A QUESTION TO BE SETTLED

The Matter as to Whether the County Judge is Required to Report Marriage Fees.

County Attorney Slabaugh of Douglas county has given an opinion to the county commissioners, holding with Judge Cornish of Lancaster county that the county judge need not report fees collected by him for performing marriage ceremonies. The opinion in effect is that these fees belong to the county judge and not to the county.

The opinion of the county attorney is based on Judge Cornish's decision in the district court of Lancaster county in a case wherein the county commissioners sought to collect marriage fees from County Judge Waters. Judge Cornish decided in favor of the county judge. The case was not carried to the supreme court.

County Attorney Slabaugh said as far as he was concerned no test case would be brought Douglas county, as he was satisfied with the opinion of Judge Cornish. He said he would bring such a case if the commissioners wanted him to. Deputy County Attorney Shotwell had previously given an opinion to the commissioners to the effect the fees for performing marriage ceremonies belong to the county judge and should be reported by the county judge the same as other fees. The fees amount to about $90 a month on an average.

County Judge Leslie is not satisfied to accept as final the opinion of the county attorney that he is not required to report the marriage fees to the county and will demand that a test case be brought which will result in a decision by the supreme court. While the county attorney's opinion is in his favor, he declares he will not be satisfied until a final opinion is had from the supreme court. The opinion of Judge Cornish, as understood here, is to the effect the county judge has no right to accept a fee at all.

"I think it is only fair to the commissioners, the taxpayers and the county judge's office that we have an adjudication of this matter by the supreme court," said Judge Leslie yesterday afternoon. "As it is now I am uncertain as to how I should proceed. If I accept a fee for marrying a couple someone may charge me with wrongfully accepting money. If I do not I may be held responsible for the fee and be required to pay it out of my own pocket. If the matter is not settled now, after I go out of office someone may bring it up against me."

"I think I am entitled to a decision of the supreme court and if there is no other way I will start proceedings myself or have them started to determine the matter."

"From what I know of the opinions of the commissioners," said County Auditor Robert Smith, "I do not think they will let the matter drop, but will insist on a decision from the supreme court. I do not think the matter will be settled this side of the supreme court."

Todd Adamson Nuptials.

A pretty church wedding which was witnessed by only a few friends, occurred Friday evening when Nicholas E. Todd and Miss Bertha E. Adamson, were united in marriage at the St. Luke church by the pastor, Rev. Burgess. The groom was attired in a dark blue business suit, and the bride in net over white silk. The best man was Tom Will, a close friend of the groom, and the bridesmaid Miss May Thomas.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Todd, and has many friends throughout the county who will be pleased to hear of his fortunate marriage to Miss Bertha Adamson, who is the highly esteemed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Adamson.

The Journal joins the many friends and relatives in best wishes to the happy young couple who will be at home on the farm west of the city leased by the groom.

REMEMBERED BY PIONEERS

Incidents in the Career of Peter B. Sarpy, a Well Known Character of Early Days.

There are a number of old settlers in Plattsmouth and vicinity, yet living, who were well acquainted with Peter B. Sarpy. To these old settlers especially, will the following incidents in the career of this odd character, taken from the Glenwood Tribune, prove interesting:

"One of the most striking and picturesque characters in the early-day history of Mills county was Peter A. Sarpy—by courtesy called 'Colonel.' He is said to have been a mixture of French, Spanish and Indian blood.

Sarpy came to this region in a very early day and was for many years an Indian agent, operating up and down the Missouri river. He had extensive dealings with the redskins and among his other matrimonial acquisitions had a squaw wife.

Many of the older residents of Mills county remember Sarpy and many are the stories they have to tell of him. Horace and Gilbert Cheney, of Emerson, were in their younger days residents of Glenwood and to the Tribune man one day lately related some interesting tales about Sarpy, with whom they were acquainted.

They tell that at one time Sarpy had incurred the enmity of the Indians and would have been killed by them but for the quick wit and heroism of his squaw wife.

Sarpy was being pursued by the redskins over near Plattsmouth, they having no trouble in tracking him on account of his white man's boots.

To throw them off the trail his Indian squaw proceeded to load him on her back and in this manner carried him for 17 or 18 miles, thus successfully eluding his bloodthirsty pursuers.

Another story told by them was that of a brutal piece of work on the part of Sarpy. He was driving a mowing machine one day when he encountered a man by the name of Jack Ganley lying in the grass drunk.

Sarpy yelled at Ganley to get out of the way or he would run over him. Ganley was either too drunk to heed the warning or else thought the swarthy Indian trader was bluffing.

But Sarpy was as good as his word and recklessly slashed ahead with the mower and Ganley was made a cripple for life by the injuries inflicted. Ganley was a well known early day blacksmith and wagon maker in Glenwood.

Mrs. James Greig, of Hastings, says that Sarpy was the first man to bring a single-top buggy to Mills county. As a girl she lived at Old Pacific and many a time she has seen him standing up in his buggy and driving full-tilt down the long Pacific hill, leading from Glenwood, yelling and swearing all the way like a Comanche Indian.

Sarpy was loud, boisterous, very profane, and loved to be doing something sensational most of the time.

Aunt Fanny Gilliland was an early-day settler on the Missouri bottom and lived only a short distance from the old town of St. Mary where Sarpy kept a store. She knew him well.

She relates a story of how Sarpy one time bought a wife. A couple from the East were passing through St. Mary when Sarpy took a fancy to the woman, and offered the man a good round sum for her.

The offer was accepted, the money was paid over, and the man went on west. By previous arrangement the woman remained a few weeks, then slipped away and joined her husband, leaving Sarpy in the lurch.

