It seems the president knew a revolution was about to burst at a given date, for he had read many newspaper articles to that effect and had seen recent travelers from Columbia and Panama. All told the same story. Therefore he headed it off, except the killing of one Chinaman, by sending the American navy to the Isthmus to protect American lines and interests. The president asserted proved, $2,100. that Columbia had the power to ratus the canal strip at our own price, and in failing to do so affronted the United States. As the matter is now all settled the senate has only to ratify the treaty, and the business will of course be done.
