

The Plattsmouth Journal

Stand Up, Mr. Mickey.

Republican newspapers, says the Omaha World-Herald, are just now engaged in reproducing the fine words of Mr. Roosevelt used in referring to the crime of bribery. Perhaps it would not be out of place for these newspapers to publish alongside with its Roosevelt recitations an editorial that which appeared in the Lincoln Evening News, a republican paper, as follows, to-wit:

"The Nebraska City News points out that Governor Mickey admitted that an attempt was made to bribe him, but that he has never brought the would-be bribers to justice. It wants to know why the governor does not follow the footsteps of the other public officers who have been tearing the mask off corruption and crookedness. The inquiry is well-timed. Why not, Mr. Mickey? The people of Nebraska are pretty well awake to the fact that there has been a great deal of graft perpetrated, and they will insist upon knowing who the guilty parties are. Governor Mickey has made definite charges; that several attempts were made to bribe him. An attempt to bribe is a crime under the statutes, and if Governor Mickey has actual knowledge of any such attempt then it is his duty, as a citizen, not to speak of his more pressing duty as an official, to expose the guilty persons. Mr. Mickey has heretofore refused to name the men, although he was very frank and specific in making the charge. He has given no good reason for his silence. Just now we are on the trail of graft and grafters, and while we are at it let us have a turn at all of them. The governor is wronging someone by his silence, either the people whose laws were transgressed or the men whose names have been secretly handed about as the ones indicated in his charges. If the governor refuses to give the names, he will furnish ground for the charge that he was posing and that nobody really attempted to bribe him. It is time for Mr. Mickey to speak. Yes, stand up, governor, and give the names of your would-be bribers, or acknowledge that you are, or that your imagination went astray. Be a man, or a mouse or a long-tailed rat, one.

Heath and Wood.

In condemning Heath and backing General (ought to be plain Doctor) Wood, Roosevelt offers an inconsistency to the public. The circumstances involved in the two cases are not alike, but each is of prominence and importance. The facts tending to warrant a presumption of Heath's conscious connection with the postal scandal are decidedly fewer than those which would justify Wood's promotion. The Bristow report involves Heath but lacks the direct evidence that might be accepted as a reflection upon his integrity. On the other hand, the testimony of Major General Brooke and of Major Rancie before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs seriously affects General (Doctor) Wood, as to both military conduct and the observance of military proprieties.

With reference to Wood, the charges against him should be fully investigated. He should be brought back from the Philippines to make what answer he can. If his explanations are unsatisfactory to the senate committee the latter should not alone refuse to confirm his nomination, but should rebuke him. His nomination should not be confirmed in any event, since his services have not been of such overwhelming importance that recognition of them requires an overturning of army precedents.

The president is too strenuous as a harmonizer of party differences. He summoned Senator Platt and Governor Odell, of New York, to dine at the White House, that they might settle their quarrel over the leadership in their state. Since the meeting, the followers of the Senator and Governor have been more bitter than ever in the dispute as to who received Roosevelt's support. The incident recalls the attempts of the president to bring about harmony between the republican factions in Maryland, just before the last election. Did Senator Platt feel flattered when he heard that Teddy called him "a bully old boy?"

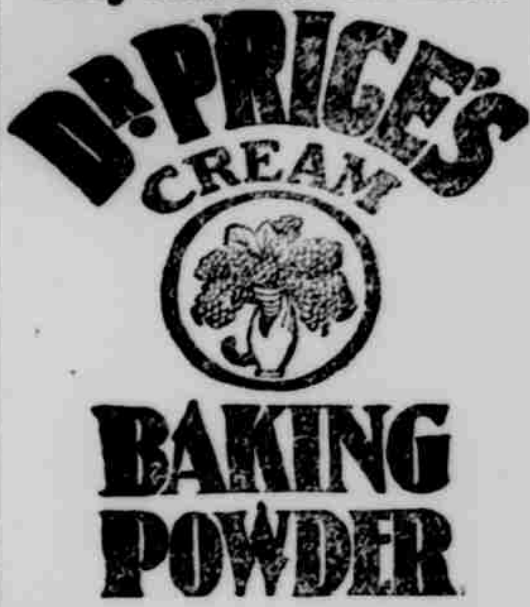

WITH the publication of the Bristow report on the postal scandals, the republicans lay stress on the fact that one of the many officials indicted began his illegal practices during the Cleveland administration. In the case of Perry S. Heath, however, they say there is no object in discussing what occurred several years ago, as the statute of limitations would prevent a criminal prosecution of the offender. Heath is still secretary of the Republican National Committee.

