mankind would have to invent milk. Milk is Nature's emulsion—butter put in shape for digestion. Cod liver oil is extremely nourishing, but it has to be emulsified before we can digest it.

Scott's Emulsion

combines the best oil with the valuable hypophosphites so that it is easy to digest and does far more good than the oil alone could. That makes Scott's Emulsion the most strengthening, nourishing food-medicine in the world.

Culminates in a Conflict.
As the culmination of a week's combat over the floating of class pennants, a hand-to-hand conflict took place Wednesday at midnight between the juniors and seniors of the Louisville high school. The senior flag was fired upon by the juniors; a scuffle ensued in which neither side seem to have gained any prestige. Superintendent Gaines found it necessary to interfere and a compromise has been reached.

STIRS UP VETERINARIANS

Believe Law Regulating Veterinary Surgery Has Some Serious Flaws.

A Lincoln correspondent says: "Veterinary surgeons are stirred up over the new law, passed by the last legislature, to regulate the profession."

"The law was given little attention until a few days ago when it was announced that warrants would be issued for those who are not complying with its conditions."

"This announcement opened the eyes of the horse doctors, and they began to examine the provisions of the new law more closely."

"Some of the provisions are rather drastic. One clause makes it necessary for all graduates of another state to pass the examination in this state, regardless of the years they have been devoted to the profession. If the horse doctor does not pass the examination he is barred from practice in this state."

"Veterinarians believe that the law should be modified so that the diploma of a recognized college should be accepted. They say that a state examination of this kind is a poor test of a man's ability. The questions are technical and will stagger an old practitioner while a graduate from college, not so familiar with the practical end of the business, has them at his tongue's end. When he gets down to the political side of the question he gets rusty."

The veterinarians believe the law is too drastic and they will try and see if there is not some way around the more rigid provisions of the act which will not inconvenience old veterinarians who are not graduates of Nebraska.

"They assert that the law, as at present framed, gives the state university an unlawful monopoly of the business. Other states, they claim, recognize a diploma issued by an old and well established institution."

Three Score Years.

The times are out of joint; we do not know
Today, where we are at, nor whence, nor why,
Things which were once as clear as noon-day sun
Have gone a-glimmering in a hazy sky.
We've lost our bearings, where can truth be found?
All men are liars—or words to that effect—
And e'en the women, on occasion, can
Prevaricate a little, we suspect.

This surely may be called "The Gilded Age."
For gold is god, and crowned king of kings,
And he who has the most, tho' he be least
Is made a ruler over many things.
Men on whose honesty we would have staked
Our life, have fallen from their places high,
And we to this conclusion have been forced,
There's but one honest man, and that is I.

This is a day of greed, of grafts and schemes.
We scarcely dare pick up a magazine,
For every page contains an expose
Of some infernal swindling machine.
The word "fidelity" is meaningless,
Justice and honor on the shelf are laid,
And the respected modern model man
Would put young Don Juan quite in the shade.

We go to church on Sunday, as of yore,
Because we would the Ten Commandments keep.
Where are the good old rousing gospel sounds?
The preacher's gentle tones lull us to sleep.
Once Hell was dreared as a real place
Of seething brimstone, and a lake of fire,
Now it exists but in the "mortal mind,"
And Heaven's "the granting of the soul's desire."

We do not care for the new-fangled things,
Modern religions, and the latest fads;
But give us back our old-time trusting faith
In Lydia Pinkham's pale-pink liver-pads.
We've lived too long; there is no place for us
In modern life; let Osler take us now
And do his worst, whatever that may be,
To get us out of this, we care not how.

SHE TRIED PLAYING GHOST RIPRAP FORCE GETS SCARED

A Young Lady of Lincoln Gets Badly Injured While Acting the Damphool.

The Lincoln News tells of a story of a hunt for a ghost that inhabits a Lincoln house which resulted in a distressing injury to one of the participants, is related by a prominent Lincoln doctor who refused to give names. The adventure happened early Sunday morning.

Two citizens who had heard that a certain uninhabited dwelling in the neighborhood was inhabited by spooks had their curiosity aroused to such a pitch that they determined to investigate. The investigation, however, proved disastrous to the wife of one.

The latter learned that her husband and his friend were going to invade the mysterious dwelling and she determined to have a little fun at their expense. Watching for their departure she waited till they were within the alleged haunted place then she quickly threw a sheet over herself and followed.

When the improvised spirit reached the house her husband was up stairs waiting for ghosts and his friend down stairs, cautiously performing the same stunt. When the white robed figure without warning was seen standing in the door this man was for a moment paralyzed with fear. Then he got quick action on himself.

Picking up a heavy bucket near he threw it with considerable force right at the head of the "ghost," and ran from the house. The bucket struck the woman on the temple and the alleged apparition fell heavily to the floor.

When the husband came down stairs he was amazed to find a woman lying unconscious on the floor, her head in a pool of blood. He was still more surprised to find it was his wife.

After she had been revived it was necessary to send for a physician to take four stitches in order to sew up the ugly gash in her head.

Hunting for alleged ghosts and attempting to impersonate them has been tabooed in two households in the future.