Aunt Fanny also tells of another prank that was played on Sarpy. He bought many furs from the Indians. One day a redskin brought in a particularly valuable fur. A night or two later he stole it and brought it back and sold it over again to Sarpy.

This process was repeated several times. One day Sarpy discovered the trick and set a trap. The next morning he found Mr. Redskin tight in the trap. Then it was Sarpy's turn to laugh.

DEATH OF LYMAN KILDOW

Expires at 7 O'clock Friday Morning After an Illness of Ten Days.

After a sickness lasting about ten days, Lyman Kildow died Friday morning shortly after seven o'clock at his home in this city. He had complained of not feeling well about a month ago, but still persisted in continuing his duties as janitor at the court house until he became worse, so as to be confined to his room, remaining there until relieved of his suffering by death.

The deceased was born in the state of Illinois on the 28th day of January, 1862, and resided there until he removed to Plattsmouth in 1880. He was united in marriage with Miss Emiline Conant in the year 1883, but having had no children the relatives left to mourn his demise are the wife, one sister, Mrs. John Smith, of Council Bluffs, Ia., and three brothers, namely: Elias, Thomas and John.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Woodmen of the World, and the last sad rites at the grave will be conducted by the local Aerie of Eagles, of which lodges the deceased was a member.

Plattsmouth Has Only One.

The Lincoln News says that there have been registered 715 automobiles in the entire state, and deducting 255 owned in Omaha and Lincoln, there remain 460 owned in the smaller cities and towns. The greater number of these are owned in the towns in the central and western part of the state, Grand Island and Holdrege following closely after Kearney, while Plattsmouth has a single runabout and Nebraska City is fixed but little better. This may or may not be on account of greater wealth and prosperity in the west, but it is surmised that good level roads in that section have much to do with influencing people to purchase motors. The first freight truck has just been registered from this city. There are two others in the state, both of them being owned in Omaha. Nebraska City has five autos, and several more will be purchased before the close of the season.

Opening a New Stone Quarry.

A special from Louisville to the Omaha Bee, says: "A company has been formed here known as the Louisville Stone company, with Tom E. Parmele, president and George H. Wood, secretary and treasurer. The Missouri Pacific Railway company will put in a switch to the quarry within the next ten days. These are sand quarries and the company will put in machinery to dress the stone in any shape or size required."

Gets Hand and Foot Crushed.

John Roetel and family arrived Friday night from Grand Island where he has been employed in the bridge department of the Burlington. They will visit here with relatives while John recuperates from a serious accident, that he sustained while at work. The scaffold work of one of the bridges gave way, falling and crushing John's right hand and cutting off one of the toes of his right foot. He considers himself very fortunate to have escaped so easily, although he will be compelled to lay off for several weeks.

One-Half Pension to Wife.

The National Tribune of recent date refers to an act of Congress of March 3, 1899, which provides that in case a soldier deserts his wife for six months or more and leaves her dependent, one half of his pension will be paid to her upon proper proof of desertion. Also one-half of pension of a soldier in a soldier's home will go to his wife unless she be also in the home.

Failed to Send Name.

The Journal is in receipt of a communication entitled "Lawlessness," and signed "Tax-payer," which contains a few very timely suggestions regarding the city schools, and the recent acts of the class of 1906. It is positively against the rules of this paper to publish such communications unless accompanied by the full name of the author. This is the only reason why we refuse to give the same a place in our columns.

Pirating Foley's Honey and Tar.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey & Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. Interest in Their Home Town.

We are in receipt of the Fremont Daily Tribune, giving an account of the annual banquet of the commercial club of that city held on Monday night last. It shows that the business men of Fremont are alive to the interests of the city, and that they working together in harmony. At this meeting everything passed off enthusiastically and they renewed their allegiance to the welfare of their town and agreed to do more for Fremont the next year than has been done in any previous year. Fremont has thrived and prospered as no other city in its class in Nebraska has prospered during the past year, and this condition is due to the work of the commercial club. The Journal cites these facts to the business men of Plattsmouth in the hope that they may awake from their dormant state and join hands, as the business men of Fremont have done and work together for the building up of Plattsmouth, instead of cutting each other's throats. "Throw aside all that jealous feeling, be neighborly with your brother merchant, and you will find in the long run you will feel happier and that you will prosper better and the town will renew the old life she used to boast of, and that the entire city and her people will prosper in consequence."

A Visit From An Old Friend.

The Journal family were most agreeably surprised Thursday when our old friend, Frank C. Cross, now of Kansas City, Mo., stepped in upon us. The Journal family first knew Mr. Cross at Grant City—twenty-five years ago, and it has been fifteen years since we have seen him. He was then a railway mail clerk, but for the past nine years has been traveling out of K. C. for a large wholesale general hardware house, and has been coming to Plattsmouth once a year for the time employed by this house. He says he did not know until he attended the Portland exposition last year that we were here, when he was told by Hon. E. S. Garver, then one of the Missouri commissioners to the exposition, and now editor of the Worth County Times, a paper we published fifteen years ago. We were awful glad to meet Frank, and spent several hours in a most pleasant conversation about old times in Grant City, Mo.

Judicial Division Bill Dead.

A special to the Bee from Washington says: "The judicial division bill is dead for this session of congress. There are so many and more vital things pending in which the Nebraska delegation is interested that it has practically decided to allow the bill to rest in the judiciary committee of the house until the short session."

Married in Council Bluffs.

The following special from Council Bluffs, Iowa, under date of Thursday, appears in the Lincoln Journal: "Mr. Charles Yoken of Elmwood, Neb., and Miss Eva Helms of Greenwood, Neb., were married last evening at the parsonage of Rev. W. B. Clemmer of this city. Both gave thirty years as their ages."