The new British ambassador to this country, who was formerly the English representative in Spain, declared in an interview that the Spaniard loves the American now as much as he does any other nation. He can't love the other nations very much, then.

KING PETER, of Servia, has sent an autograph letter to Roosevelt, informing him of his accession to the throne. Perhaps the manner in which Teddy recognized the revolutionists of Panama raised King Peter's hope for similar recognition.

Carnival of Entertainers.

The next number of the lecture course will be next Tuesday, December 22. On account of the inability to arrange dates this is a substitute for the Hawthorns. It is a much stronger company of the same class and cost more money. The committee feel themselves specially fortunate in securing these unique entertainers. The company offer the most varied program imaginable. The Vernons, mind readers and ventriloquists, the light young and old with striking examples of the most unexplainable of psychic phenomena and sense deception. The Metcalf Brothers, six banjo duettists, please the lovers of stringed instruments and convince the most skeptical of the possibilities of the banjo. Mrs. Mowery, concert pianist, a graduate of the conservatory of music of the Northwestern University, will be enjoyed by all who love good music, well performed.

It would seem that this were enough to start the company in Wm. E. Houston, in his character delineations, humorous impersonations, and musical imitations will "upset the dignity of the judge." In his "Singers I Heard," he uses five separate and distinct voices. He imitates perfectly the cornet, trombone, violin, phonograph and many other instruments and caps. The climax with his own famous imitation of "The Little German Band." Here is an entertainment that will please all classes and give the old and young something that it will pay to hear. They should be greeted with a full house. Seats on sale Monday. Prices 25, 35 and 50c.

Marston Comes to Grief.

J. Forrest Marston, the gentleman who victimized six or eight parties in the vicinity of Elmwood, this county, to the extent of $60 or $70 some time since has at last come to grief, and will be brought here to answer to the charge of fraud. Marston claimed to be doing business for the Casualty Insurance Company, of St. Louis, Mo., (a company unauthorized to do business in the state of Nebraska) and that the company he represents having no authority to transact business in the state, makes him doubly an offender. John L. Pierce, State Insurance Auditor, came down from Lincoln last night and advised Co. Attorney Root of his arrest in that city, but being rather doubtful as to whether they could hold him on the charge which he was arrested upon, insisted on the county attorney issuing a warrant for his arrest for the frauds he perpetrated in this county. So armed with the proper document Sheriff McFrick went to Lincoln today after Marston, who doubt will sleep behind the bars of the Cass county jail to-night.

A Russian General.

Alexei Vasiliyevitch Suvoroff, one of the best generals of the Russian army, used to answer to the admirers of his successes on the battlefield that every man must attain success in life, if he wants to. Through delay many lost their chance for success, and many lost their lives. We can see it every day. If everybody would use Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, as soon as his appetite is impaired, many a disease would never trouble him. This remedy speedily puts the stomach in working order and thus brings health and strength to the body, energy and clearness to the mind. Do not postpone this treatment whenever your stomach is out of order; whenever you are excitable, nervous; whenever your sleep is disturbed; whenever you are despondent. At drug stores, Jcs. Perry's Restaurant Removed.

For some time past Mr. Utterback has contemplated a removal of his restaurant to more roomy quarters in order to accommodate his greatly increased trade. Consequently he leased the Martin building, on Main street, between Fourth and Fifth, and nearly opposite his old stand, and has had the same remodeled in line shape for his restaurant. The restaurant proper occupies the whole lower floor, give him a space of 22 by 85 feet—making it decidedly the most elegant quarters for a restaurant in the city of Plattsmouth. He has gone to the expense of repairing and renovating the building throughout—such as repapering, repainting and decorating, and truly deserves all his present patronage, and more to follow.

Mr. and Mrs. Utterback came to Plattsmouth two years ago and opened a restaurant, and from the moment their doors were thrown open to the public, "Perry's Restaurant" became a household word, and their efforts to please all who come, well established throughout Cass county. It became the home of the farmer and his wife, and now that they have removed to more spacious quarters in order to give them still better accommodations, they should continue to follow the crowd to Perry's new place, where they are always guaranteed the best the markets afford.

Accident at Nehawka.

Claude Johnson, a thirteen year old boy of Nehawka, experienced a very narrow escape from death Tuesday, as a result of climbing on the cars while they were doing some switching in the yards at that place. The young man, it seems, was hanging on the side of a box car, and was looking back to see if the brakeman was watching him, when the back of his head struck against the stock yards chute. He was knocked down and the car ran over one of his hands just below the wrist, cutting it off entirely with the exception of the thumb. His head was also badly cut and bruised, and was considered in critical shape, but at last accounts was yet alive, and strong hopes were entertained for his recovery.
