WEDDING BELLS.

Daughters Lassoed Into the

Matrimonial Noose. One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith, on Winterstein hill, Wednesday evening, June 3, 1903, when their daughter Zella was united in marriage to Mr. George W. Steiger, of Omaha. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives and a few invited

The parlors were most beautifully decorated with pink and white roses, and white satin ribbon formed an arch under which the bridal party passed to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Ethel Morgan, of Omaha. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom were showered with roses and congratulations.

A dainty luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Steiger departed for their future home at Benson, Neb., accompanied to the depot by the guests, where more roses was showered. The happy couple were the recipients of numerous beautiful and useful mementoes of the happy event.

The guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Naufzinger, of Central, Ill.: Mr. and Mrs. Gus Steiger, Mr. Ed. Steiger, Misses Ada and Lillie Steiger and Mr. J. Patterson, of Benson; Miss Ethel Morgan, of Omaha, and Miss Margaret Safford, of Lincoln

The Journal joins the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Steiger, in wishing them all the happiness and prosperity possible.

None of Them Caught.

For the past week Plattsmouth has been infested with a bold gang of sneak thieves. Several boarders at the Plattsmouth hotel have had whole suits of clothing taken from their rooms, which were never recovered and it is supposed the thieves made good their escape. About this time another stranger would put in an apperance, purchase a bill of goods, amounting to two or three dollars, and then present a check for a sum much larger. The merchant cept the check on the ground of the man being a stranger. The wholesale "representative" would come to the front and tell the merchant that he knew the fellow who presented the check and that he was all right. But as far as can be ascertained none of our merchants were caught. The people have got to be on the lookout for such fellows, and the the officers should be instructed to arrest all strangers who remain in the city over one day, who are not here on business, or who are known as non-residents. Give them the "move along" nod, and if they fail to understand put them on the rock pile, which we understand the city is preparing for their special benefit.

The Mirrors of Venice.

Since time immemorial mirrors were Water was probably the first mirror, then polished metal took its place and offered its services to those who liked to admire their beauty. With the invention of glass came also the invention of mirrors as we find them now in every household. The mirrors of Venice were always praised for their exquisite purity and clearness with which they reflected all objects. The mirror is our best friend; There is this peculiar it never lies. In the morning we something about Ayer's Hair times cannot believe that it is our picture we see before us: the face yellow, the eyes without lustre with black rings around, pale lips. The mirror tells us: "you are sick. Take care." And you really are sick. You need Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine. The complexion will soon become clear and beautiful, the eye will get its lustre again. This remedy brings all organs to work; it purifies and renews the blood which goes to the minutest parts of the body, nourishing them and curing them. It makes the body strong.
