W. J. Philpot, one of the most prosperous young farmers of Mt. Pleasant precinct, was a caller one day recently. He said he had 155 acres of corn out, and was just completing the first plowing. The Philpot brothers shipped two cars of stock cattle to their ranch in the sand hills on the 14th. They have 500 fat cattle in their yards, which they have been feeding since February, and they are now about ready to turn off. At the price cattle are selling he said they figured on a good margin of profit.

Mrs. Wm. Wollen went to Omaha Saturday to meet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McPherson, of Stuart, Iowa, who came on a visit. Few are as lucky as Mrs. Wollen, to entertain their parents who are at the advanced age of 90 and 88 years old, and both get along remarkably and bid fair to enjoy many more years together.

Prof. O. J. Standley, who will be principal of our schools, was here yesterday taking a preliminary view of the work and getting acquainted with our people. He made this office a very pleasant visit, and has already formed a favorable opinion of his new field of educational work.

Born January 28, 1887, in Liberty precinct, Cass county, Neb., died at 6:15 p. m., on Saturday, June 18, 1904, at his home in Union, Neb., J. Glen Douge. So indeed is the recording of a death in any instance, and when it applies to the death of a young man born and reared in our midst and whom we have seen grow from infancy, the record is most difficult. Glen's death was not altogether unexpected, for during all his illness, from June 3, it was observed that his condition was growing more serious, even though at times there appeared a slight temporary improvement. His first complaint was June 3, when he suffered an attack of stomach trouble, followed by complications which baffled the best medical skill. He remained in a comatose condition all the time, but until within fifteen minutes of his death he apparently recognized those about him. Deceased was the son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. Oregon C. Douge. He was born only a short distance north of this village, and his whole life has been spent here.

The name that means quality is Patton's Sun Proof Paint. Sold only by Gering & Co.

George Daggett and wife of Idaho are visiting relatives and old time friends in Greenwood. This couple were pioneers near Greenwood and left here for the west twenty-seven years ago. Mr. Daggett spoke of the many changes that have come about in that time and said that one could hardly realize how much the country had changed in the last quarter of a century.

In the district court at Plattsmouth Judge Jessen heard the case of Peter Smith, who was seeking to open a saloon in Greenwood against the remonstrance of the temperance people. Twice before the judge ordered this saloon closed until the hearing, but his final decision is in favor of Smith, and the saloon will be reopened. The village trustees had granted Smith a license several weeks ago.

I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea he used, as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus; it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

Nehawka

Sunday afternoon Agent T. G. Hymer, accompanied by J. H. Allen, general agent for the Missouri Pacific at Lincoln, two prominent contractors, and the city engineer of Lincoln, were making a tour of the stone quarries and the prospective quarries in this neighborhood, with a view to placing a large contract for stone shipments or inducing these men to open up new quarries on the lines of the Missouri Pacific. They had inspected the quarries now operated by Mr. Van Court and had taken the hand car and went east of Nehawka about two miles, to look at a prospective stone site. On returning to town, and while passing through the famous cut east of town, which is regarded as the most dangerous place on the division, they had just entered the death trap, which is a very deep cut with a reverse curve, and unexpectedly to them an extra, which consisted of an engine and caboose, dashed upon them which could only be seen a short distance, probably not twenty yards ahead, running at full speed. The alarm was given and all jumped from the hand car and made their getaway over the embankment and were scarcely in the clear when the engine struck the hand car with great force, putting it completely out of service. The party was compelled to purchase tie tickets into town, and the visitors departed on the fast train for Lincoln.
