Keep Them at Home.

We hear considerable complaint from citizens in the north part of the city, some of them being aroused from their peaceful slumbers to answer the ringing of the door bell or the loud knocking at the door, to find no one there when the same was opened. This was done at a number of houses last night by young boys who should have New fall and winter millinery at been at home in bed if their parents have any control over them. Such action is an outrage, and their parents should be compelled to pay a fine for their disturbing the peace and quiet of those who had gone to rest. Such actions are more the fault of the parents than it is the "kids." They should keep them at home at night.
