REPUBLICANS MEET

THIRTEENTH QUADRENNIAL CONVENTION IN SESSION AT CHICAGO.

Indiana Senator Will Go on the Ticket With Roosevelt—First Day's Proceedings of but Ordinary Interest. Address of Temporary Chairman.

Chicago, June 22.—Without a disturbing element to impede smooth operation, the first day's program of the Republican national convention was carried out like clock work. Not a jarring sound was heard, not a false step was taken. It was an assembly of non-combative delegates, which carried into effect, without the thunderous demonstration usually attendant on political conventions, a purpose that had been clearly defined.

An organization was perfected preparatory to the adoption of a platform and the making of nominations in the succeeding days of the convention. From the quiet, yet unmistakable, enthusiasm provoked by Senator Fairbanks' arrival at the Coliseum, his nomination for vice president is but little less assured than the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president. The keynote to the campaign of 1904 was sounded by Hon. Elihu

THE CHICAGO COLISEUM.
Root in his speech as temporary chairman. His address was a review of accomplishment of the present administration and a defense of Republican policies in general. When that had been delivered and the various working committees dispatched to their labors the business of the first day's session was completed.

Another picture was presented by the opening day so different from the customary convention scene as to attract marked attention. It was the failure of the delegates and spectators to warm to the spirit of the occasion. The mention of President Roosevelt's name was responded to with hearty, though not prolonged, applause. The lack of interest eliminated the necessity for enthusiastic display of feeling and the mild cheering and listless handclapping, which was the greeting given impartially to national figures of the party, was all, probably, that could be expected under the circumstances. The lack of public interest in the convention was evidenced by the large number of spectators' seats vacant. The picture was one of good order, where sergeant-at-arms and policemen were not needed.

Roosevelt Pictures in Evidence.
From a decorative point of view the Coliseum was a success. Foliage and palms softened the general color scheme and formed the setting for large engravings of President Roosevelt used in festooning the national colors above the galleries and ranging entirely around the hall. The crowning feature of the decorations is a painting of the late Senator Hanna, which hangs directly over the platform and occupies the most conspicuous position in the Coliseum. Something of the magnitude of this painting may be realized when it is said that its surface is as great as the combined surface of the sixty large pictures of the president. President Roosevelt, however, was as prominently shown to the delegates in a heroic painting spectacularly unveiled in the chairman's platform at the conclusion of Mr. Root's speech, a climax that brought a prolonged outburst of enthusiasm.

The incidents which are destined to live long after the spasmodic demonstrations have been forgotten are Mr. Root's tribute to President McKinley. The temporary chairman spoke of the late president's administration of progress, his gentleness of character and those qualities so beloved by the nation, and in that connection said, with feeling, "And with McKinley we remember Hanna." A hush, almost oppressive, spread over the 7,000 persons present. The speaker had paused expectantly. As he started to resume, the full force of the tie stretched between the greatest political heroes went home to the delegates. A sympathetic wave of applause was carried to every part of the great hall. The demonstration was unlike any that preceded it or came after it. An indefinable dignity was attached to the demonstration which seemed foreign to a political gathering.

The Fairbanks boom for the vice presidential nomination flourished unresisted during the convention proceedings. Its impetus was gained when the Indiana delegation entered the Coliseum led by the two senators, Mr. Fairbanks and Mr. Beveridge, and proceeded down the aisle to their seats near the stage. The ovation given Senator Fairbanks was greater than was received by any of his distinguished colleagues. The proceedings afforded no opportunity for the advancement of other candidates. No mention was made of the names of other favorite sons, whose ambitions are not taken seriously beyond the boundaries of their own states. The applause for Senator Fairbanks appeared to be general. The placidity of political opponents, as they sat in the convention hall, welded to substantial citizenship, unanimously agreeing on principles and differing only on non-essentials, was one of the features of the convention. The New York delegation, which occupied one of the positions of honor directly in front of the platform, furnished a good example of the prevailing harmony. On the opposite side was the Illinois delegation, which had a bitter fight within its ranks as late as yesterday. If any soreness remains to all outward appearances it has been healed.