Cattle Too High.

John Petrie, live stock agent for the Burlington, tells the Lincoln Journal that he does not look for a heavy movement from the Texas ranges to the northwest ranges of cattle this spring. He says the Texas owners are asking too high a price for their cattle—more than the range men of the northwest will pay. There may be a small movement, but he does not look for it to equal past movements. Later on the Texas owners may drop their prices, and a late movement of some magnitude may follow. The ranges were not sold short this year, and their output will be considerable even with small receipts from the south.

"Old Muddy" Washes Out Large Logs Nearly One Hundred Feet in Length.

SHOOT FROM WATERY DEPTHS BELOW

Nine of These Monstrous Logs Observed Yesterday Afternoon. Theory Advanced That River is Resuming Old Channel.

While the rippapping force were weaving mats yesterday afternoon to place in the river where it is cutting the Iowa banks, they were suddenly startled from their work by seeing a long black object which appeared to be several feet in diameter, leap up from the black depths below and project several feet above the water. They were very much relieved, however, to discover that the source of their scare was only a slimy log about one hundred feet in length. During the afternoon they observed nine such logs, ranging in length from eighty to one hundred feet, shoot out of the water and float away. The logs seemed to come from the bottom of the river, and the theory is advanced that the river is resuming an old channel in course of which it is washing out former deposits.

The "Old Muddy" still continues to wash away portions of the Iowa banks above the rippap work put in by the Burlington last year, but the force of men, under the supervision of D. C. Woodring, superintendent of bridges on the Burlington, are now in a position to carry on the rippap work with less difficulty, as the river is rapidly resuming its normal height; having receded over a foot since yesterday.

A VERY COMMENDABLE ACT

The Kind that Emanates Only from Noble and Kindly Hearted Men.

A man who can reach down from the pinnacle of fame, or lofty position, and touch hand and heart with common people is a great man. He is a greater man who knows when to set aside the law in the name of suffering humanity than the wise statesman who makes the law. A man who from his lofty station hears the cry and listens to the pleadings of a dying woman in lowly station among the common people is greater than a victorious warrior. It requires a great man to find time to sympathize with the sick and dying among the lowly and common people.

Last week United States Marshal Warner of Omaha received word that the young wife of Harry Welch, one of the men who was convicted with Rev. Ware in the land fraud cases, was dying in a hospital at St. Joseph, Mo., and was piteously pleading to see her husband. After consulting with Judge Munger, Marshal Warner telegraphed to Attorney General Moody asking for permission to take the prisoner under guard to see his dying wife. Moody cold-bloodedly replied that there was no law warranting him granting such a request. The big-hearted marshal's sympathies were now aroused and he wired to Congressman Hinshaw to see President Roosevelt. He reached the white house at an early hour and, as though the pleadings of the dying woman had already penetrated the white house walls, he was admitted. The telegram was read by the president who immediately wrote this order to Moody across the face of Marshal Warner's message:

"Under authority of the president you are directed to send prisoner Welch immediately under proper guard to St. Joseph, Mo., to see his wife who is fatally ill. I will take the consequences for my act."

It Wouldn't Work.

Some of the large department stores in the large cities send out offers to form clubs and promise to sell goods cheaper than they can be purchased of the home merchant. A club of this nature was formed in this city and after they had purchased several bills of goods the members found they were not getting the goods as cheap as they could purchase them at home, so the club has gone to pieces and the members are once more doing their trading with home merchants. If these people would form a club at home, bunch their cash and purchase as large bills from the home merchant as they send away for they would soon find they could purchase much cheaper here than elsewhere and they would be leaving their money with home merchants, aiding them in paying their share of the tax burden and building up the town. However people cannot expect to purchase goods as cheap from the home merchant on credit and have him wait for a year or perhaps longer for his money, cheap as they can buy for cash. Pay cash and you can always buy here as cheap, if not cheaper than you can by sending away from home. Try it and be convinced.—Nebraska City News.

What the Law Means.

The present revenue law contemplates the giving in of all property at its actual value; not at what it might bring at sheriff's sale, or if the owner were forced to sell at a sacrifice, but what he would ask, if he were trying to sell at what he considered his property worth. The farmer who gets his land assessed at $5 an acre when he knows he wouldn't take $50 for it, the owner of town property who gives it in at $2,000 when he would ask $3,500 for it and feel cheated if he didn't get it, the merchant who places a value of $4,000 upon his stock of goods when he knows it will invoice at nearer $10,000, has no right to complain if the railroads or other corporations are assessed at figures far below what they ought to be. They are simply playing the same game he is, and have beaten him to it.

Use Linseed Oil.

The boilers in the shops of the Burlington have been fitted up with a device for the consumption of oil instead of coal. Several of the smaller furnaces of the shops have been given oil for testing purposes, and the results have been so satisfactory and so economical that it has been decided to adopt the idea more extensively. In case of a bituminous coal famine the crude oil will enable the company to maintain the operations of its shops. It is believed that even if the strike is settled that oil will be retained as the permanent fuel for the boilers.—Kansas City Journal.
