Miss Clara Street, accompanied by her Euterpean Glee Club, made the rounds of the city Saturday evening and gave their friends a taste of what they had accomplished in the vocal line. They stopped in front of the Journal domicile a few moments, and we were very favorably impressed with the vocal attainments of the young people, which reflected great credit upon their instructor. "Music bath charms to soothe the savage beast," but this didn't seem to be the object of the club, for we wish to draw the line at the club "yell" as they started away from the house.

George Tiele, oil and brother of Cedar Creek have recently purchased a new thrashing machine of the latest modern improvement. The engine is a 1-horse power and is a dandy for the work. The machine contains a seed-filling separator, and they make a specialty of threshing direct from the sheaf. Oats that were harvested on Monday they threshed on Tuesday. Those who have seen this machine in action say it does most excellent work and the way the boys work it is a great saying to those for whom they thresh. The Thieroff Brothers are hustlers, and do their work with neatness and dispatch.

The Glenwood Chautauque. Tomorrow opens the Glenwood Chautauque, which will continue over Sunday, August 7. An excellent program has been carefully prepared for each day. Next Monday will be one of the biggest days of the season, the reason of the great demand being Gen. Grinstead, Ohio's long champion, and Champ Clark, Missouri's gifted son. These are both international gladiators, both members of the same congress and both very talented orators, though differing politically. The debate, "Republicanism vs. Progressivism" will be contested to the very end in a most able manner. Both are well-known and have national reputations, and it will be well worth your while to travel to hear. Saturday I met with our own favorite, Mr. J. Bryan, will lecture on "The Impression of Europe."

A citizen on the street the other day remarked that "a commercial club didn't do a town any good." We was not long in finding out that he brought his supplies of Montgomery, Ward & Co., and loaned money to his next door neighbor at 10 per cent. straight.

Narrow Escape From Death.

Just as the Journal was going to press with this issue we learn of a serious and almost fatal accident that occurred at the farm of Charles Spangler, one-half mile north of Murray last evening. T. J. Rhoden and his outfit were engaged in threshing oats. Among the men engaged in the work was James Privett of this city, who was employed as separator tender. They had momentarily stopped the machine to repack the piston of the engine. While this was being done Privett, for some reason, and unknown to any of the men about the machine, got into the blower at the back of the separator, and when the engine was ready the machine was slowly started and Privett was caught in the fan. Not having gotten fairly started his body struck the fan and threw off the blower belt, which was all that saved his life. Dr. Livingston of this city was called and found Mr. Privett's left leg broken above the ankle and his body otherwise badly bruised. Mr. Rhoden, the owner of the machine, regrets the accident, and says this is the first serious one that he has experienced in all his threshing career. The unfortunate man is now at the home of Lloyd Gopen, near Murray.

A Full Fledged Case.

For some time Dr. E. D. Cummins has had under his care a case which to his mind resembled that of small-pox, in the Barker family, four miles north of Plattsmouth. He felt a little juberous about terming it such until he was better satisfied, as some thought it was chicken-pox. So in order to relieve his mind from any further suspense, he summoned Dr. Towne of Omaha, a member of the state board of health, to inspect the case. Dr. Towne came down Monday morning and Dr. Cummins conveyed him direct to the Barker home, where after a thorough investigation, Dr. Towne agreed with Dr. Cummins that it was a full-fledged case of small-pox, but of a mild form. There seems to have been several cases of similar nature in that neighborhood the past few months, but all had been pronounced chicken-pox.

The Glenwood Chautauque.

Tomorrow opens the Glenwood Chautauque, which will continue over Sunday, August 7. An excellent program has been carefully prepared for each day. Next Monday will be one of the biggest days of the season, the reason of the great demand being Gen. Grinstead, Ohio's long champion, and Champ Clark, Missouri's gifted son. These are both international gladiators, both members of the same congress and both very talented orators, though differing politically.