Applause for Allison.
State pride figured strongly in the convention. Each state had its friends in the galleries who showered plaudits upon their great men as they entered the Coliseum. The first "big man" to arrive was Senator Allison. The Iowa contingent cheered its welcome and it was taken up by surrounding visitors as they recognized the Hawkeye statesman Senator Depew, Senator Culbom, Speaker Cannon, Mr. Gosswort, Mr. Root, Senator Penrose, Senator Scott and other early arrivals received their share of applause. The floor filled with delegates so rapidly that many prominent figures slipped in unnoticed. Among these was Senator Lodge, who is accredited with having a more intimate knowledge of what the convention is doing than any man. Before the gathering was called to order by Henry C. Payne, chairman of the national committee, Senator Lodge moved about among the delegations and his ear was sought frequently by embryonic platform makers. The Massachusetts man never stopped long enough, however, to grow intimate. The first speech at the convention was by Senator Scott, who informally presented Chairman Payne with a beautiful gavel. It was left to Governor Van Sant of Minnesota first to place the president's name before the convention. He found the occasion in presenting to the convention a table which had been built by the manual training school connected with the South Minneapolis high school. The applause was general, but not long continued, and in that set a precedent, which was followed in succeeding demonstrations.

Seat Colonial Delegates.
The first day's program of the convention was not of a nature to attract more than ordinary interest. The matter of greatest importance was the presenting to the convention of the proposition to admit the delegations from the Philippine islands and Porto Rico. Mr. Root asked for a ruling on the question of calling the names of the new possessions in the roll for the naming of members of the various committees. The convention ordered the seating and recognition of six delegates from the Philippines with two votes and two delegates from Porto Rico. Shortly before the adjournment for the day Senator Depew was recognized to deliver to the convention an invitation from President Francis and the directors of the Louisiana Purchase exposition to delegates and members of the press to visit the fair at St. Louis before returning to their homes. Senator Depew started to read the invitation from his seat, but at the demand of delegates and spectators he mounted the platform. There he passed the invitation over to a clerk to read. When it was concluded Chairman Root suggested that the senator might want to make a few remarks. The suggestion was accepted, and in recommending that the invitation be accepted, Mr. Depew said that the Democrats are claiming the credit of raising an empire peacefully on the ground that the party, through Jefferson, had bought the land. The Republicans, he said, had tilted it and were going to share the harvest. The invitation was accepted.

Fight on Tariff.
The tariff plank agreed upon by the subcommittee on resolutions declares for the "cardinal principles of protection," and further that "the rate of duty should be the difference between the cost of production in the United States and abroad. The rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands it. All such changes should be made by the Republican party."

A long paragraph was adopted in relation to reciprocity after a very exciting and protracted contest by a bare majority. It is an agreement for "commercial reciprocity, which is possible only under a protective tariff and whenever reciprocity arrangements can be perfected without injury to any industry."

The opposition to the reciprocity plank was led by Mr. Blythe of Iowa, Representative Daltzell and Senator Hansbrough, while Senator Lodge and Senator Forsaker persisted in an effort to secure the declaration. More time was spent on this issue than all the remainder of the platform and all opponents only consented to agree when it appeared that the fight might be taken into the committee on resolutions and possibly before the convention.

Rain and Hail Storms.
Lincoln, June 20.—Damaging wind, rain and hail storms swept over sections of southeastern Nebraska. At Lincoln there was a short but terrific downpour of rain, accompanied by wind, but the damage was slight. East of here it was more severe. Near the town of McCool, in York county, a strip of country six miles long and a half mile wide was devastated by hail and crops ruined.

Lincoln, June 21.—Jacob Both, a laborer, is in the county jail, charged with attempting to wreck the Denver flyer on the Burlington. The attempt was made near the town of Denton. Suspicion was directed toward Both and his capture followed.

Marshall of the Moody Bible institute delivered an address on the work of the bible schools.

Sudden Death at Lincoln.
Lincoln, June 21.—While loading brick at the Young-Cole yards M. H. Hiskey fell from his wagon and broke his neck. No one witnessed the accident, and it is supposed Hiskey was overcome by the heat, as he had been working hard and toppled off the board running from the wagon to the brick pile. His head caught between the wagon wheel and the board and his neck was broken. He leaves a widow and one child. Levi West, aged fourteen years, dropped dead on the back porch of his home on South Nineteenth street, presumably of heart failure. The boy was assisting in the family washing, when he suddenly fell over dead. His remains will be taken to Grand Island for burial.

