen of Hearts;" Beatrice Hasse, "Mildred Maid;" Marie Donnelly, Flower Girl; Lizetta Wills, "Day;" Catharine Atwood, "Daisy;" Helen Clark, "Bat;" Mildred Cummins, "Forget-Me-Not;" Morine Leinhardt, "Clover Leaf;" Adella White, "Tamborine Girl;" Ruth Helps, "Liberty;" Helen Herold, "Little Red Ridinghood;" Lucile and Helen Gass, "Court Lady and Page;" Catharine and Edith Dovey, same; Mathew Herold, "Happy Hooligan;" Bryan Waugh, "Gloomy Gus;" Grosvenor Dovey, "Dockstader;" Geo. O. Dovey, "Primrose;" Dean Cummins, "Alfred Jingle;" Philip Rouse, "Jack Frost;" Sidney Pearce, "Mother Goose;" Douglass Pearce, "Topsy;" Carl Ebinger, same; George Farley, jr., "Pied Piper of Hamelin;" Johnny Falter, jr., "Cow Boy;" Clyde Murphy, "Billy Stuart;" Bennie Windham, "Jack of Hearts;" Dannie Helps, "Clock;" Earl Hassler, "George Washington;" Charles Dovey, "Romeo;" George Francis Dovey, "Young Man in Citizen's Clothes;" Milford B. Bates, "Prince."

That which produced the greatest merriment among the little folks was the novelty of pinning the tail onto a donkey. The two boys and two girls who came the nearest to performing the task, and received prizes were Adella White, Milford Bates, Carl Ebinger and Marie Douglas.

McCutchen Farm

Southwest Quarter Section 30, Township 12, Range 10 East, Cass County For Sale!

Fine Quarter Section near Ashland, Neb.

The McCutchen Farm of 144 acres, 5 miles southeast of Ashland, Nebraska, and 6 miles west of South Bend, in Cass county. Price, $70.00 per acre—$10,080. $6,080 cash, $4,000 five years, 5 per cent.

This is one of the best farms in Cass county. Largely in a German neighborhood.

Improvements are as follows: House of 6 rooms, good state of repair, well painted; built about 15 years ago. Barn for eight horses, big driveway in the middle and several granaries with large, ample hay room above. Built three years ago; cost $900. The corn crib, driveway in middle, 4 granaries on one side, corn on the other, cost about $400. A fine orchard; sold 1,000 bushels of apples in 1902.

The whole farm is fenced hog tight in four pastures. About half in tame grass and balance in corn.

This farm has been used almost exclusively in the raising of hogs for the last fifteen years and has made the owner well off.

Mr. McCutchen, the former owner of this farm, recently purchased a 480 acre farm in Central Nebraska and offered this farm for quick sale in order to apply the proceeds on the payment of the other farm.

For all cash the $80 above will be deducted, making the purchase price for $10,000, or less than $70 per acre.

This farm must be seen to be appreciated. It is a bargain. Do not take our word for it but see it. We may be prejudiced. Possession can be had at any time between March 1st and March 15th. Don't lay this aside if you are interested as it will be sold by March 15th. See or write us.

A Grand Success.

The mask ball given by the Turner Society at their hall Saturday night was a grand success socially, financially and every other way, and is declared by all in attendance, one of the finest events of its character ever given in Plattsmouth, the credit for which is due to those under whose direct management it was conducted. The ladies prize for the best costume was awarded to Miss Anna Parks, of Glenwood, and the awarding committee made no mistake in their decision, as she was most tastefully attired for the occasion, besides she is a very handsome little lady. Miss Letha Ashby, of this city captured the prize for the best lady character. Both prizes consisted of bouquets of beautiful flowers. Jimmie Berline "took in" the prize for the best gentleman costume, by representing the "Tin Trust," while the prize for the best gentleman character was carried off by Glen Smith, who represented "Happy Hooligan." Among those in attendance from neighboring towns were Misses Anna Parks, May Berger, Anna Warwick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson, Messrs. George Brown and C. E. Chapman, of Glenwood, Iowa.

Does This Hit You?

The Journal is pleased with the fact that it has but three or four names on its subscription book, mean enough after reading the paper two years, and upon receiving a notice of their dues for same, to return it to the postmaster with "I don't take the paper," written upon the margin of the copy returned.

Now the trials and tribulations of the average country publisher are sometimes very great, but a man of this character is most to be abhorred of all his trials. Now a person who will be guilty of reading a newspaper two years, and send back such word after receiving a statement has a heart about the size of a pin head, and need never fear of dying from honesty.