Nebraska Crop Conditions.
Lincoln, June 22.—The higher temperature of the past week has been very favorable for the growth of vegetation. Winter wheat is well headed, and in a few places in southern counties is lodging slightly. Oats have improved somewhat, but in many places the stand is thin and some places are spotted with yellow and unthrifty looking. Grass in pastures and meadows continues in unusually fine condition. Alfalfa is being cut for the first time and the crop is generally a heavy one. In southern counties the crop is mostly cut and considerable damage was done by the rain of the week. Corn has done well, but is still small and many fields are weedy. However, substantial progress has been made in clearing the fields of weeds.

Killed by Foul Tip.
Indiana, Pa., June 22.—During a game of baseball between the Johns town amateurs and the Indiana Normals, George Thomas, catcher for the Johnstons, was almost instantly killed by being hit over the heart by a foul tip.

Two Drowned in Niagara River.

Insane Man Starts School Parls.

Democrats Adjourn Convention.
York, Neb., June 22.—The fourth Nebraska district Democratic congressional convention met here last evening, but without nominating a candidate adjourned to an undetermined date, with the understanding that it be at the same time and place as the Populist convention.

Agitate the Canteen Question.
Chadron, Neb., June 20.—Already the camp is being prepared on the Bordeaux for the old soldiers and set there reunion to be held from July 1 to 14 inclusive. This is looked upon as the great event of the summer season in northwest Nebraska. Hundreds of tents are already engaged for the affair and the committee is now wrestling with the question of canteen or no canteen.

Land Withdrawn for Fort Niobrara.
Washington, June 22.—On the application of Secretary Taft, the president will direct the secretary of the interior to reserve from public entry a tract of 23,000 acres of land adjoining Fort Niobrara, Nebraska, to be held for possible military purposes. It is likely that some recommendations will be made by the war department to congress relative to the future uses of this tract.

Harvest Hands Plentiful.
Lincoln, June 20.—Nebraska will certainly send its quota of 21,000 men wanted by the farmers of Kansas to harvest their wheat crop. Though the notice was published only a day ago, men and boys wanting jobs have since that time thronged the office of the labor commissioner. During the last twenty-four hours there have been 268 applicants who filed their names for places when the low rates on the railroads go into effect this week. A great many of those who have applied are students who desire to spend the summer working that they may be able to pay their way through school next winter.

NEBRASKA POPULISTS MEET.
Delegates to National Convention at Springfield Are Selected.
Fremont, Neb., June 22.—The Populists of Nebraska, in state convention assembled, declared for a presidential ticket of their own, by an overwhelming vote, but at the same time defeated an amendment specifically demanding that the nominees on that ticket be members of the Populist party. Forty-eight delegates were selected to represent the state at the national convention that is to be held at Springfield, Ill., on July 4.

A resolution, which was introduced by former Senator W. V. Allen, is generally admitted to favor fusion with the Bryan Democracy, in the event that the latter secures control of the St. Louis convention, but that it demands a straight Populist ticket in the event of the supremacy of the Cleveland wing of the party.

PORTFOLIO FOR PAUL MORTON
President Roosevelt Tenders Secretaryship of Navy to Nebraskan.
Washington, June 21.—The Post says: President Roosevelt has formally invited Paul Morton to become a member of his official family as secretary of the navy. Mr. Morton has the matter under consideration and has not yet given any intention of acceptance or declination. It is believed he will decline. He is a delegate to the Republican national convention. The tender of the naval portfolio was made to Mr. Morton last Wednesday when he came to this city from Chicago in response to an invitation from the president. If he accepts Mr. Morton will be accredited to Nebraska where he lived for many years, although now a business resident of Chicago. The president urged him in the strongest possible terms to accept the place. The friends of Morton believe he will decline. He was offered a position on the isthmian canal commission, but refused it. Mr. Morton is the son of the late J. Sterling Morton, who was secretary of agriculture in the second cabinet of President Cleveland. He is forty-seven years old and has devoted all his mature life to railroad interests. Mr. Morton was affiliated with the Democratic party until recently.

Two Drowned in Niagara River.
Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 22.—Ernest Payne and Miss Mabel Bonaker of this city lost their lives during a squall on the Niagara river. Their boat was overturned. Payne's body was recovered.
